Chapter 1381

The time was just the right point to go to work.

He wore only a single coat, which stood out in the cold wind.

For Chris, with his long military training, it doesn't matter how much or how little he wears, he doesn't feel the cold.

It's just that the people who come and go find him weird.

After Chris gave his name, the Special Investigation Unit called Karl for permission and brought Chris to Karl's office.

Karl spent the night with Julia at the hospital last night. Just arrived at the Special Investigation Unit and saw Chris coming to see him.

He was amazed.

"Mr. Hurley, what brings you here? Something wrong?" Karl saw that Chris was wearing only a singlet.

He found one of his jackets on the rack and tossed it to Chris, "You went out without clothes in the morning?"

Karl took another look at Chris and thought he looked different from his usual appearance.

In the morning, because of urgent business.

Luther was up early.

Originally he did not want to disturb Joyce.

But Joyce still woke up because of the movement of him getting up; after all, she had been sleeping in his arms all night.

When he moved, of course she knew.

She rubbed her eyes.

"Will you sleep a little longer?" Luther tenderly planted a kiss on her forehead.

"It's okay, I'm up, are you going to the group headquarters? I'll go with you." Joyce sat up and put on her jacket.

She turned to tuck Anderson in and let Andres sleep a little longer, and when he woke up, Aaron and Mr. Arnold would take care of him.

After packing up, we had breakfast in the dining room.

Luther drove Joyce to the R&S Group headquarters.

The towering building, magnificent, too long not set foot here, Joyce looked up, a slight touch of emotion passed through her heart.

"Hmm. It went well. Why, what's going on over at the Capital?" She asked sharply.

"There's good news." Karl's voice was slightly lighter, "Mr. Hurley has all of Senator Hughes' incriminating evidence, and it's complete enough to put Senator Hughes behind bars for good."

"Ah, so powerful? I originally thought that even if we got the evidence, at most, we would be able to pull Senator Hughes down from the political arena. Now he can be put in jail?" Joyce was extremely surprised, "And this evidence, Chris got it? He?"

"That's right. It was Mr. Hurley, and he said he got it from Nina." Karl said, "Mr. Hurley didn't say exactly how he got it. It seems that Mr. Hurley has not been heard from in the past few days, so he has acted on his own."

"." Joyce responded, always feeling a little strange.

How does Chris communicate with Nina, who is very male-phobic, and how does Chris communicate with her, who comes from a military background and doesn't seem to be considerate and attentive? What had happened in the past few days? Why did she always feel that things were not so simple.

"What's wrong?" Karl heard that she didn't sound right.

"Nothing, it's a shock, I didn't think Chris would be of much help." Joyce laughed, "So, is it necessary for us to go back? What's the earliest we'll need to do that?"

Karl said, "By evening, I'll be able to lock down the evidence. You'd better return to the Capital at night, and maybe in the early morning, the Special Investigation Unit will take action."

Joyce returned to the Warner residence.

Anderson is playing with Mr. Arnold.

When he saw Joyce return, Mr. Arnold called out respectfully, "Madam, you're back."

Joyce smiled and nodded, "Mr. Arnold, I'm back in Khebury this time, I'm on a tight schedule and I have to leave tonight. Next time I come back, I want to go to my grandmother's grave and visit her."

Mr. Arnold said, "Madam has a heart, next time I will arrange it."

"Is the helicopter ready?" Joyce asked again, looking at the time on her phone, "It might have to leave when Luther gets back."

Anderson popped up from the side at this point, "Mommy, do we have to do the helicopter back?"

"Hmm." Joyce squatted down and petted Anderson.

Joyce responded, "Got it."

After hanging up the phone, she checked her equipment over and put it in order.

Luther handed Joyce a night vision device, "you keep it by your side, it may be useful. Later action, you wait for their movement, not as a last resort, you do not strike. A Senator Hughes, and Senator Hughes's father, four special agents can not subdue?"

Joyce understood Luther's concern for her safety, "I know, I'll be careful."

She gave him a look, "Or else, you stay at home with Andres? As soon as there is a situation, I contact you?"

Although he has good hands, and his marksmanship is barely adequate, but after all, it can not resist the professional special personnel.

Luther's face was dark, this woman, did she think he was a burden?

"No, I'm going, I'm afraid you'll mess up." He grunted, "Karl's hands are no better than mine, he's still going, Aaron will be there by 12:00, he'll be in charge of guarding Andres."

"Karl, he's the commander-in-chief, of course he has to go." Joyce rolled her eyes.

"I'll go protect you." Luther expression collapsed, "Two people are always good to look after each other, and you can't have eyes on eight."

The special agents searched through room by room.

Joyce waited in the car, some pressed, heart racing, surprisingly nervous.

Will it really go as well as expected?

Sure enough, the four special agents were the first to radio Karl .

"Captain, there is only one person in the villa who has fainted, we have only captured Senator Hughes' father, Senator Hughes' whereabouts are unknown."

Karl's face sank, "No, Otis must have been informed in advance and tried to get Senator Hughes to escape. We're too late, someone must have leaked the information."

Joyce bit her lip, it was really not as simple as she thought.

At this point, the radio transmits again to Karl.

"Captain, someone here left us a message in lipstick on the mirror. 3:00 a. m., Pier 7."

Luther froze, "Could it be, we were told that Senator Hughes was planning to smuggle himself out of the country from Pier 7?"

Above the mirror, Nina left a hastily written message, "3:00 a. m., Pier 7," and he immediately understood that someone must have helped Senator Hughes move on and escape to a foreign country.

And Senator Hughes, apparently, took Nina with him when he left.

He wonders for what purpose Senator Hughes is taking Nina.

Perhaps Senator Hughes had guessed that Nina had betrayed him and was furious.

All he knew was that he had to save her. Without even thinking, he rushed straight to Pier 7. Even if it was single-handedly, he had to try.

When he reached the dock, he left the car in a slightly remote and isolated area, then drew his gun and approached the warehouse little by little.

As Nina lunges for Senator Hughes, Chris sees the moment and fires two shots, hitting the two black men protecting Senator Hughes with precision.

Because Nina was tied up, she didn't lunge at Senator Hughes with much force.

It didn't work out the way she wanted it to, and even she swooped Senator Hughes into the sea.

Senator Hughes was tackled to the ground and kicked Nina away.

Seeing that Nina was about to fall into the sea, he hastily pulled Nina back. He didn't want to kill Nina, not because she was his blood, but because Nina had changed the password to his money account overseas.

The password is known only to Nina herself.

If he is not told the password, even if he escapes abroad without a penny, what can he do?

Begging in the street? So, she can't die, he must know the password.

However, the sudden sound of gunfire makes Senator Hughes nervous.

There were four men in black protecting him, two had already been hit, and two remained.

All assigned to him by Otis to protect his people.

Hughes yelled, "What are you

Senator Hughes was lying on the ground grunting in pain, his body kept curling up and shaking.
He picked up the knife on the ground and began to cut the rope that Nina was tied to.
"Leave me alone." Nina's voice was slightly hoarse, "Don't save me, you have to go, there are far more than just these people, they will be coming from the warehouse soon when they hear the gunshots."
Chris frowned, "I'm not going to let you die."
The rope is very thick, the knife is not sharp enough, he wasted some effort to cut the rope around her ankle.
Next was the wrist, he tried to untie it and continued to cut with a knife.
"Please, don't save me." Nina bit her lip, her voice trembling, she didn't want to live, she never thought she'd walk out of here alive today, it was all worth it to her to bring Senator Hughes to justice.

Like her, with dirty blood in her body, she is not willing to live in the world.

"Shut up."

Chris fought her off.

Nina mind-blowingly, he said she did well.

She understood what he meant, she was able to collect incriminating evidence and report Senator Hughes . This thing, well done.

Chris has always thought this way in his heart. Growing up in such a family, she was able to get out of the mud, retain her original heart, and punish evil and promote good, she was so much tougher than someone who came from an ordinary family.

While he was changing bullets, a man in black came around from behind.

Eyes on the ground, about to shoot Chris.

Chris frowned, in fact, he had felt it.

In fact, he came in a hurry.

Unexpectedly, Nina beside him, fearing that he would be hit, suddenly pushed him away.

"Bang" a gunshot, the man in black only hit the reef.

And Chris backhanded a shot to the man in black, who instantly fell to the ground.

Although the crisis was lifted, Nina fell backwards due to the backlash of pushing Chris away from them, and they were on the edge of the reef, with the endless sea below.

Her weight was unstable and she fell downward.

Reaching out, she picked up a protruding reef, but the fragile reef simply could not bear her weight.

Chris noticed when it was too late, and by the time he ran to the reef, he only had time to grab a piece of her sleeve.
