

No.1 Supreme Warrior by Moneto

Chapter 4110

Jack remained standing in place. He had not moved from the position at all since he stepped into the arena. On the other hand, Silen was in an incredibly pathetic state.

They were practically two extremes.

Silen was in so much pain that his whole body was twitching. After all, the pain of one's soul being devoured was even more unbearable than any physical injury. However, Jack made sure that Silen was still capable of rational thought. He controlled the power of Soul Sky to slowly eat away at Silen's soul.

Even though Silen was in so much pain that his whole body was twitching, he could still maintain his thought processes. Only then did he realize why Carville looked at him with such an expression.

Jack did not use any petty tricks at all. He defeated Carville with his extraordinary skills alone. He used absolute skill to defeat Carville, but made Carville lie and say that he had lost to Jack's petty tricks!

Silen could not stop himself from spitting out another mouthful of blood. He trembled as he looked up, looking at Jack with reddened eyes. Only then did he realize why Jack had said all of that to him.

He shuddered as he said, "So you did everything you did just now because you didn't want me to surrender right away?"

Jack raised an eyebrow before he nodded plainly. He had not lied, everyone had just made their own assumptions.

Silen let out a bitter smile.

It was no wonder that the man who called himself North was so calm the whole time. He thought that the guy was just putting up a disgusting act, but it had not been an act at all.

Silen had truly been beneath him. That guy was definitely a warrior at the peak.

Jack's expression was calm, and he acted like he was speaking about something completely unimportant, "I just wanted those people to know that nothing good ever comes from wanting to cause trouble to me."

Since everyone had been sent to different locations and he had changed his looks, no one recognized him. Yet, there was no way he could keep on hiding who he was.

Everything he did would start to spread eventually. He wanted to send a message to those warriors at the peak who would cause him trouble. If they wanted to do anything to him, they would suffer from his revenge.

He had never been a pushover. Anyone who wanted to cause him trouble needed to pay a painful price!

Jack said coldly, "You should be thankful that you're not a challenger right now."

Silen felt his heart stop as his whole body shuddered. Jack was not just threatening him for the sake of it. If Silen had been a challenger, then there would only be one thing waiting for him!

Silen started to breathe even more quickly as he slowly lowered his head. He did not even dare to look at Jack at that moment and felt like Jack was the most terrifying thing he ever witnessed.

"North is definitely a warrior at the peak! He's probably one of the stronger ones as well! Yet, I've never seen him or his technique! Does anyone else know anything?"

Everyone shook their heads, indicating that they did not know who North was as well.

They started to look into it, but there were no answers to their questions. It was as if North Woods had just come out of nowhere.

No one knew him, nor did anyone know the technique he used.

Carville sighed as a terrified look flashed on his face. He cursed himself for being so arrogant earlier. If he had just been more humble and kept a lower profile, he would not have suffered like this.

It was already too late for him to regret things. The only reason he was still alive and not heavily injured was because of the rules of the Seven Death Arenas.
