Chapter 351

Moreover, the scream from the door just now.

It's familiar, it's Juanita's voice.

Out of the corner of her eye, she glanced at the milk and sandwich sitting on the floor, obviously Juanita had brought her breakfast.

Oh my God, did Juanita see what just happened?

Joyce covered her face with her hands in chagrin, and her pretty face was red all the way to her ears.

Luther stood up, fastened his belt and picked up his jacket.

Turning his head, he looked at Joyce, who was cowering like an ostrich behind him, and reached out to drag her out from under the covers.

"What are you doing!" Joyce puckered her lips in dissatisfaction.

However, the next moment, her lips were sealed by him so fiercely that all her complaints could only be swallowed back.

Charlotte froze at first, forgetting to step out of the elevator for a moment, "Luther, what are you doing here? Is something wrong?"

Luther frowned.

"It's okay."

He gave Charlotte a gentle push as he stepped into the elevator, pushing her out.

"The door is closing; you go out first."

Charlotte was stunned as he pushed her to the elevator, his cold words echoing in her ears.

"Luther, I've made an appointment for 4:00 p.m. today ..."

Just before she finished her words, the elevator slowly closed, and his handsome face could no longer be seen.

She felt hurt and her heart was tight and aching. Biting her lower lip, she took out her phone and edited a text message to him, "Luther, 4 p.m., Riveria Haze, my grandfather and mother are coming."

Just now, he probably didn't hear her.

The whole design was near completion and the finishing work was done quickly.

She looked at the screen with satisfaction and a sense of accomplishment. The work she had left behind some time ago had all been completed with high efficiency, and it was over. In the future, she could devote herself mainly to new projects.

She stood up, stretched her limbs, and walked to the pantry to make herself a cup of coffee.

She needed a boost from the lack of sleep last night.

At this time, Juanita also came to the pantry and came up to ask, "Joyce, what happened to Charlotte today? She came for a while and then suddenly left. Did she get a shock? It feels so strange."

Joyce shrugged, "I don't know."

She had never been able to see through Charlotte.

She asked, "By the way, how did the post about Charlotte go? I was busy and forgot about it and haven't been paying attention."

"..." Juanita didn't expect Joyce to say that, and she could only swallow back what she had wanted to say.

Obviously, Joyce and Luther had feelings for each other, or at least she could see it clearly.

Joyce finished her coffee and gently patted Juanita's shoulder, "Well, don't worry about me."

"But ..." Juanita felt resentful for Joyce, "So we just let Charlotte have her way? Why?"

"But they are a family, how can we stop her? Charlotte is carrying Luther's baby, that's a fact that will never change." Joyce smiled helplessly as she subconsciously reached up to stroke the small of her back. There was a little life growing here, too. But it was destined to be a secret.

Although she was completely unprepared, she gradually accepted the reality and was now even looking forward to the arrival of this little life.

Between her and Luther, there was always Charlotte.

"This one. I don't need to try it on, I'll just change myself when the party time comes." Joyce had never been interested in these, so she picked the simplest one.

"Yes, please come with me to the other room for a moment and I will find you a set of jewelry."

Tina spoke with her head deliberately bowed and her eyes twinkling.

Joyce didn't notice the difference and followed her through the long corridor to another room.

Joyce sat down in the room while Tina brought in several boxes of jewelry for her to choose from.

She chose the simplest diamond necklace.

"Mrs. Warner, you have a great taste." Tina praised.

Then, after looking around the room, Tina said to Joyce with an apologetic face, "Sorry, I suddenly realized that I made a mistake and I didn't bring the earrings. I'm going back to the store to pick them up for you, they are very close to here and I will be back soon. Please rest in your room for a moment."

"It's okay, it's still early." Joyce waved her hand, indicating that she didn't mind.

"Mrs. Warner, thank you so much. You are so generous. I'm sorry, I'll be right back." Tina bowed repeatedly in apology, and immediately afterwards, she hurriedly left the room and pretended to go back for the earrings.

Today, Rodney of the Heath family came in person, and as a courtesy Luther came early to the box.

Jacqueline came even earlier and saw Luther walk in, her hanging heart finally could rest. Before she had been worried that he would not want to deal with the Heath family and simply would not come.

She hurriedly walked up and said, "Luther, it's good that you're here. The old Mr. Heath is old and not in good health, so when you talk later, be careful not to stimulate him."

Luther scanned the box, "Where's Shelly?"

"Oh, I told her to come back a little later, when the party started." Jacqueline said back.

"Well, don't let her get mixed up with it." Luther sat down on the couch, folded his long legs, and began to look through his phone.

He had heard about the reversal of the plot on the major forums today regarding the matter between Charlotte and Joyce.

Cecelia understood what he meant, quickly continued the topic, and said to Luther, "Originally the two families did not take very seriously. Later, we lost Charlotte in an accident and it was put off for many years, and after all the hardships, we finally found her back. So I wouldn't have forced her into marriage. But I never thought that Charlotte and you were actually destined for each other. She once saved your life and was pregnant with your child. The most important thing is that she has a deep love for you, and as a parent, I naturally want to make the marriage happen as soon as possible."

Cecelia finished and gave Charlotte a worried look. She knew that Charlotte's mood, lately, was getting out of whack. Helpless, she could only selfishly consider the benefits of her own child, after all, she owed Charlotte too much.

She then thought of Joyce, what a smart girl! She knew that she was Charlotte's mother and she still saved her. She was such a decent and kind girl and she felt guilty and helpless at heart.

"Yes, Charlotte is well-behaved, polite and cultured girl, and I like her very much. I can't wait for her to become my daughter-in-law." Jacqueline helped in the side.

At that, Charlotte bowed her head shyly.

"Since everyone is here today, let's simply discuss the details of the marriage." Jacqueline nudged Luther secretly, hoping that Luther would hurry to speak up and accept it.

His words were loud and clear, shaking everyone in the room.

Jacqueline's lips quivered with anger, not expecting him to reject it directly in front of the Heath family.

Charlotte's face was even paler, her eyes were moist and slightly red, as if the tears would flow down any minute.

Cecelia frowned. In fact, she had already expected it, after the last meeting with Joyce and Luther, she could see that Luther already fell in love with Joyce, but today when she personally heard his heartless refusal, inevitably she felt bad for her own daughter.

Rodney's face turned livid and he stomped the cane in his hand.

The "thump, thump, thump" sound hit straight to the heart.

"If you don't give me a decent reason today, I'll shoot you! What? Charlotte of the Heath family is not good enough for you, how was she not good enough for you! She saved your life and she's carrying your baby!" Rodney was furious.

"Mr. Heath, I'm really sorry that I can't marry Charlotte. I'm grateful to her for saving me, and I can repay her with whatever she wants, except a marriage. As long as you make conditions, I will find a way to meet them all." Luther responded blandly.

He ignored it all.

I didn't have anyone in mind, I had only a vague concept of marriage, and I thought that I could marry just anyone, there was no difference. Now it's different, I can't do that, I don't love her, and such a marriage is meaningless. An irresponsible marriage, for her, is a much greater harm. I hope this mistake

She could not wait to tear Joyce to pieces. But for the time being, she had no choice but to grit her teeth and hold back.

Suddenly, there was a "ding" sound from her cell phone.

Her heartbeat suddenly accelerated and she secretly moved her phone aside and glanced at it.

It was a message from Tina, "Joyce is already next door. I'm leaving now."

"Good." Charlotte replied to the message.

She took a deep breath to calm her indignation.

In fact, she bribed Tina, the designer responsible for fitting Joyce's clothes today, and asked her to find an excuse to bring Joyce the box next to where they were meeting. The soundproofing was just average and, not surprisingly, Joyce could definitely faintly hear them talking.

Fortunately, probably Joyce did not hear what Luther said just now.

Next, she had to carry on with the acting.

2-3 minutes

Charlotte's words were like dropping a giant boulder into an otherwise quiet pond.

All the people there were shocked.

Cecelia looked incredulously at Charlotte, her own daughter, a love that had humbled her to the bone.
How could she even say such absurd things?

Rodney showed the most terrifying face ever, feeling that his entire family was humiliated by Charlotte.
The daughter of the Heath family, actually for love, were now willing to share a husband with another woman. Wasn't it simply the world's biggest joke?

Jacqueline was silent at this point instead.

For her, if Charlotte could officially marry into the Warner family, and Joyce could only be a shameless mistress, the shares of the Warner family should be well within Luther's control, and there was nothing to lose for her.

A snicker crossed Luther's thin lips as he stood up from the couch.
