

No.1 Supreme Warrior by Moneto

Chapter 4118

Wellis smiled as he turned to look at the man who was talking. It had given him an idea.

He coughed before he said, "I have a lot of experience. The experience will save you a lot of trouble."

Jack raised an eyebrow but did not say anything.

He was actually interested in what Wellis said. Even though Wellis' senses were nothing compared to Jack's, his experience was definitely something Jack lacked. Bringing Wellis into the Evil Plains with him will definitely save a lot of trouble.

With that in mind, Jack slowly nodded.

When Wellis saw Jack agreeing, he immediately said with excitement, "Don't worry, I won't drag you down! When do you plan on leaving?"

Jack gave Wellis fifteen minutes to prepare.

Wellis wanted to take the chance to earn a bit more, so he still wanted to bring some others with him. However, he made it clear that he would only bring them sixty kilometers in. After that, it would all be down to them.

For that reason, Wellis would only be taking two Evil Badges a person. However, the price still caused quite a few of them to frown.

A large man frowned and said, "Before this, you charged three Evil Badges to follow you in and come back with you. This time, you're only bringing us in, but not back. It's basically taking away half of our assurances. Don't you think it's unreasonable to ask for such a high price?"

Wellis did not care about the questions at all. He let out a nonchalant smile, "Don't bother trying to argue. This is my price. If you're willing to pay, then you can follow me inside. If you're not, then I won't force you. It's your own choice."

Those words suddenly shut everyone else up. The price would not change. It was all up to them whether to accept it or not. There was no room for negotiations.

Jack let out a laugh as he looked at Wellis, not saying anything at all.

Lourain lowered his voice and whispered to Jack, "Jack, this guy is so sly! It's obvious he's not a good person. We should be on alert against him."

Fifteen minutes was rapidly running out. Even though a lot of them complained that the price was expensive, a total of ten of them were willing to pay two Evil Badges as the price in the end.

That meant that it would be the most warriors that Wellis had ever led. Before this, he had only brought five or six people in every time for safety's sake.

This time, he was not the only person who was going to ensure everyone's safety. He felt like the man called North would too.

There were a total of thirteen people in the group. Thirteen of them started to head deeper into the Evil Plains. The first ten kilometers, they were greeted with nothing other than some birds flying in the sky.

There were wild plants along the ground. The further they walked, the more uneven the ground became. Slowly, the plains started to turn into small valleys.

When they arrived at the fifteen-kilometer mark, Wellis, who was in the front, suddenly stopped.

He frowned as his eyes coldly swept around, not wanting to miss out on a single thing.

Jack let out his senses to look around, but he found nothing after a while. However, Wellis remained unmoving. He had a serious expression on his face as if he noticed something different.

Jack walked over to Wellis and whispered, "Did you notice something?"

Wellis turned to look at Jack. Even though Jack did not seem to have much emotion on his face, he could still see the curiosity in Jack's eyes.

Wellis explained, "I'm not trying to make a big deal out of nothing, but it's necessary to be careful."

After he said that, he paused for a moment before he asked, "Do you believe in intuition?"
