Chapter 4161

Jack nodded, "Right now, we're still not sure how they did it, so we have to be careful."

Lourain took a deep breath, and his face was full of worry.

He patted Lourain on the shoulder, "It's fine. There's no meaning in trying to speculate right now. We should just take things one step at a time."

That was all that they could do at that moment. The two of them discarded those thoughts and started to walk further into the Hunting Plains.

The rules of the Hunting Plains were simple. There were no points to be gained, but there were countless beasts in the plains. The beasts would attack any humans they saw, and killing beasts would yield treasures.

"It looks like there will be a lot of dead people here," Lourain sighed and said.

Jack nodded, "Yes! A lot of people will die here. The deeper you go into the Radiant Hall, the more violent the challenges are. This place tests a person's greed and their decision-making."

As the two of them spoke, they heard rumbling from afar.

The two of them looked up to see two people running over from far away. Those two looked to be in an incredibly bad state. They were filled with injuries, and their clothes were completely ripped up.

As they ran, they kept on looking back, as if their lives were being threatened by something behind them.

Cavill was running very frantically. His arms and legs were full of wounds. The most fatal wound was an open wound that was surrounded by ice. The wound was being aggravated by the power of ice. If he did not get treated quickly, his arm could end up being crippled.

However, neither Cavill nor his fellow disciple, Soare, dared to slow down.

There was a Blizzard Wolf that was firmly in pursuit of them. The beast was responsible for injuring the two of them.

Cavill looked up to see two people standing far away from them. One of them had a green robe on, while the other had white robes. Both of them were looking on curiously.

Cavill's lips twitched and felt like there was something wrong with their heads. The two of them were already inching closer.

Why are they not running?!

"Run! Hurry up and run! There's a Blizzard Wolf behind me!" Cavill shouted.

Jack raised an eyebrow, and he immediately changed his thoughts.

It seemed like that person had a pretty decent character. Otherwise, that person would not have bothered with the warning.

Lourain clearly realized it as well. He turned to look at Jack, and Jack nodded before he activated his true energy beneath his feet, leaping at the other two.

Cavill and Soare were both stunned at the sight.

What was that person doing?

Did they not just tell him there was danger?!

Why was he rushing over?

Before they could react, Jack was already right in front of them. A huge wave of chilling energy came from behind them.

A beast the height of half a person was there. It was surrounded by ice, and its frozen teeth were plain for all to see. It looked at the humans with a deep sense of hatred.

Jack started to form seals with his hands, and a circular ring appeared in front of him! The ring started to hum and murderous intent started to emanate from the ring.

Cavill and Soare were stunned.

Was that person planning on killing the beast?
