Chapter 1001

"By the way, Anderson. I have got quite a lot of business secrets in my computer. Since you have synced my computer, be careful not to leak the information out."

Luther suddenly thought of it and reminded him.

Many of the documents in his computer were multi-billion dollar transactions, involving his both domestic and foreign businesses.

There were also some important design drawings.

"Don't worry. I've encrypted them for you." Anderson grunted and simply wrapped his arms around Luther's neck and drifted off to sleep.

Luther heard the even breathing coming from his shoulder, and a gentle smile came up to his lips.

Before just now, little did he know that Anderson already knew who he was and was willing to acknowledge him.

His heart seemed to be filled with honey, sweet and snug.

When Joyce opened the door, she saw that Anderson had fallen asleep on Luther's shoulder, with Luther's coat draped over him.

And Luther was all smiles.

The warm and fuzzy image made her frown gently.

The following day, at the Heath residence.

After Charlotte and Cecelia had an early dinner, Charlotte dragged Cecelia to the dressing room and started to pick out her dress for the evening piano concert.

"Charlotte, thank you. You are so thoughtful. You know I like piano concerts, and booked a private box." Cecelia looked at Charlotte with tender eyes, "Seriously, I didn't even know that Strauss had come to the Capital. He's my favorite pianist."

"Mom, you're usually so busy, so of course you don't pay attention. I didn't arrange these, and a friend of mine did. He wants to see you tonight." Charlotte flashed a smile.

"A friend?" Cecelia asked, puzzled, "What friend?"

After Charlotte came to the Capital, she didn't have many friends, and Cecelia was worried that Charlotte's lack of interaction with the outside world would affect her emotions.

"I just can't tell you now and you will find out when it's time." Charlotte said mysteriously.

Cecelia's eyes widened slightly, but did not ask more questions.

"Come to Room Six. I'm still in the parking lot and I have something important to tell you." Luther said over the phone.

After saying that, he hung up the phone directly, leaving no chance for Charlotte to speak.

"Oh, okay." Although Charlotte had doubts in her mind, she couldn't ask.

Since Luther told her to go to Room Six, she just went to Room Six.

Charlotte returned to Cecelia and said softly, "Mom, I'll be gone for a while. You wait for me here. I'll be back soon."

"Hmm." Cecelia nodded gently and didn't ask more questions.

She always treated Charlotte with respect and did not interfere too much with her privacy.

"I'll be back soon." With that, Charlotte waved her hand and turned to leave.

Cecelia stood in front of Room Two. She stood upright, her back was straight and her posture was elegant and noble.

She held the performance list for today's piano concert in her hand and looked through it carefully.

On the other hand, Joyce received a call from Luther out of the blue after work.

"Miss Knowles, I'm already on my way back to Khebury. I suddenly remembered something important and I want you to do me a favor." Luther's clear voice rang out over the phone.

"A favor?" Joyce was a little confused, "What could Mr. Warner possibly need my help with?"

"Can you go to Room Two at Capital Opera at exactly seven o'clock? And I'll have Aaron hand you something. Then you help me send it to a certain place. I will send you the address later." Luther told her all the details.

Joyce smiled casually, "You can just ask Aaron to send it for you, so what all the trouble is even for? Why do you have to ask Aaron to give it to me and then I will send it to a certain place for you?"

It was obviously illogical. What did Luther want?

"Ahem, Aaron is not available. I have other things for him to do. Please help me out, will you?" Luther said in a nice voice.

"Mr. Warner, I don't know my way around the Capital, so what can I do to help you?" Joyce questioned.

On the other end of the phone, Luther looked gloomy. It was just so hard to fool Joyce.

In the end, for a lack of a better way to say it, he said, "I will not harm you, and I don't ask for your favor usually. There must be a reason, and I'll explain it to you when I get back, okay?"

There were several kinds of drugs in different bottles.

There was a lot of chatter among the onlookers.

"So many medicines. Which one should she take? Should we just call an ambulance?"

"It's too late, right? It looks like she's going into shock."

"Does anyone know these drugs?"

"Hey, you took all her drugs out. Do you know them?"

"Do you know how to use it? Do not use them if you don't!"

"Yeah, yeah, we're not responsible for anything that might happen, and we're not going to testify for you."

"You'd better call an ambulance. Don't think you can be a hero like that."

Cecelia couldn't believe her eyes.

For a moment, she thought she was mistaken. She rubbed her eyes and looked again, and clearly there was no mistake.

It was the pendant that belonged to the Hurley family, and there was only one such pendant in the world.

However, after the birth of her child, she put the pendant on her own daughter with her own hands.

Unfortunately, she lost her daughter afterwards, and when Charlotte was found twenty years later, she did not find that silver pendant.

Now, she was so surprised when she saw this silver pendant of the Hurley family again on a total stranger.

Why? How was it possible?

Just when Joyce wanted to stand up, Cecelia held Joyce's arm out of instinct, "Wait."

Anyway, the project she had come to the Capital for this time also involved the military.

She had no need to hide it.

Only now, she needed to pretend she didn't know Cecelia.

After all, she was not Joyce now.

After handing over her business card, Joyce bowed her head slightly at Cecelia, "Ma'am, I should be leaving now."

Cecelia took the card and looked at her back as she disappeared into the crowd.

A familiar feeling hit her again. Why? She looked at the business card in her hand.

Meanwhile, Joyce circled around Room Two and finally met Aaron.

At first, she didn't even dare to go up and approach him.

Aaron was wearing all black today, black hooded sweatshirt, black pants, black hat, and even a black mask. She had never seen him dressed like this before.

The way he was made it more like a secret meeting.

She was surprised, "Aaron, why are you dressed like that?"

Aaron looked around to make sure Cecelia wouldn't notice him. He pulled down his mask and lowered his voice, "Ms. Knowles, this is something Mr. Warner asked me to give you. Please deliver the stuff to the place he specified."

He took a flash drive out of his pocket and handed it to Joyce. Then he put his mask back on and turned around and disappeared into the crowd.

Joyce stared blankly at the flash drive Aaron handed her, simply speechless.

She couldn't understand at all what Luther was trying to do.

"I was too far away to hear exactly what they were saying. But I saw them talking for a while, and finally, Ms. Knowles handed Cecelia her card. Ms. Knowles left and I had given her the flash drive." Aaron reported all the details.

"Good." Luther nodded with satisfaction, his knuckles snapping rhythmically at the steering wheel.

"Then, as you instructed, I changed my clothes and gave the gift to Charlotte at Room Nine," Aaron said.

"Very good. All the tasks for tonight were successfully completed then. Aaron, I am now driving back to Khebury, and during my absence, you are responsible for the safety of Zora and Anderson." Luther reminded him again.

"Boss, if Ms. Knowles and Anderson aren't together, who should I protect?" Aaron inquired as he thought of such a possibility.

"You protect Zora during the day when Anderson is in kindergarten, and you protect Anderson at night if Zora is not home. I have installed a positioning system in Zora's car, and you can find where she is in real time. If there is an abnormal situation on Zora's side, contact me immediately." Luther thought for a moment and instructed.

Luther was about to step on the gas.

However, his phone rang again.

He thought Aaron had something else to ask, and when he picked up the phone, he realized it was Joyce calling.

His tone immediately became gentle, "What's wrong? Haven't seen you for a day. Do you miss me?"

"Fuck off."

On the other end of the line, Joyce simply wanted to kick his handsome face through the phone.

"You told Aaron to give me the stuff, so what's the address? You never send me the address. Where exactly do you want me to send this thing!" She asked impatiently.

She walked towards the parking lot while making a phone call.

She finally got to her Bentley, opened the door and got in.

"Oh, I just got a call now and things have worked out. You don't have to do the delivery, and I forgot to tell you about that! Sorry." On the other end of the phone, Luther sounded just like a scoundrel.
