

No.1 Supreme Warrior by Moneto

Chapter 4157

Jack raised an eyebrow as a look of surprise flashed in his eyes.

Seymour had a very sharp mind. He seemed much more intelligent than the other warriors at the peak he had met before.

Jack had thought that Seymour had not noticed them as he had merely been resting in a corner with his eyes shut. Yet, Seymour seemed to have been observing everything that was happening there.

Jack frowned as he started to regard the other party higher than he did before. Seymour was not going to be easy to deal with.

Seymour's eyes constantly darted between Jack and Lourain as if he was trying to figure something out.

After a long time, he suddenly let out a laugh, "How curious..."

Lourain frowned as he took a step back. He felt the aura of a deep schemer from Seymour. It was as if Seymour already figured out the truth.

Lourain's heart was beating wildly, and he started to regret his impulsiveness. If he had not been reckless, he would not have attracted Seymour's attention, and Seymour would not be looking at the two of them so inquisitively.

Lourain felt like he had caused some trouble as he looked at Jack with regret.

Jack's face had no emotion, and he merely nodded slightly at Lourain's gaze, not saying anything. He did not want to waste any time there. After all, they were in a restricted area, so there was no way he could do anything.

Jack then turned to look at the wooden boxes again. He wanted to quickly make his choice and leave. These grudges could only be dealt with later on.

Other than the colors, the boxes looked identical. Jack walked around and finally decided after hesitating for a moment. He reached out to one of the wooden boxes, and it was worth seventy-six points.

Everyone widened their mouths slightly at the sight.

Were they seeing things?

Seventy-six points!

That guy had seventy-six points!

No wonder he did not seem too bothered by Seymour. He was a warrior at the peak as well!

Seymour frowned slightly when he saw what was happening. Various expressions and thoughts danced around in his mind.

Jack ignored the discussions around him as he opened the wooden box with a frown.

At that moment, everyone held their breaths as they tried to look into the wooden box. They were looking forward to seeing what seventy-six points yielded.

If it was an empty box, then it would be a complete joke. Even if it was not an empty box, it would be a joke if the treasures inside were worth less than thirty million.

Everyone looked on with varying expressions, some of amusement, and some of curiosity. Everyone wanted to see what Jack would get with seventy-six points.

Jack stood higher up, so they could not see what was inside immediately, but he could.

When he saw what was inside, Jack was slightly stunned.

"A key!" Someone shouted out.

Jack frowned as he immediately kept the key in Mustard Seed. However, he had been too slow, and some managed to make out the shape of a key.
