Chapter 1311

Otis said respectfully, "Cabinet Minister, you have suffered."

Ruben waved his hand, "We are all friends, so I am here to give you mediation. But I still want to say a word. No one wants to see warlords, made this way,. You can negotiate and talk about what you have to say on the table. It's not a good thing to always be divided, don't affect Pascaylia's well-being and let others have an opportunity to take advantage of it and cause international repercussions."

Otis nodded, "Cabinet Minister is right about it."

Although Joyce had a smile, the corner of the eye but glanced at Otis, the wolf ambition, the originator.

Ruben asked again, "How is the general's health these days?"

Otis replied, "He's still recuperating, no big deal."

"Oh, does the general know about Joyce yet?" Ruben asked again.

"That's for sure, the general was told about it and was shown videos and photos. Although the general is still lying on the hospital bed, after listening to it, he is in a much better mood." As Otis spoke, he intentionally or unintentionally looked at Joyce.

After Ruben left, Joyce sneered, "Otis, you're a real piece of work."

Otis looked at her with surprise, "In all honesty, I'm not pretending., can't you see that? I am true to you." He pointed to his heart.

"I've sent all the women around me. Haven't touched a single finger of any other woman since I met you. I promise, from now on, you are the only one for me. I will hold you in my heart and love you. I will also treat your son as my own. As long as you give me another one."

His words were spoken with some sincerity.

Inside the eyes, there is a desperate desire to possess the light.

Joyce's long brow is furrowed as she dismisses all the women around her, including the one who killed Charlotte. Only now did she understand that Otis had killed Charlotte, not only for revenge, but also because he wanted to be single again.

She snorted. She would die before she could marry a man like Otis. A sinister, vicious, wolfish man.

She sat upright, and out of the corner of her eye she saw that Luther had arrived at the banquet. He had sought out the Chamber's president and entered the banquet without incident, and at the moment he was standing in the middle of the corner, watching her from afar, silently guarding her.

Soon, the waiter fetched the chips.

The chips in front of Joyce are worth millions.

Otis dealt the cards himself.

Joyce is not really very good at playing Texas Holdem, and her hand is not good enough. Right now, she can't fool them, especially not Otis, who has been at a disadvantage.

Soon, the chips in front of him were lost in two or three hands.

"Oh." Otis laughed at this point, "Major General, you have no more chips in front of you, or you can bet on something else?"

Senator Hughes, who was used to reading colors, said, "What's a family saying, Mr. Robertson, is a major general's. Mr. Robertson, why don't you just give the major general some leverage?"

Joyce particularly resents the term "family".

The presence of Luther and the subtle interactions between him and Joyce make Otis extremely unhappy.

To get Joyce, Luther will be the biggest stumbling block. He inquired that after Joyce regained her identity, surprisingly the two of them are still currently married.

So, first of all, you have to force Joyce to divorce to do so.

Otis looked shady, "Mr. Warner is really generous, why don't Mr. Warner sit down and play a few games too?"

Texas Holdem players are allowed to increase.

Luther stood behind Joyce and propped his hands on the couch, "No, she and I are family. I'll play with her."

Mr. Moore's face changed, a family? It was clear that the words were provoking Otis. Everyone here knew that Joyce was Otis's must-have prey.

Otis finished dealing the cards, his face was even more gloomy, "Mr. Warner is a businessman, why is he now interested in mixing in military and political circles? It does not seem appropriate. There are some circles that do not belong to you. People still have to stay in the right place for themselves."

Senator Hughes saw the atmosphere of saber rattling, and quickly mediated, "two more games, let's end, sitting here for quite a long time, everyone should go to socialize, want to play cards, another day can be another group, I'll be the host."

Another day?, Joyce slightly disdainful look, who would want to hang out with them people.

Luther deliberately lost some money to them. He knew that every move they made today was in the eyes of Euan, and that losing some money to them on purpose had a purpose. euan is an old fox and has to weigh the pros and cons of everything he does. For the party that is too strong, it will raise its guard. It is not appropriate for them to be sharp tonight.

Wait until the poker game is over.

When Joyce got up, Luther thoughtfully helped her put on her coat.

Otis won money today, but he didn't feel good about it.

Looking at the two people in front of him with tacit understanding of their feelings, his heart became even more gloomy.

He called out to Joyce who was ready to leave.

"Calling Karl?" Luther asked when he saw Joyce return.

"Hmm." Joyce nodded, "Worried that Otis might go after him. You heard what Otis just said."

"It's always good to be careful. Should we consider, sending Andres back to Khebury, or sending him abroad?" Luther asked.

Joyce frowned, "With Andres around, we're easier to protect, aren't we? Where we can send them, there's no guarantee that Otis will find them too, and the whip will be more passive. I've thought about what you said. But I don't think, at the moment, Otis wants to fish out of water."

"Also. I'll send more people to covertly protect." Luther gently shook the red wine in his hand.

"There are some political patriarchs over there. You go over and say hello." He pointed to a short distance away.

"Hmm." Joyce nodded her head, since she was here, she always had to entertain.

She walked over and greeted the elders.

Mr. Moore picked up the airsoft gun and demonstrated it on the spot, firing ten shots in a row and hitting all of them without surprise.

At this point, the members of the House were talking, "It seems to be a bit easier. Mr. Moore is not from the science class and his eyesight is not as good as in the past. It is surprising that he could hit all of them."

Mr. Moore after ten shots.

Immediately it appeared that the ten shots Joyce had just fired were meaningless.

Ruben, who knew there would be a stir, stepped forward and said, "There's no other entertainment here either. Forget it today, it's late, let's all disperse."

"Wait. There's a way to up the ante." Mr. Moore's goal tonight is to frustrate Joyce for Otis.

In fact, he has long thought of a method.

Although I had seen Joyce play darts before, and heard that Joyce's air pistol and air rifle levels were extremely high, these were all fixed targets. To play fixed targets is not the same as to play moving targets.

Joyce narrowed her eyes. Seeing Mr. Moore's thieving eyes rolling, she knew he must have had bad intentions.

Luther stepped aside and gently held her arm, giving her firm strength.

Finally, the disgusting party was over.

On the way back to Pinkrose, Joyce breathed a long sigh of relief in the car.

"What? Hate this kind of political activity?" Luther asked as he drove and glanced at her.

"Hmmm. It's more annoying than commercial activities. Business events are nothing but a conspiracy, and the hook-ups here, the faces of those council members are so disgusting." Joyce rubbed her brow.

"Want to get some sleep, it's a long way back." Luther reached over and tugged a blanket from the back seat.

"No, I don't want to sleep." Joyce sat up a little more upright.

She actually felt a bit flustered and confused, with a kind of confusion about the unknown without certainty.

"Your moving target, why did you hit it so well too? Have you practiced?" Luther asked curiously.

"Oops, got it. Have you finished checking? I'm going to take a shower after I'm done." Julia laughed.

"You go now. See you tomorrow, hanging up."

After Joyce hung up the phone.

Luther glanced at her and asked, "What? You always feel uneasy inside?"

"Not really. Just wanted to make a phone call and ask." Joyce put the phone into her bag. In fact, she didn't know what was wrong with her. After the phone call, she didn't feel as relaxed as she thought. The repressed emotions always followed her.

Chapter 1320

Today's wedding was held at the Wester Hotel. It is a European style building with a spacious driveway in front of the door. Enough to accommodate hundreds of wedding cars.

Joyce and Luther arrived at the hotel at exactly 10:00 am.

After getting out of the car, Joyce went straight to the hall where the wedding would be held.

Luther followed along, "Are you unsure, Karl must have had someone check it out."

He pointed to the doorway and the people patrolling back and forth inside, "Look, these are Special Investigation Unit guys. These are plainclothes, you can tell by looking at them, by their posture, and Karl has already set up his control. You're still not sure he's doing his job?"

"Well, I noticed that, and I wanted to line up the line to see if it had been tampered with." Joyce nodded as she tugged on a staff member.

After identifying himself, the person called Karl on the phone.

Only then was Joyce allowed to enter the main engine room.

"You see, Karl is really well thought out, and it's not easy for just anyone to enter the engine room. The whole hotel is strictly controlled by him, it's not easy to mix in a fly."
