Chapter 1221

Anderson thought for a moment, narrowed his eyes and shouted in a clear childish voice, "Hello, Grandma!"

Cecelia froze.

Although the heart expects Anderson to be able to guess, but when Anderson really called her grandmother, she felt ecstatic.

Karl was secretly surprised. Although he had heard that Anderson's eq and id are very high, he was still shocked.

He knelt down and asked curiously, "Did Auntie Julia tell you?"

Anderson shook his head, "No. Auntie Julia only said there was an important person coming today."

"So, Anderson, how exactly did you guess that?" Luther stroked through his hair.

Juanita brought the dishes to the table one by one, and Joyce helped to set the table.

Juanita greeted, "Auntie Cecelia, Anderson, all come over for dinner."

Joyce waved her hand towards Anderson, "Anderson, you sit with Grandma."

"Okay, Mommy." Anderson climbed into his seat, and Joyce handed him a raised cushion so he could reach the desk by himself.

Cecelia sat down next to Anderson and looked at him lovingly, one hand still resting on Anderson's waist.

After Karl was seated, the seat next to him was naturally reserved for Juanita.

In this way, the remaining position, Luther and Joyce can only be next to each other.

Luther came over from the window, sat down, and vacated the seat beside him for Joyce.

Joyce froze and frowned slightly.

He took a piece of beef into Juanita's bowl, "Who agreed to the postponement? Don't talk nonsense. The wedding is as usual."

"Oh." Juanita's voice trailed off.

"Michal has been looking forward to this wedding for some years. The Warner family, the Cole family, have helped us enough with the Heath family, so don't let our business affect you." Cecelia slowly spoke.

"After dinner, I plan to go to the Hurley family's secret base and discuss with them about the deployment. The only pity is that I may not be able to attend your wedding, and Michal has made it a point to make sure I'm there. I'll try. If I can appear in public then, I will be there." Cecelia promised.

Karl nods gently.

Juanita asked, "Joyce, what about you? Will you be able to attend our wedding?"

Joyce shrugged, "I'm not sure."

Anderson blinked his big crystal eyes and looked straight at Joyce and Luther.

His question, no doubt, caused huge ripples.

Even Cecelia's face stiffened, she naturally knew that Luther and Joyce had divorced, otherwise how could Luther have gotten engaged to Charlotte four years ago? In the end, this matter, she bears a great deal of responsibility.

She should have stopped it when she didn't know better, but she allowed Charlotte to do so.

Juanita felt the atmosphere was awkward and hurriedly glanced at Anderson.

"Children should not meddle in the affairs of adults. Eat your food!" With that, she chucked a large piece of beef and several shrimp, all piled into Anderson's bowl.

Anderson rolled his eyes, "I'm not a kid, I'm big!"

"Is it wrong for me to ask the question?" He spat out his tongue, "I'm concerned about whether I was born in a legitimate way. Can't I?"

Anderson spat out his tongue, "Sooner or later, we all have to face these things. You all don't mention it, so I have to ask myself. I'm not like you. You like Uncle Karl so much, get the marriage license sooner rather than later, how reassuring!"

"You, you!" Juanita was speechless! Was this a child!? She felt completely defeated.

Karl looked at Juanita's defeated look and couldn't help but look away, trying his best to hold back his laughter.

Joyce knocked Anderson's head, "No big deal. All the people here are your elders. Grandma is still here, so watch your mouth, okay?"

"Whoa whoa." Anderson made a gesture to hold his head, "It's long past the time to discuss right and wrong based on age, whoever is justified is the biggest!"

Cecelia couldn't help but laugh out loud, "Yes, Anderson is right. We are all adults but we don't see things as clearly as he does as a child."

She is pleased to have a grandson with Anderson's high IQ and EQ.

Cecelia held Anderson's small hand in her palm with a doting face.
Luther turned to Cecelia with a solemn look on his face, "I should have called you Mom, Mom, I'm sorry.
Charlotte took the place of Joyce. I had been under the mistaken impression that Charlotte had saved my life before I agreed to marry her. I'm sorry I made Joyce suffer so much over the years."
"I have never been involved with Charlotte, and what she is carrying, is not my child."
Karl duly added, "According to our speculation, Charlotte is most likely carrying the child of Thomas, who was killed by Ricky. That's why Charlotte was in such a hurry to instruct Ricky to kill her."
"On the day of the engagement, Charlotte deliberately fell down the stairs herself. For one thing, she wanted to take the opportunity to abort the child in her womb, and for another, she wanted to frame Joyce," Luther looked at Joyce with apologies.
Joyce raised her eyebrows, "You believe it now? That she directed the whole thing herself?"

"Okay. Then I'll ask a little question that makes everyone happy, okay?" Anderson waved his little hand.

"What do you want to ask?" Julia trembled.

She was already about to have her heart stopped by this little baby. I can't believe he has more questions.

"I want to ask Mommy and Daddy when they're going to give me a brother and sister." Anderson was full of anticipation.

Luther was drinking soup when he heard this and nearly choked out.

"Ahem." He hastily took a few napkins and covered his thin lips so as not to lose his manners.

Joyce's face instantly fell.

Her son was increasingly uncontrollable and mouthy.

"Haha." Julia clapped her hands and said, "That's a good question, good question."

Joyce gave Julia a look.

Pinkrose penthouse.

After the group parted ways at Karl's house, Karl and Cecelia went to the Hurley base together, while Julia stayed home to clean up.

Luther then took Joyce, as well as Anderson, in his car to the Pinkrose penthouse.

This was one of the Capital's most luxurious buildings, with luxury condominiums from the 40th floor up to the top. There is only one unit on each floor.

At the top, it's a three-floor unit. This is also Luther's property at the Capital.

Luther had already instructed Aaron and Casey to move all their stuff to Pinkrose.

When they arrived at the apartment, Aaron was already waiting outside the door.

Although he had known in advance that Joyce was alive and that Joyce was zora, only zora wore a mask, he was excited for a long time and celebrated for a long time.

Anderson yawned, following Julia around outside all day, he was really sleepy now.

"There's a 24-hour spa on the third floor that's hot at all times, partly open air, partly indoors, so Andres you can go straight to the shower." Luther took a change of clothes and pajamas all out of the first floor storage room and handed them to Joyce.

Joyce took it, expressionless, he was thoughtful, and he did all the things without telling her in advance. Of course he can not tell her, after all, he gave her a sedative. Never mind, for the sake of successfully rescuing Cecelia, she does not blame him. After all, he made her worry a lot less.

"Come on, Andres, I'll take you to the shower." Joyce put her arm around Anderson and prepared to walk to the stairs.

Luther pointed out, "There are indoor elevators."

"Oh." She responded.

"Dad, you come and wash with us." Anderson suddenly turned his head and looked at Luther with an expectant look.

The open-air spa on the top floor is truly extraordinary.

Half indoor, half outdoor. The indoor part also came with a glass dome. The starry night was simply beautiful.

Anderson ran around excitedly, bubbling inside and out, sometimes drinking the drink placed next to him, sometimes looking up at the starry sky.

"Okay, Andres, it's time for you to get out." After Joyce had soaked in the hot spring, her whole body felt more relaxed than ever.

She shouted twice, but heard no answer from Anderson.

She walked closer to have a look, it turns out that the little one has fallen asleep on the side of the pool.

She looked down and smiled.

She then got a large towel to Andres from the hot spring. He slept very deeply, eyes tightly closed, his bulging cheeks pink.

"Look at you, after being naughty all day, you're finally tired and asleep." She dotingly pinched his little face bag. Dried him off, then put on his robe pajamas.
