

My Sweetheart

Chapter 13 My Sincerity in Marriage

• • •

Alexia froze, watching Joseph's footsteps stopped in front of Kathy. "Are you free today?"

Kathy shook her head. She had to take Alexia home.

"What plan do you have?"

"I'm taking Alexia home. She's not feeling well."

"I'll take her back first and you need to go with me to somewhere later." Joseph said in a command tone.

Kathy frowned, and Alexia immediately said, "Kathy, follow with Dr. Joseph. I'll just go home by myself."

"No, I'll send you back home first." Kathy put her arm around Alexia's arm.

In the car, Alexia was too scared to talk and only sent messages to Kathy.

Kathy was in the passenger seat, and Alexia's messages just kept coming in.

"Really married?"

"Really."

"When did it happen?"

"A week ago."

"How did you meet each other?"

"... A blind date."

Kathy frowned. It was true that she and Joseph met on a blind date, but she was dating with other man.

"God, you even have such high-quality man? Oh, I also want!"

Kathy frowned, couldn't help to think of Billy. She didn't know him well, and he was even very angry when he knew that she had a boyfriend in the coffee shop, both leaving unhappily. .

But when he saw her off a few days ago, he was gentle.

"Keep watching for me."

Kathy and Alexia were texting, and Joseph saw that, frowned, and he put his foot down on the gas pedal, but Kathy didn't pay attention, almost hit.

Joseph put his hand over her forehead and said, "No texting."

Kathy blinked. Joseph's eyes were with deterrence. She just put the phone away.

Alexia looked at the couple in front of her. This was a public display of affection.

After taking Alexia home, Joseph and Kathy headed to a senior residential area in downtown, not far from the people's hospital.

"What are you doing here?"

Kathy got out of the car and looked at the tall apartment building. Joseph took her up to the top floor.

"This is our wedding house."

Kathy was shocked and walked through the walk-in garden, where the house was still raw and bare.

"Do you like here?" Joseph asked, leading her out onto the balcony, where she could see nearly half of the city.

It was a world away from where she had lived since she was a child.

"Yes." Kathy nodded foolishly.

"Here is the design drawing for the decoration. Let me know what style you like or any of your idea."

Joseph handed over the tablet.

Chose the one she liked?

"You just decide." Kathy just came to her sense and looked at Joseph, "Actually we are not the real couple, and you don't have to be like this."

"This is my sincerity to our marriage, Kathy, we have to give a vivid performance, you know?" Joseph touched her head.

But it was also... too vivid.

"Are we going to live here?" Kathy asked.

"Yes, the decoration will take at least two months. During this time we stay at the old house."

Kathy looked down at the design carefully, and finally chose the simplest Japanese style. She didn't like the gorgeous style, simple is good.

"Tell me what you want."

"No more." Kathy looked at Joseph. He was charming in his seriousness.

She turned her head and her eyes grew moist.

She seemed not to have got used to the married life, but Joseph had already made arrangements for her.

"Now, Mrs. Joseph, let's go home for meal." Joseph always managed his time well.

"How about my living in my own house during this time?" Kathy put forward.

"Why?" Joseph's face changed, it was not anger but you still could feel his strength.

"I need some time to get used to it." Kathy whispered.

• • •