

No.1 Supreme Warrior by Moneto

Chapter 4143

Someone said in a shaky voice, "We've tried to work together before, but it always fails for some reason or another in the end."

Ronan nodded, "This time will be different. As long as all of us remember that we'll be the ones who die if they don't, then things won't go up in smoke in the end!"

"I'm not trying to call everyone to arms. I'm just trying to wake all of you up to reality. Once you leave this place, spread the news. Even if no one's leading the movement, everyone will still work together in the end!"

Jack opened his eyes at that moment and happened to see Ronan's emotional look.

He raised an eyebrow and said nothing.

Lourain had been moved by Ronan, and his heart was pounding.

"Jack! It's different this time! These people have even offended the above-average warriors with their wanton slaughter. Other than their subordinates, every other warrior hates them right now! This time, everyone has a different mentality. It's a matter of survival now! There's no way they'll have things as easy as they did before!"

Jack nodded slightly and he said calmly, "It's possible. In the end, we need to observe to see what will happen. I can't make any judgments right now."

At that moment, the number on the scroll changed.

Jack suddenly looked up at the scroll in the air.

There was suddenly a gold light next to the ice attribute words. The gold light slowly solidified, and formed the words 'water attribute'.

Jack raised an eyebrow and suddenly stood up.

At the center of the plaza, the space started to distort again. A vague figure appeared in front of everyone.

After a moment, the figure could finally be seen. A man in blue clothes appeared in front of everyone.

The number on the scroll changed again, going from a hundred and fifteen to a hundred and sixteen.

"Belkan? It's you! This must be fate. The last time we met was a month ago!" A man with a large beard said to the newcomer.

Belkan Reese looked at the man with the large beard and let out a surprised smile as well.

He walked over to the man and patted the man on the shoulder, "Leeds! It's you! I've been through four challenges and didn't see a single person I knew. I finally saw a familiar face!"

The man called Leeds had a very happy look on his face.

Everyone who entered the Radiant Hall would be sent to separate locations. Being able to meet someone familiar was all down to luck.

Jack had only been able to bring Lourain along thanks to the blank token. Without that, the two of them would have already been separated. He was naturally not paying attention to those two at all. He had his eyes fixed on the scroll and was observing the water attribute.

Zubac sat next to Lourain the whole time and was just incredibly bored. He did not have any ill intentions at all.

When he saw Jack's gaze, he laughed and said, "When I got here, the scroll only had the words metal attribute. As more and more people entered, the scroll had more and more attributes written."

Jack's eyes lit up at those words, and various thoughts played in his head.

Zubac raised an eyebrow, knowing what Jack was thinking from Jack's expression.

Zubac smiled and said, "I know what you're thinking, but we've already tried those methods. Others have thought of what you're thinking as well, but it was useless in the end."
