Chapter 3654

Right at that moment, a black mist rose behind Marsha's body.

The dense seals increased as well.

In just a few breaths, the gray mist was already taller than a person. Slowly, it formed into the figure of a human that looked a lot like Joe.

At that moment, Marsha looked up and said coldly, "You're not the only one who got something from Cloud Valley!"

Right after he said that, he formed seals again. An intense power came from the world avatar behind

Morten, fusing with those seals he formed.

A world avatar was able to increase a warrior's power. Furthermore, Marsha had fully completed his with an error in any of his 96 seals. He took a deep breath, and a golden glow came from his eyes.

He shouted, "This is my strongest state!" Case reacted at that point, but it was already too late. At that moment, he had launched his attack. Even if he wanted to run, he could not possibly escape at such a close distance.

He never thought of this before. After all, he had thought that Marsha could not have been evenly matched with five of them if he had not unleashed his full might. So, he never even thought of the possibility that Marsha still had more left to show.

He never even considered if he had formed a world avatar.

Case gritted his teeth. He hated Marsha to the core, but it was all too late.

10 different techniques clashed, and this time, the collision was even more intense.

10 different forms of energy tried to swallow each other whole in the air. The Soul Burst Ring was like a meat grinder, completely swallowing up everything!

The explosion was loud. All nine of them felt an immense force exploding in front of them, sending all of them flying.

Case could even feel cracking sounds coming from his chest, and he spat out a mouthful of blood.

After a moment, he fell to the ground, gritting his teeth in pain. Even just moving a little, he could feel the pain from his broken bones. It was not just his ribs at that moment; the other parts of his body were heavily injured as well. His left arm was completely broken.

Case started to pant as he struggled to get up, but at that moment, he suddenly felt a strange energy slowly creeping from his chest to his whole body. That energy was ripping his soul apart, causing him to hiss.

The soul being ripped apart was no small matter. If too much of it was gone, he would become a cripple.

Case used all his true energy to push that power back. At that moment, he heard footsteps.

He looked up to see Marsha already next to him, the man's expression calm as ever. This time, Marsha had not been sent flying. The world avatar had bolstered the Soul Burst Ring and it was more than enough against the nine other attacks, so Marsha had not been hit at all.

Marsha slowly bent down and looked at Case coldly. “You still thought that I was just stubborn because I refused to leave after I was injured, right?”

The moment Marsha said that, Case felt mocked.

He suddenly laughed, feeling like he was a complete idiot.

Marsha had just said that he was no idiot, but Case still refused to change his thoughts. It seemed like Case was the true idiot.

Marsha was right. Anyone who got into Cloud City was a capable person, and there was no room for error on that. He had not left because Marsha was still confident. There was still a trump card that Case had not expected.
