

Surprised Wife With Twins Chapter 464

Hearing Ivan's words, Jennifer felt relieved.

It was all over now.

She hadn't told Ivan the fact that she knew Hanson.

He was dead now and she would never meet him again. She didn't see any point in telling Ivan about it.

It was nothing, besides. She had saved Hanson's life five years ago.

She didn't remember him very clearly. It was just her doing her job.

After the shower, Jennifer put on her clothes.

Ivan was drying her hair with a dryer.

Jennifer buttoned his shirt for him.

The both of them enjoyed this moment together.

After that, they went to see Spencer.

Spencer had also taken a shower and Rowan had treated his wounds for him. He had several stitches on his shoulder and he could still feel pain.

Seeing Ivan and Jennifer, he held back the pain and acted calm.

"Sit down and let me see your wound," Jennifer said to Ivan and then went to take the medical kit.

Ivan took off his shirt and Jennifer unwrapped his gauze.

She saw his cracked wound. It must have hurt.

Did he feel pain when they were taking a shower?

He didn't even groan.

Even as a professional doctor, Jennifer couldn't help feeling sorry when she saw this.

She gave him a painkiller and then started to treat for him carefully.

She stitched his wound for him.

While stitching for him, she couldn't help shedding tears.

Sitting next to them, Spencer watched.

He got mixed feelings and kept replaying the narrow escape from the explosion in his mind.

He had finally realized something.

Ivan had words he wanted to say to Spencer, but he didn't know where to start.

After the incident, Spencer also had words to say to Ivan. But he felt awkward to say them.

Things had always been awkward between the two of them, after all.

They both disliked each other, but they cared about each other at the same time.

There was a weird silence in the room.

Finally, Jennifer finished treating Ivan and helped him put on his shirt.

She washed her hands and squatted down in front of Spencer, looking up at him. She said sincerely, "Spencer, thank you."

The two's eyes met and they both knew what it meant.

Spencer looked at her and saw her swollen eyes and her injured neck. It was as if her tears had been drained.

She was the one who had been scared and worried, but she was still trying to make them feel better.

Thinking of what she had been through in those two hours, Spencer felt sorry.

"We have to keep alive from now on," Spencer told her.

Jennifer nodded. She knew that Spencer had seen through a lot of things.

She cherished her friendship with him.

"Spencer, let's go to my mother's for dinner tonight together."

Ivan spoke. He didn't sound as proud and arrogant as before.

Jennifer and Spencer looked over at him in surprise.

Ivan looked gentle.

Everyone was stunned. Ivan had never spoken to Spencer in such a gentle manner before.

Time seemed to have stood still.

