

Surprised Wife With Twins (Ivan and Jennifer) novel

Chapter 7

Ten minutes later.

Lamborghini slowed down and drove into another yard.

It was the residence of Rowan Watson, a private physician, one of Ivan's most trusted people.

After handing Rowan the samples, Ivan sat patiently on the couch, waiting for the result. The image of the woman seven years ago came to his mind again...

Ten minutes later.

Rowan, wearing a white coat, came out and handed Ivan two copies of the results, "Mr. Marsh, have a look."

Ivan took it over, going through the contents of it casually with his sharp eyes. Finally, his gaze landed on the last line.

It showed that the coincidence rate was 99.9999999%.

Now the guess had turned into a fact. Ivan's mood changed slightly. He was both a little surprised and confused.

Seeing the results, Rowan was also shocked.

Ivan was known for never approaching women. He had no gossip. He always appeared as an untouchable man.

Which woman got to get close to him and even give birth to his children?

"Thank you." Ivan patted Rowan on the shoulder and then left.

Looking at Ivan's back, Rowan was at a loss.

Oh, Gosh!

That was exploding news!

The Lamborghini headed to Emerald Bay.

Ivan, holding the two paternity tests, couldn't help but think of that night seven years ago and of the woman, whom he didn't know whether to call lucky or unlucky.

He deliberately left a ring, but she never came to him!

From this point, Ivan knew that she was different.

The woman named Jennifer was the only woman who didn't make him feel disgusted when she approached him. Ivan didn't know why.

He took out his phone and called someone, whispered, "I need you to check a woman. Her name is Jennifer. She lives in Sunshine Village. I want all her information!"

On the way home, Ivan accepted the fact that he was now a father.

Back to the villa, the first thing he did was replace the old watches on the children's wrists into the latest smart watches.

There would be no signal once the watches were turned off. So, Jennifer would definitely come over in a rush.

At Sunshine Village.

Jennifer couldn't sleep. So, she sat down under the cherry blossom tree, torturing the flowers, tearing the petals one by one, as if they were Ivan.

Thinking back to the six years that she had spent with her children, she couldn't help but cry.

Her dear children were snatched away, she couldn't reconcile.

She called the children's phone watch only to find that they were turned off! She felt so sad. Her children forgot about her now that they got their daddy.

But they had promised to have their watches on 24/7. Did someone force them to turn them off?

Force?

The thought flashed through Jennifer's mind. She came to a startling conclusion; Ivan wasn't going to send the kids back!

"Edward!" Jennifer suddenly panicked, and shouted anxiously at the bamboo house, "I am going to the city now!"

"Jennifer! Calm down! Wait a minute!"

"I can't wait any longer!"

On impulse, Jennifer went into town. She guessed that Ivan wouldn't take the children to the company, but to Emerald Bay.

Ivan was the father of the children, so Jennifer was very clear about where he lived.

However, after thinking about it for a moment, Jennifer flustered even more. What if the children refused to go back with her?

What if Ivan refused to let them go? At his place, he had the advantage.

Except for stealing the children, Jennifer had no better idea.

Right! Steal!

At a large, bright villa in Emerald Bay.

Ivan officially introduced the children to the servants.

"Hello, Young Master Alfie! Hello, Young Lady Diana!"

The servants stood in a row and saluted the children respectfully. Everyone was happy for Ivan and the Marsh family!