Chapter 731

Anderson was running around the airport alone.

Joyce got her handbag back from the security guard and went to the suitcase and found that Anderson was gone. She got a chill down her spine and hurriedly searched around the airport lobby and finally saw Anderson in front of the bathroom door.

She immediately rushed forward and wrapped Anderson tightly in her arms.

"Anderson, why don't you wait for me and why are you running around? Do you know how worried I was?"

Anderson was her life. She absolutely could not let Anderson to have any accident.

"What's wrong, Mommy? I just went to the bathroom and it was urgent!" Anderson made an exaggerated gesture.

"Got it. You really scared the hell out of me. So are you done yet?" Joyce asked.

"How many times have I told you not to hit people with slingshots, so what if you hit someone in the eye?" Joyce reprimanded slightly.

"I won't. I am a pretty good shot! It would be such a shame for me to hit someone in the eye." Anderson pouted disdainfully.

Joyce lamented in her heart. She didn't want to confiscate his slingshot. She had not spent much time with him. In Mufron it was often the nanny who took care of him, and the slingshot was his favorite toy. She couldn't bear to take it away.

Anderson inherited her talent for shooting.

It showed from a very young age. The first time he picked up a dart, he was able to hit the bullseye. With the slingshot, it was pretty much just the same, and it did not take him too much time before he could shoot rather precisely.

"Be careful in the future." She couldn't bear to be harsher to him and didn't say any more.

"Mommy, did that handsome uncle just now bully you? Mommy looked very bad when Mommy was talking with him." Anderson's crystal eyes flickered slightly as he asked curiously.

Joyce's face changed slightly. This child indeed had a pair of extraordinarily sharp eyes. Even his IQ and EQ were both surprisingly high. She really had no idea how she could have a child like him.

"Sister, you must be tired. You can rest for a while after we get in the car."

Kane held Anderson with one arm and took Joyce's suitcase with the other.

"It's okay, I'm fine with it. Anderson might be a little tired."

Joyce smiled, "It was his first time to come to the Capital of Pascaylia, and he was so excited that he didn't sleep well the whole way."

Soon they arrived at the underground parking lot.

Kane carried Anderson into the car, then put the luggage in the trunk, and finally opened the passenger door for Joyce.

Joyce indeed appreciated his gentlemanly manners. After all, he had grown up in Epristan since he was very young.

Joyce got into the car and Kane closed the door. He got into the driver's seat, and habitually tried to help Joyce put her seat belt on.

"I'll just do it myself."

Joyce stopped and smiled lightly.

A flash of disappointment crossed Kane's bright eyes and he said discontentedly, "Sister, you treat me too much like an outsider."

After this internship, Kane never left.
Joyce gave a sideways glance at Kane, who was also a rare genius in electronics.
After a series of grade skips, he was only twenty this year.
All along, she had treated him as her brother.
"Sister."
Kane naturally and smoothly called out, "It's just a toy, and why is it a waste of money?"
"Little kids like Anderson love these things now."
Anderson sat back. He had unpacked the game console out easily and had been playing it.
"Put your seat belt on. I'm going to drive."
Kane cautioned.
"Got it. Nagging!" Anderson pouted and grumbled as he fastened his seat belt.
"I'm not a child."

Kane did not notice Joyce's abnormality and said to himself.

"This real estate project in the Capital will create the newest and largest CBD. There will be a national landmark building in the center of the project and around it there will be commercial buildings, subway stations, and high-speed railway stations all together. Now, they are already done with the foundation part and all the outsourced projects are in the bidding stage."

"Sister. They are currently very interested in our AI subject. If we can take this big order from them, JK Intelligence can immediately go up to another level." Kane stopped the car and waited for the traffic light.

"We are almost there. I'll just turn right and then left and we will be home." He tapped the steering wheel with excitement.

"I didn't even know that you live in the Capital," Joyce said with a casual, natural smile.

"Ah, this ..." Kane's eyes had a momentary twinkle, "Actually, I rent this place. I don't live with my parents. You know, I prefer to be alone and I will be more comfortable that way."

"I think so." Kane was secretly surprised and turned his head to look at Joyce, "Sister. Are you also interested in this project?"

Joyce turned her head to look out of the car window.

The scorching sun sprayed a golden layer all over the earth, and the blinding, dazzling light reflected by the distant skyscrapers shone directly towards her eyes.

The corners of her lips hooked up in a sexy and demonic arc, and the daylight added extra glamour to her beauty.

The words burst out clearly from the teeth, "Since we are here, why not?"

Kane was stunned at this moment when he saw the unworldly beautiful side face of Joyce.

The beauty of her face, in fact, was not important, and the most important thing was her temperament. He was deeply impressed by her unworldly aloofness and pride at the first sight of her when she was standing on the podium.

Meanwhile.

Luther and Casey waited at the airport for a long time. After the flight they were waiting for had landed and all the people were gone, they still didn't see the Miss Zora they were waiting for.

"President, could it be that we have missed it? After all, the flight arrived earlier than schedule today." Casey looked around, "Also, we hadn't seen Miss Zora even once at all. I had expected that there would be someone else at the airport to pick her up, and we would just have to stop them midway. But Miss Zora did not ask the organizer of the Summit to pick her up, either. We can only expect better luck next time."

Luther looked disappointedly at the empty waiting area for departing passengers.

What was he expecting? He was simply too eager.

"Go." Luther said in a cold voice. If they did not go, more passengers from the next flight would come out.

They just wasted a trip today.

No, it wasn't really a waste of time.

This time, it would be a big deal if they could settle down the advertising and promotion part of the real estate project with Roberts Media.

It seemed that the president was completely unconcerned about all of this.

Casey sighed grimly and didn't say any more.

Meanwhile.

Kane carried Anderson upstairs.

The apartment door was voice-activated and Kane shouted at the door, "Open Sesame".

The door lock then opened up automatically.

Joyce immediately laughed out loud, "How old are you, and you still use a password like Open Sesame. Are you kidding me?"

"Sister. This voice-activated door lock is also a product designed by our company. I asked the manufacturer for one so that I could try it out. How about it? Not bad, right?" Anderson was sleeping so Kane spoke very quietly.

"It's okay, and it's not really high tech. We just improved its design application. It's not unusual." Joyce pushed the door open.

Kane worked in the kitchen for over an hour and then brought out several dishes, all of which were authentic specialties of the Capital.

"Come on, Anderson, it's all your favorites."

Anderson climbed onto the table, "Wow!" He praised, "You can just cook everything! It looks pretty good." After saying that, he directly grabbed a chicken leg with his meaty little hands and began gnawing.

"Hey, did you wash your hands before you ate?" Kane questioned, resting his hands on his waist.

"I did, when I just walked in the door. You nagging old man." Anderson waved his hand impatiently, with a tinge of maturity that did not belong to him.

"Old man?" Kane touched his super sunny and handsome cheeks and stared incredulously, "I'm old? I'm only 20 years old!"

"Compared to me, of course, you're an old man." Anderson slurred his words with his mouth stuffed with chicken.

Joyce shook her head wryly.

"As long as he has a computer, he can stay in the room all day."

"Sister. Anderson is obviously a computer genius, and he has been way better than I am in so many games. Moreover, he can modify the game program now. In the future, he will definitely be a genius

Joyce held her forehead helplessly. She really had no idea how she could have such a child.
