"He would prioritize eliminating Jack over everything else. He would not let anything delay him. I've been with him for so long. I understand him the most here. Something definitely happened if he's still not here..."

As he said that, his voice started to tremble. Various uneasy thoughts surfaced in his mind.

There were some things he did not dare to say because he was worried he would jinx it, but the more he thought about it, the more worried he was that it actually happened.

Someone behind Jimmy laughed and said, "Jimmy, you're being too sensitive. It's not like you can read his mind. How could you anticipate his every move? Even though Octavius is a very serious person, there's no way he wouldn't be tempted by such a large treasure. You're just overthinking things."

"Is that so? I don't think that's the case," A cold voice was suddenly heard in front of them.

Everyone stiffened and turned to look at the source of the sound at the same time.

A man in dark green robes and a black mask was walking through the fog toward them. Since the fog obscured their sight and they were standing in a circle not too far from each other, Jack had only been seen by them because they were already within seven meters of each other. When everyone saw who it was, practically everyone pulled out their weapons from their storage spaces.

Jack was still very calm at their reaction. Everything was within his expectations.

Case looked at Jack with alarm. He held a round ring in one hand that had various beasts carved on it. There was even a dark red glow to it. That was probably his weapon.

Case raised his weapon and aimed it at Jack, "Why are you here?"

The gathering spot they chose was not near the center of the fog battlefield at all. It was quite secluded to avoid being noticed by Jack. Otherwise, it would affect their plans. Yet, even despite their careful planning, Jack had found them.

Jack did not seem to have accidentally stumbled upon them either. It was like Jack already knew they would be here.

The fog battlefield was filled with fog that obstructed sight and sound. If Jack had not known that they would be gathered there, he would not have been so calm.

Jack said, "Don't think that you're so smart with your schemes. If you think everyone else is an idiot, you'll end up being an idiot."

Case's eyes suddenly widened as he shouted, "You interrogated and killed people!"

Case suddenly understood why Jack was there.

Jack probably already knew where they were gathering. It was obvious that he had found out from the other disciples that had not arrived.

Jack actually used such a cruel method!

When the others heard what Jack said, they realized what happened as well. All of them started to look at Jack in anger, raising their weapons at Jack in a challenging manner.

However, they were already acting from pure anger at that point.

Jack looked at all of their furious expressions. All of them looked like they were burning in anger as if their whole family had been killed overnight.

Jack could not resist laughing at their expressions. However, the smile never reached his eyes.

His eyes were completely cold, "Why do you look like that? Do you feel very angry? What gives you the right to be so angry?"
