Wrong marriage and sweet love (Joyce and Luther)

Chapter 1211

But how could it be true? After she shot Charlotte four times, she fell asleep in the car on the way to the Special Investigation Unit, how did everything change when she woke up and Cecelia had been rescued?

"Where is this place?" Joyce looked around, a completely unfamiliar place, she had never been here before.

"The Special Investigation Unit's exclusive safe house, now we're safe." Cecelia explained.

"How long have I been sleeping ...?" Joyce asked again.

Cecelia shook her head gently, "I'm not sure, I came to the safe house at noon and watched over you for a while."

Joyce frowned gently.

Something is wrong, the sky outside is clearly evening, the wind and snow has stopped, the winter evening sun shines into the house, condensing a light gold on the ground.

It was clear that when she went to sleep, it was evening and the wind and snow were raging.

How is it possible that it is still evening, and the wind and snow have stopped and the sun is shining?

After Joyce finished her porridge, she gently wiped the corners of her lips with a napkin.

Cecelia looked at her with a tender face.

Both have regained their composure after the excitement.

"Joyce, let me show you a picture." Cecelia brought her phone over from the coffee table.

On the way to the House of Inspection safe house, Luther handed her phone back to her.

Meanwhile, Karl told her everything that had happened before, including Charlotte's crimes and Charlotte's current situation.

She didn't speak for a long time, and was in shock and anger. She needed time to digest the events that had shaken her to her core. The Heath family had come this far because Charlotte had pretended to be her daughter.

The long-lost affection washed over her and made her lose her proper vigilance.

The twenty-year-long guilt makes her so intent on making amends to Charlotte that she ignores too many issues.

Joyce was immersed in the pain of the past, "I remember, Grandpa murmured that if Mia was still alive, she should be about the same age ... I saw the loss in his eyes ... he asked my name, knew I was also raised in an orphanage, and then I left ..."

"If I had asked a few more questions at the time, perhaps what happened after that, would not have happened ..."

"I didn't think that, it would be the last time I would see my grandfather." She choked up as she spoke.

"Silly child, how can you be blamed?" Cecelia wiped away the tears at the corner of her eyes, "It's my fault. I knew he went out every day to find someone similar to Mia, but I didn't care about him at all. He was pushed down the stairs by Charlotte the day he met you for the second time. I heard Luther say that he went to Khebury Analysis Center that afternoon, must have found something."

Joyce realized that Luther had gone back to Khebury for a few days, all to find out about her identity.

"Now, Chris, with the Hurley troops, has arrived at the secret base that I prepared for the Hurley troops, and even Otis doesn't know about that. After they settle down, and then they could make plans for a next step."

Cecelia explained a little but omitted all the thrilling twists, as well as the clashes with Otis. In short, the rescue was difficult, the outcome was good. It is enough.

Joyce nodded gently.

"Great, they got you out. But Dad..."

Speaking of which, Joyce bowed her head sadly, in fact she had never met General Ralph.

She had been to the Heath residence several times, but General Ralph did not show up.

Cecelia got up, "No, you're just in time. Joyce is awake and we can leave the safe house."

Joyce also got up and looked at Karl, the corners of her lips slightly hooked up, "Mr. Gregory, I didn't think you were quite capable."

Joyce seemed to mean something else.

Karl was momentarily a little embarrassed.

He understood Joyce was referring to the fact that they had put her to sleep for a whole day.

At that moment, Luther came in from outside and gazed tenderly at Joyce, "I'm sorry. It's not about him, it's about the sedative I gave you."

Joyce looked at Luther with a smirk.

"I gave him the medicine." Karl didn't want to hide and readily admitted it.

Luther walked over to Joyce, "You just finished dealing with Charlotte, I'm worried that by having you along for the action, you'll be too mentally stretched, and you're so eager to save your mother that you'll easily collapse. So ..."

On the other hand, Juanita had been taking Anderson out shopping since the afternoon.

"Auntie Julia, I don't like this place." Anderson grumbled all the way down the street.

"I am your godmother," Juanita patted his little head, "and your godmother will buy you new clothes."

Anderson rolled his eyes, "I have plenty of clothes, I don't need them."

"You don't have to take them but I have to buy them for you." Juanita held Anderson's little head in her hands, too cute, she also want a child like this.

After picking up Anderson yesterday, she was so excited that she didn't sleep much all night and kept an eye on Anderson, and today they spent the morning at the amusement park. At lunch, they took him to try some specialties of the city.

In the afternoon she was ready to start the buying mode.

She took Anderson to the most upscale mall with the best selection of international first-line children's clothing brands.

Anderson sat on the sofa, watching Auntie Julia keep bringing all kinds of clothes over and over. The shopping session seemed never to end!

A few moments later, he changed into a small light blue striped suit and walked out.

"Wow. Anderson you're so handsome, you're like a model. Handsome, perfectly proportioned, how can you be so handsome." Juanita almost let out an ear-splitting scream.

Anderson rushed to cover his ears from that noise

"Just now I looked at the price tag. Six figures. Too expensive, right?" Anderson wanted to take the dress off.

"No, I can afford it, don't worry." Juanita patted her chest, "Why, you look down on me."

"No." Anderson shook his head, "Mommy says you can't accept expensive gifts from other people."

"Am I other people?" Juanita pointed to herself, "I am your godmother! I can tell you, when you were still in the womb, your mommy promised me to be your godmother, you can't deny it."

Karl's home is on a small island in the heart of the lake, not far from the city.

After Juanita finished shopping, she returned home with a large bag.

She could barely hold it in her hand, and had two large bags under her armpits.

When she got to the door, she couldn't open the door herself, so she had to call out to Anderson, "Hey, Anderson, help me press the lock. Oops, no, it's a fingerprint lock. You can't open it either. The password ... password ... is ..."

"Hell, what's the password again?" She frowned, trying to remember, "What do I do? I rarely use passwords, I can't remember!"

Anderson frowned. She bought so many things, almost empty the supermarket.

Anderson finally looked up from the computer with a listless look.

"Got it!" He stressed breathlessly.

"What?" Juanita crossed her arms, "Do you think I'm more nagging than your mother, don't you?"

"Right!" Anderson's eyes were crystal clear.

"Cut, your mommy is so busy, you will have a long time with me! Don't worry, I will treat you well."
Juanita stroked Anderson's soft hair with satisfaction.

Anderson has a disappointed look on his face. He actually knows that Auntie Julia is genuinely fond of him.

Never mind. He would just bear it.

"Come in all, what are you all standing in the doorway for?" Juanita came out from inside the kitchen and greeted everyone warmly.

"Oh." Joyce took the lead and walked into the living room.

Karl's home has a large living room with a hollowed-out ceiling of about three stories and gorgeous
