

Surprised Wife With Twins (Ivan and Jennifer) Chapter 393

"Ok," Finnley answered.

He looked at the cartoons outlined in pen on the desktop and reached out to pick them up, which were quite refreshing and well-drawn.

He sat down and looked at them carefully, and casually put the cartoons into the drawer.

An hour later...

Jennifer and Pippa walked out of the recording studio. Their work was completed.

"Jennifer, your voice is fantastic! When you did the female lead and female supporting recording together, the emotions were still very well expressed and it's still pretty easy to tell the difference.

"I practiced my breathing and emotions." Jennifer is very modest, "I studied for a long time."

Spencer, who had been sitting on the bench waiting, raised his eyes, stood up, and walked towards them with the fruit platter.

"Why are you still here?" Jennifer was surprised and stopped.

"Here." Like a child, he carried the bag to her, "First day of recording, well done."

Pippa looked at them both and hurriedly reached out to take it, "Thank you, Mr. Lawrence." Pippa was more or less informed about his identity, after all, she had followed Madam Aubree for a long time.

"I'm leaving." Jennifer said to him, "I just recorded five episodes and they were okay. They had been sent to the director."

"Excellent." He said, "Let me walk you downstairs. I was about to leave as well."

Even though it was only a short chat, he was very satisfied.

Love is magical.

Because he loves her, it is all worth it.

The three of them got into the elevator and were followed all the way.

There were more reporters outside the elevator downstairs.

Mrs. Marsh was newly married but the man by her side with fresh fruit was not her husband. Instead, it was Spencer.

Ordinary friends would not have time to wait three hours for each other.

When they walked out of the elevator, the paparazzi secretly photographed them and they looked very intimate in that photo while Pippa was walking on the other side.

When they walked out of the lobby, Mya, who had been leaning on the car, had a smile on her lips, "Jennie!"

"Mya?" Jennifer was also a little surprised to see her. It seemed like she was waiting on purpose.

Mya opened the car and said, "Get in! I'll take you home. I need to talk to you about something."

Spencer had no intention to take her home.

But Jennifer brought a driver over and the driver has been waiting here.

The driver was very understanding, "Madam, you can take her car, it's okay with me."

"Sorry. Sorry to keep you waiting." She felt very sorry.

Mya said, "Hurry up and get in!" Then she opened the back seat door and said to Pippa, "Why don't you get on too?" It looked like the two of them were together.

Jennifer looked at Spencer and said to him softly, "Don't come over again. I'll leave after recording. I don't have much time to chat with you and we don't need to communicate with each other, I don't do the male voice."

Spencer understood what she meant.

He was just worried that Georgia would find her fault again and Ivan wouldn't be here in time.

Jennifer and Pippa both got into the car.

Mya closed the door and returned to the driver's side, and quickly drove away.

"When do you plan to go to work at the Marsh Group?" Mya held the steering wheel with both hands and turned her eyes to look at her.

"What's with this?"

"If you're not going, who am I going to work for as an assistant?" She said, "I've even applied for a work number, and I've bought a lot of things on sale recently. You can say that I've enjoyed all the benefits."

Jennifer blurted out, "I wasn't planning on going at all."
