

No. 1 Supreme Warrior chapter 1730

Arthur was not dumb. He knew that Hendrick was thinking of an excuse to send them away so he could have more alone time with Helena. He might have thought of impressing Helena's younger sisters, too.

It was only natural that he declined Hendrick's suggestion.

He was only slightly stunned for a short moment before he spoke with an indifferent smile, "It's alright; there's no need to hurry. None of the members from the Alliance Guard entered this area at this moment, so why should we be afraid? They barely come here, and if we need to send a person back to notify the rest that badly, I think Skye can go on her own. We can follow Ms. Helena to search. After all, some monster beasts in this area are quite strong, and it'll be safer if there are more people!"

Helena's expression contorted in apprehension. What the elder of the Cabello family had mentioned to her seemed right, after all. Both Arthur and Hendrick considered things on her behalf. Why else did they act proactively?

The most important thing was that these people came to their aid and saved everyone. It was difficult for her to refuse their kindness, so she could only respond to the rest with a smile.

"I'm not going back, either. Why should I go back when none of you are?" Skye naturally refused to return, and she flew up. "Come on. Where should we go next? The sun is setting, and I think we should find a place to rest for the night. We'll continue our search for precious items tomorrow!"

However, the fatty recalled something and blurted, "This is bad! Didn't we forget something? Members of the Bloodshed Clan are in charge of guarding the entrance this year, am I right? Although they're just disciples with low fighting prowess, they'd surely report to their sect when they know that so many people have entered the area. By then, wouldn't all the forces of the entire Alliance Guard learn about this?"

Another member of the Whittemore Fortress also said, "That's right! I think we should go back and inform the fortress master about this. If the forces of the Alliance Guard learned about this and sent one or two of their larger sects here... Haha... They might just infiltrate and annihilate the entire Nine Armies!"

Everybody inhaled deeply when they heard that.

"That's wrong!" Helena fought back. "We didn't bump into anyone guarding the area when we entered! Also, everybody got separated when we entered, and we had no idea which place was the entrance to this area!"

Only then did Ella smile bitterly and said, "That's because you people are lucky. It so happens that the formation of the entrance hasn't been maintained for a long time and is at the brink of being deposed. That's why everyone got separated when you entered, and it's no surprise that you didn't bump into those two guards! However, they should be chasing after those who entered after you guys left. There were a lot of you, mind you, and I'm sure that some would have appeared on the mountaintop."

"What should we do? They'll surely notice that a lot of us have entered and are separated if he tracks us extensively. It'll be troublesome when they report this to the members of his sect!" Helena grew incredibly anxious at that. If some from the Cabello family, including her sisters and the others, met those two people who guarded the area, would that not mean a definite death?

"Don't worry. I happened to be searching for precious items in this area, and I saw that those two had been killed by an extremely strong monster beast. I've seen it all, so no need to fear!" Ella added, purposely lying. After all, if members of the Bloodshed Clan knew that those two disciples of theirs were killed by the people who entered this area, they would not rest with the fact.

"Is that so? Oh, that's great! Thank you so much, Ms. Ella. You guys got us startled for a moment there!"
