

Surprised Wife With Twins (Ivan and Jennifer) Chapter 407

"How's my mother doing?" Ivan hadn't called his mother for several days.

"Madam Aubree has just got home. She's having lunch now." The butler was joyful to hear from him as Aubree always missed Ivan.

"Mr. Marsh, shall I put her on the phone?" he asked expectantly.

"Not necessary," Ivan refused. "Please tell her Jennifer and I will go back for dinner later."

The butler was overjoyed. "Sure. I will inform Madam Aubree."

He strode into the dining room. "Madam Aubree, Mr. and Mrs. Marsh will come for dinner tonight. Mr. Marsh has just called."

His words surprised Aubree. She was in a trance and couldn't return to her senses.

The butler bent over slightly to gaze at her, wondering how she felt.

"OK. I see." Aubree withdrew her gaze, looking calm. However, she cheered inwardly.

Ivan would come to see her. Her villa was also quiet. After Pippa left, it became more silent.

Aubree took a bite of her food and said to the butler, "Show me the dinner recipes."

"I will, Madam Aubree." The butler could tell she was excited to hear the news, wondering why she didn't show it on her face.

Besides, he mentioned Mr. and Mrs. Marsh just now, and Aubree didn't ask him to address Jennifer as Ms. Brooks.

While reading the recipes, Aubree carefully picked up the dishes to be prepared while reading the recipes, and the butler recorded her requirements.

The food for lunch gradually became cold.

Shortly after, a black SUV was parked in the yard.

"Is it Andrew's car?" Aubree peered out of the window, wondering why Andrew had come over.

The butler followed her gaze and answered affirmatively, "Yes, it's Andrew."

The door of the driver's seat opened. Andrew got off and opened the rear doors. Two adorable children hopped off.

They carried two colorful suitcases, trotting toward the living room. Their looks reminded Aubree of Ivan.

"Alfie and Diana!" the butler called in surprise.

Aubree was also taken aback.

The two children had been sent abroad, hadn't they?

"Grandma!" She heard their sweet voices.

The butler strode into the living room. Aubree also put down the recipe and stood up, blood boiling in her veins.

The children trotted into the dining room, pounced at her, and hugged her.

Rubbing their adorable faces against her thighs, they yelled, "We miss you so much, Grandma!"

"Grandma." Diana looked up at her, blinking. "We sneaked back from abroad. Daddy and Mommy didn't know."

"Please keep it secret."

"Grandma, please let us stay here," Alfie added, "From now on, we'll stay here with you. Please don't tell Jennie."

All of a sudden, the quiet vintage villa became lively. The children couldn't stop speaking at all.

A rare smile sprung on Aubree's face. "Are you guys hungry?"

"We're starved."

"We just got off the plane."

"Come here." Aubree felt sorry for them. She ordered the butler, "Get plates for them."

The children released her and sat in the white chairs.

"Grandma, remember. We're still abroad."

"I really missed you, Grandma. I like living here."

"I miss you, too, Grandma. I dreamed about you last night."

The children's words brought warmth into Aubree's chest. She was touched as she hadn't felt so much love for many years.

In fact, the children aimed to help Jennifer and Aubree get along well.

They were confident as they were adorable, and their grandmother would surely listen to them.