Chaos

Noah and Raelyn drove to Adam's school to pick him up. Adam was found talking with his friends before he spotted Noah's car and started jogging up to it. "How was bambina's first day of school eh?" Adam asked opening the door and letting himself in.

"School was great," Raelyn answered, glad to see another Fluor brother a er a long day.

"Did you make any friends?"

"Yep," the little one excitedly exclaimed.

"What's her name?"

"His name is River," The little one corrected.

"A boy?" Adam sco ed.

Another sco? what's so wrong? The little one thought before continuing. "He gave me his yellow marker when mine ran out," Raelyn says

"Stop by the mall before we head home," Adam stated.

"Why?" Noah quired

trying to make things better, keyword; better.

"To get markers, so this little mouse doesn't have to ask anyone else or run out of them." Adam says before playfully tickling the little one leaving her in a mess of giggles. A er Raelyn calmed down they were all met with a comfortable silence except for the songs played in the background to which

Raelyn and all the others vibed to, before stopping by a cafe for lunch. Stopping by, Raelyn took hold of the view, the cafe was painted white on the outside, and a mural was painted on one side of the wall which really caught the little one's eye as she inspected the little yellow butterflies and the green wines which twisted along a log at which a huge bear was found sitting eating honey straight o the honeycomb. As they entered in, she was greeted firstly by the sweet smell of lavender which filled the air, and therea er a server who greeted them with a welcoming smile.

"I colored, painted, played in the monkey bars, and also earned a well-done sticker by my teacher," In the midst of the conversation, Adam noticed a group of teenagers walk in. He didn't think much of it until someone caught his eye through his peripheral vision. Immediately turning his head he caught a glance of the boy who he had met at the park. The boy was wearing a pair of beige trousers and a white shirt as for all the other kids in his group.

Noah came in, with all that everyone had ordered in his hands and therea er placing them on the table, letting o a sigh. "That line was too long" he complained wiping the sweat o his forehead. The boy who Adam was admiring from afar, caught hold of his eyes immediately making Adam's heart skip a beat and showcase a sti smile at which the boy waved at him, in which Adam returned a wave back. "You know him?" Noah asks cutting Adam's eye contact with the boy.

"Oh- um yeah" Adam stuttered, "I met him back at the park. He helped aid Raelyn's wound"

"That seems nice of him" Noah says. "Do you know which school he attends to?" He asks a er a few seconds. "No, why do you ask?" Adam quires.

"I don't want to be quick to judge or anything, but that school is known as one of the strictest Christian boarding schools in the city, they don't support anything other than what the Bible says atleast that's what they say," Noah let's out a sigh. "Um- what about lgbtq?" Adam asks out of curiosity not knowing much of what schools like that teach poor souls.

Noah chuckles, "That's the first thing, and the most important thing

"What do you think about it?" Adam asks yet another question.

"Oh that school is just living hell-"

Noah told Adam,

"No, about the whole lgbtq thing" Adam cuts Noah o . "I believe you could love whoever it is, love is love" Noah swi ly answered without signs of hesitance to his brother.
