Wrong marriage and sweet love (Joyce and Luther)

Chapter 441

It was too unbelievable for him to believe. He could never do such a thing. There must be a mistake, or someone had tampered with his cell phone.

His tone was detached and freezing cold.

Joyce's heart "stuttered", she always felt that something was wrong with him. The way he looked at her brought her back to the first time she met him.

Previously Aaron was not clear on the phone. He told her Luther had some abnormalities and said nothing more than that.

And she had no idea what's wrong with Luther.

"Are you okay? Is there something wrong with your health?" Joyce thought for a while and decided to say something about his health. After asking, she felt annoyed, since she was going to leave his life completely. Why would she even bother to have that much involvement with this man. She should be just visiting him like any friend and said nothing more.

"Forget it. I can see you are in good shape. Definitely nothing is wrong. Then I will go first." She didn't wait for his answer and added directly.

The man in front of her had always been quite moody, and sometimes she could not understand what was on his mind at all.

Joyce stepped into the elevator, pressed for the first floor, and closed the door.

Inside stood two young nurses who had just ended their shifts and who were whispering.

"Mr. Warner from the intensive care VIP ward is awake, you know?"

"I know, he's so handsome. It's the first time I've seen him in person, I've only seen him on magazine covers before. I want the hospital to transfer me to the special ward, so I can see him a few more times."

"I heard he had amnesia and had lost part of his recent memory."

"Really! No wonder the doctors had an emergency meeting this afternoon. So it's because of this. But what do you mean by recent memory?"

"Yeah. It's so strange that Mr. Warner only lost part of his recent memory. I've never heard of that before. Usually, patients with prefrontal impact would either lose all of their memory and can't even remember who they are, or they lose some of their memory related to the car accident."

"Hey, whatever, leave that to the doctors to worry about. Tomorrow I'll see if I can switch my shifts and sneak in and take a look."

She had to do her own snooping and find solid evidence against Charlotte.

She had never harmed anyone, and she would never tolerate Charlotte's nasty tricks. An eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth. Charlotte would have to pay the price!

Charlotte saw Shelly and Jacqueline standing outside the door, she waved at them, " Jacqueline, Shelly, you're here too!"

Joyce frowned. She didn't want to meet Jacqueline and Shelly.

But she just met them every time, and it seemed too rude for her to just walk away from them.

Jacqueline came toward Charlotte and said, "Luther just woke up and I am quite worried. I'd better come over and keep him company tonight."

Shelly followed up, also carrying a thermos box in her hand, "My mom went back to get my brother some pork ribs porridge. My brother hardly ate anything at noon, I guess he must be hungry. Charlotte, what do you bring?"

"Oh, it's fish soup." Charlotte said softly, "I thought you might also bring something, so I prepared the stew."

Luther propped up his forehead with one hand, staring blankly at the note in front of him. It was true that she really paid off the money.

So what? It didn't mean anything. After all, 10% of R&S had already been transferred to her, and the $800,000 was at best a drop in the bucket, not worth mentioning. He was just right, she had a purpose from the beginning, and now her purpose had been achieved. She divorced him without hesitation and threw herself into Justin's arms.

And, she was pregnant, more than three months now, and more than three months ago, he just met her. It's ridiculous that it's Justin's baby, what a big cuckold for him!

His heart surged with inexplicable emotions. Feeling annoyed, he crumpled up the note and threw it into the trash.

At that moment, there was a knock at the door.

This had given her a lot of headaches and she really could not do anything about it.

For one thing, she didn't know how to explain the whole thing to the Heath family. Secondly, Charlotte's belly was getting bigger and bigger, and if they didn't get married soon, she would be seen as a joke.

Then again, she was also afraid that if the divorce was delayed for a long time, there would more accidents, and Joyce might return one day.

Right now, the time was just right.

Luther had forgotten about his growing feelings for Joyce, and this was the perfect time to break their intimate relationship. Most of the remarks on the Internet were unfavorable to Joyce anyway.

Perhaps Luther would remember everything again, but she was not worried about that. What was done could not be undone, what could he do anyway?

Jacqueline was relieved after she told Luther all the things about the shares.

Right now there was still the problem of Charlotte, and it would be perfect if they could solve it too.

She saw Luther's surveying gaze falling on Charlotte.

She made a gesture to wipe her tears and said to Charlotte, "We should not have let you hear it. It's so embarrassing."

Charlotte waved her hand, "Why, Jacqueline? Your business is my business. If there is anything you need from the Heath family, just let me do it."

A smile of satisfaction hung from Jacqueline's lips, "Oh, Charlotte, there is indeed something I would need your help with!"

It seems that this time the capital government wants to build their latest and largest CBD in the Capital, and this bidding will be the center of their construction project. They will build the tallest landmark building in this country, and there will be quite a good number of commercial buildings, subway stations, high-speed rail stations and everything. "Well, got it. I'll think about it carefully." Luther responded, and indeed Jacqueline did have a point here.

Although the R&S Group could do whatever it wanted in Khebury, controlling the lifeblood of the nation's economic powerhouse. But over time, it still had to find a way to reach out to the Capital, the center of power.

This real estate bidding by the Capital was indeed a good opportunity for the Warner family to gain a foothold in the Capital.

And the Heath family, indeed, was the fastest and best shortcut they could take.

After all, the Heath family was a warlord family, and everyone in the political and military circles were afraid of their power.

"I can help. Just say it whenever you need me."

Charlotte could see that Luther did not like other people to interfere. She lowered her head and silently twisted the hem of her dress with both hands, showing her "cultured" shyness.

Suddenly, she covered her lips with her hand and her face went white.

Jacqueline was trembling all over with excitement, and the day had gone so unexpectedly well for her.

It was a surprise that Luther himself agreed to be engaged to Charlotte first.

"I'll find a right time, as early as possible. It's almost four months and Charlotte's belly is going to get bigger and bigger. We still have a lot to prepare." Jacqueline began to do her calculation, unable to hide the joy on her face.

Charlotte finally stopped her dry heaving in the bathroom and washed her face with warm water before walking out with Shelly.

When she saw how happy Jacqueline was, Charlotte guessed what was going on, and her heart couldn't help but feel agitated. She didn't expect she could survive such a great challenge, and now everything was now in her favor.

"What's wrong? Mom, why are you so happy?" Only Shelly had no idea what happened and asked stupidly.

Jacqueline stood up, pulled Shelly with her, and said to Luther, "We'll go first, you should talk to Charlotte. You're getting engaged, and you may want to discuss the details yourselves. We don't have much time and I still have a lot of things to take care of."

That's why he agreed to the engagement.

But why? After he agreed, his heart was filled with a burst of resistance and uncomfortable feeling? Or was it because his body had not fully recovered after the accident that he felt uncomfortable all over?

He stood up in annoyance.

He took two steps, and made a call to the nurse's counter, and said, "Now help me with the discharge process."

The room was now full of the smell of the perfume left by Charlotte, and he found it unbearable to stay for a minute.

Since he woke up, there was no need to stay in the hospital, and Jamie was perfectly capable of handling the rest of the treatment.

The immediate priority was to find out as soon as possible what kind of changes had occurred in the R&S Group and at home since he lost his memory.

For the next two days, Joyce went to work as usual, with occasional overtime.

"Okay." Joyce's brain was hot and she impulsively agreed to Justin.

In fact, Justin called her almost every day, and she had refused several times. Today, perhaps because she heard that Luther was getting engaged, her mood was affected. She simply agreed. Anyway, she just had to face it sooner or later.

On the other end of the phone, Justin was clearly excited, "Joyce, great, you've finally agreed. Then I'll meet you at Eden Apartment tonight, I want to talk to you alone."

"Got it." Joyce didn't object either.

She didn't know why Justin's father, Garrett Henderson, had insisted on seeing her, but she knew it had to be no good. The dark memories of her past were firmly etched in the marrow of her bones.

Hiding was not an option, so it's better to end it.

"Okay, I will wait for you then."

"Hmm." Joyce frowned lightly and hung up the phone.
