

Surprised Wife With Twins Chapter 470

In the morning.

The sun shone through the curtains and woke Ivan and Jennifer up. It was bright outside.

Ivan and Jennifer got up and had breakfast at Rowan's. Jennifer then refreshed Ivan's bandage for him.

"Spencer, we need to go to the Emerald Bay later, but we might come for dinner tonight," Jennifer said to Spencer, "Stay here and don't go out."

"I know," Spencer said gently, "Don't worry about me. I will take care of myself."

He had nothing to do now and he hadn't refreshed his life plan yet.

He needed time to think it over and added, "I won't leave before I'm recovered."

Hearing this, Ivan and Jennifer were relieved.

They said some brief words to Rowan, "Thank you for looking after him." Then, they left.

Jennifer's wound on her neck had almost recovered and there was a cute bandage on it.

Ivan's back was healing as well. He was using the medicine that Rowan had recently developed.

Jennifer was driving while he was in the passenger seat.

The windshield was lowered and there was breeze. A song was playing.

They hadn't had such a peaceful time together for a long time.

They arrived at the Emerald Bay.

Jennifer sat on the chair in the balcony and called someone while drinking tea.

"Madeleine, how are things with you?" Jennifer asked in a light mood.

"I have raised a lot of rabbits. It's getting livelier in the farm!" a young woman answered her.

"How are Alfie and Diana doing?" Jennifer asked, "Are they helping you out? Diana loves rabbits and she knows how to take care of them."

"Aren't they at home with you?" Madeleine asked.

Jennifer frowned, "What do you mean?"

"They have gone back home a week ago, don't you know that?"

Jennifer was shocked.

After having some brief words with Madeleine, she hung up.

She called Alfie, who didn't answer.

She called Diana, but her phone had been turned off.

A week ago?

She put down the teacup and hurried downstairs.

"Ivan!" she was too anxious and almost stumbled.

In the living room, Ivan immediately rushed over to hold her into his arms. "What's wrong?"

"Alfie and Diana have come back to the country a week ago!" she anxiously said, "But we don't know where they are now."

Everyone was nervous.

Marry and Jordan were also in shock.

"I don't think someone kidnapped them," Ivan said calmly, "If they were kidnapped, the kidnapper should've called us for money. Besides, the kids are smart, they should be safe."

At this moment, Pippa suddenly recalled the locked door in the Kelsington Bay and the kids' socks she had seen.

"I know where the kids are!" Her eyes lit up.

Everyone looked at her and Pippa said, "They are in the Kelsington Bay. I'm sure!"

Ivan and Jennifer looked at each other in disbelief.

Then, Pippa told them everything.

"The kids' socks?" Jennifer had been convinced and was relieved. But then, she was worried again. "Will your mom hurt them?"

"I don't think so," Ivan grabbed her shoulders and said, "She loves them. She won't hurt them."

"No! I have to go to the Kelsington Bay, now!" Jennifer ran out of the house.
