Chapter 501

Joyce was about to meet Karl in the evening for dinner. She wanted to let Karl know that she had seen Charlotte at Skymall in the afternoon and that Charlotte was with her accompanying lieutenant.

Karl happened to be downtown on an errand, and it could be seven or eight in the evening before he could finish his work.

So Joyce went downtown early to wait for him for a while.

She found a cafe with casual meals, ordered a mocha coffee first, and sat down to wait for Karl.

In order not to cause any misunderstanding, she also sent a text message to Juanita, telling her that she had a personal matter to talk to Karl about the case.

Soon after, Juanita sent a witty reply.

"Well, I, his future girlfriend, approve!"

Karl tapped the tabletop with his middle knuckle with a crisp ring.

At that moment, the waiter brought up two set meals. Pork Chop Macaroni and Cheese, Salad, and Tomato Bisque.

"Please enjoy your meals." The waiter took away the empty plates, curtsied, and said before she retreated.

"Eat up. Sure enough, the fabulous Karl has noticed it all. It seems I've done more than I should today." Joyce joked as she ate up.

"How come? I just noticed such a person around Charlotte and checked it out. But I wasn't aware that there was an ambiguous relationship between the two of them. So you have made a significant discovery." Karl praised, "Luther seems to be unaware of the ambiguous relationship between Charlotte and Ricky?"

"I'm not sure what he's thinking. And ..." Joyce said, frowning.

There were about seven military vehicles parked at the intersection, some Hummers, some jeeps, and even two military trucks.

Joyce pointed to one of the Hummers and said, "I've seen this kind of vehicle before. It was the military Hummer that the Heath family used to send to R&S Group headquarters to pick up Charlotte."

"You're right. We are indeed close to the Heath residence." Karl replied.

"Ah." Joyce wasn't expecting this at all. After all, she had never been to Charlotte's house, "You even looked into this?"

"Of course. Walking in from this intersection, there's a European-style villa with a steeple, which is where the Heath residence is located. With so many military vehicles parked here tonight, the Heath family must be up to something big." Karl stared, shaking his head, "And, not in a good way."

"What can go wrong?" Joyce suddenly felt strange in her heart, somehow breathless. Strange, even if something happened to the Heath family, what did it have to do with her, an outsider? Why would he feel sad?

She thought of the gentle and spirited Cecelia, the kind and amiable Rodney, and her mind was slightly moved.

Charlotte was, they were

The soldier hesitated a bit and exchanged words with another soldier and finally said, "We need to ask for instructions, just a moment."

"Good." Karl waited in place.

A few moments later, a soldier came out from inside after asking for instructions and returned the ID to Karl, "The general has instructed you to go in."

"Go."

Karl took Joyce with him.

The coroner said politely to Karl in a hurry, "Please come with me. Although the scene has been cleaned, I have saved the photos and will show them to you together."

"Good." Karl turned to Joyce and said, "I'll take a look at the scene, and you stay here for a while."

"Well, I'm going over to have a word with Cecelia." Joyce nodded and walked to the side.

Cecelia sat alone in the corner, her eyes empty as if her soul had been taken away, lifeless. She did not even notice Joyce, only immersed in the great pain.

Joyce stepped forward, bowed gently to Cecelia, and said respectfully, "Cecelia, I'm sorry for your loss."

"Cecelia, don't blame yourself too much. It could be just fate. Accidents happen all the time and we can't expect them. You are not God, you can't do everything. Even God has things he can't do. You are the most competent person I have ever met."

Joyce tried to comfort her. She still wondered, "What a coincidence it was that Ricky just happened to go to the Capital? It seemed that Ricky left Khebury in a hurry after they met, and Charlotte took the subway back to the Heath family alone. Since she became the daughter of the Heath family, she has never seen Charlotte take the subway, which is, in her eyes, only for the lower class."

In addition, Mr. Heath died so suddenly, and so coincidentally Charlotte also had a car accident at the same time.

Was it just that misfortunes never came singly?

She always felt something must be wrong.

On the other hand, Joyce was comforting Cecelia.

At that moment, Charlotte suddenly trotted in through the door. Her hair was disheveled, she looked flustered, and she was still wearing the white hospital gown of the military hospital, running directly to Cecelia.

Cecelia froze, "Charlotte, what are you doing back here? Should you not just stay in the hospital?"

The next moment, Charlotte had already jumped into Cecelia's arms.

"Mom, I heard that something happened to Grandpa?!"

"Charlotte, Grandpa he has ... has passed away ..." Cecelia choked out, trying to hold back her tears in front of her child.

Cecelia couldn't help but stand up and walk over to Charlotte, squatting down to comfort her,

"Charlotte, calm down. Be careful of your body. I was afraid to tell you because I was afraid that you would be like this. But you still know."

"Oooh, the whole Capital Military District knew about it, and only I was kept in the dark. Can I not know?" Charlotte's face was swollen from crying, and she lifted her arms to wipe her tears and nose as if she could not care less about her manners now, "Mom, how could you keep this from me? I want to stay with Grandpa, let me stay with him tonight. I want to be with him for the last time."

Actually, it was Ricky who told Charlotte.

In Ricky's opinion, Charlotte should have gone home, and now Rodney suddenly had an accident. He did not know whether it was related to Charlotte. So, although he had arrived in the Capital, he immediately called Charlotte.

Naturally, Charlotte pretended she didn't know anything.

She lied that she did not go home. She suddenly needed to buy something and made another trip to a clothing store. Then on her way home, she was accidentally hit by a car.

Ricky didn't get suspicious. As far as he was concerned, Rodney was Charlotte's real grandfather. He told Charlotte to take care of her health and not to be sad. After saying a few more words, he hung up the phone.

Karl was keenly aware of Joyce's intentions. They hadn't seen Charlotte when they came in earlier, and Charlotte had suddenly returned, so he was able to try her a bit.

"There's really nothing suspicious about the scene." Karl said, "It looks like Mr. Heath was going up the stairs, and he fell backward down the stairs."

"Upstairs?" Cecelia asked in surprise, "I thought Dad fell down because he was in a hurry to answer the phone and was in a hurry to get downstairs."

"No way. If that's the case, his back of the head would never be like that. I'm pretty sure he definitely fell backward." Karl used the word "definitely". He rarely uses such absolute words.

Charlotte's eyelids were "popping" at this point. Damn it, she hadn't thought of that! Indeed, Rodney was bending over to pick up the toothbrush with his back to the stairs, when he was pushed down the stairs by her sneak attack.

Cecelia frowned lightly, "Falling backward? But when I came back, I saw Dad lying here with his crutches still in the middle of the stairs. Surprisingly, Dad would fall down on his back if he was on crutches going up the stairs?"

Cecelia took the card.

The surname "Gregory" was not that common in the country. When she heard it just now, she felt something.

"Chester Gregory, perhaps you know him?" Cecelia said what was in her mind out loud.

"He's my father." Karl did not avoid it and smiled slightly.

Cecelia's eyes lit up, "So your mother, is Michal Cole?"

Karl nodded subconsciously. Few people knew about his mother, Michal, who had always kept a low profile and rarely showed up in the high society celebrity circle. At most, there were a few close friends in the circle whom she would occasionally meet in private. In fact, Mayor Sanchez's wife was also a close friend of his mother. That's why Mayor Sanchez was so eager to set up a marriage between him and his daughter Julia.
