My Sweetheart

Chapter 21 A Passionate New Marriage

On the top floor, it was the first time Kathy came up here, and the long corridor led directly to the unique office.

All along the way, she was surrounded by kinds of gossips. She was an employee who could not be more ordinary. How could she be summoned by the new boss in person!

Kathy frowned and entered the office discontentedly, while Joseph was sitting on the sofa gracefully with big long legs overlapped, showing the powerful and domineering aura.

At the moment, Kathy felt even more strange at him.

"Mrs. Joseph." As soon as he spoke, Kathy ran to cover his mouth immediately.

Also, she quickly turned to look at the door, fortunately, it was closed.

"...What are you doing?" Kathy uttered infuriatedly. Joseph hadn't told her that he was the new boss. However, he already knew that she was working in NCHV Medical Company Obviously!

"Come here." Joseph took her to his side and sat down with no answer to her question, never caring that it was in the office.

And someone would come in anytime

"Why don't you tell me?" She still asked.

Joseph frowned and looked at her angry face. "It's my business. If Mrs. Joseph wants to know the details of my work, I'm glad to report."

Joseph sat in the car with squinting at Kathy, following behind her in a certain distance.

Then she was alarmed by a flare of trumpets, finding his car was only few meters away her while turning round.

And there was a long traffic jam behind his car.

Greatly panic-stricken, Kathy thought what the hell Joseph was doing!

Fortunately, the dining hall was just ahead of her, and directly she walked in.

She deliberately picked a private room for there must be some employees eating where it was quite close to company.

"Nice environment here." Joseph came over.

Kathy felt something wrong here where it was small soft leather semicircle sofa, leading to an intimate distance for them.

Naturally, Joseph occupied most of the place because of his long legs.

Rather cramped here, Kathy felt ill at ease.

"Would you go back to hospital afternoon?" Kathy asked, in an attempt to break the silence after the order.

By the way, she moved a lot over the other side, keeping her distance.

The man drooped his eyes, with his face placid still.

"Hmm, there'll be an operation later, and tonight

At this moment, Joseph put one of his arms around her waist, with his lip approaching hers, saying,

After walking out of the restaurant, Kathy just found that she still took Joseph's arms actively, thus immediately put her hands down.

"You used me just now, and now want to get rid of me?" Joseph squinted, with happiness in his eyes.

He was very satisfied with what Kathy just said, "My husband".

"What else would you like to?" Kathy looked at him.

Joseph hung up his thin lips and suddenly held Kathy's face with his handsome face close to her.

Kathy was startled with a little nervous, thinking Joseph was going to kiss her.

But all he did was to put her hair behind her ears, breaking the heart rhythm of Kathy.

"A full set of acting."

Joseph said, and Kathy just saw through the French windows that Herbert was still looking at them.

Kathy frowned and sat in Joseph's car. Then Kathy recovered and realized this place was greatly close to NCHV Medical Company, so she wanted to get off and walk back.

"Accompany me to the hospital." Joseph ordered.

"However, I need to go to work." Kathy frowned. The personnel department had just informed that from now on the attendance regulations must strictly be followed and they all should never be absent from work.

At dusk, Kathy estimated that it would be very late to finish the lasting half of the medical records that have not been entered, and had no ideas when Joseph would finish the surgical operation. So she intended to go home alone. But Kathy was obsessive-compulsive, so she continued her work very soon.

It wasn't until 12 a.m. that Joseph came out of the operating room. Zohm Smith, the leader of the Smith family, came over and asked, "Doctor, my daughter..."

"The operation went well." Joseph briefly replied.

Zohm could not conceal his excitement and felt relieved, "Doctor Joseph, thank you so much."

Joseph remained calm as always. He went to the office immediately at the thought of Kathy. Walking before the door of his office, he told the nurse behind him, "you all stayed in Lily Smith's ward and informed me immediately if there is any situation."

In the office, Kathy, wearing rimless glasses and tucking her long hair up, was looking at the computer carefully.

Joseph stopped and softened his cool eyes.

Kathy didn't notice his coming until Joseph put his arms around her.

Joseph frowned and looked at Lily who was in a coma and lay on the bed. "I'm just in the office nearby, so I will know if anything happens."

That made Zohm relieved.

"Joseph, this is Lily's data changes of her body within half an hour." Christine followed Joseph and reported to him.

Joseph nodded and said, "We should reduce the dosage by half because the rejection occurred tonight."

"All right, Doctor Joseph."

Kathy was looking for Joseph and felt relieved to see him back.

He was in a doctor's gown. Did he back to work again just now? Why couldn't he go to sleep in such a late time?

Kathy looked worriedly at him and couldn't help coming closer.

"Where did you go?" She asked in a voice of little reproach.

Christine received Kathy before, knowing that the relationship between Kathy and Joseph was not simple, so she couldn't help taking a few more look at Kathy.

Lily was unconscious for a short time and finally woke up in the morning and Joseph came over quickly to examine her.

"Dr. Joseph, right?" Lily opened her eyes and looked at the handsome man in the white coat before her.

"Hmm." Joseph's face was consistently indifferent.

"I know you won't let me die." Lily subconsciously grabbed him by the hem of his shirt.

Joseph pushed her away with some displeasure and put down the case, "Miss. Lily, I'm a doctor, and you're a patient. That's the only relationship we have."

"Nonsense, my father has told me that you have kept me up all night, and you saved my life. Dr. Joseph, you are my benefactor." Lily said weakly but loudly.

Joseph seemed that he didn't listen to her word. He gave Lily medicine, told her some things to be aware of and left.

Lily couldn't get out of bed to stop him and had to let the bodyguard at the door block Joseph.

"Miss. Lily, I have work." Joseph turned back and his word was full of discontent.

"My father has already told the dean that until I am completely well, you will only be responsible for me." Lily said condescendingly.

Her face sank with worry, only to remember that Joseph hadn't had a rest in two days.

"Then we'll go home, not back to the hospital!" Kathy took the initiative to hold him.

Joseph's lips rose and was pleased with her initiative.

In Joseph's house, Kathy had brought her own luggage this morning, and now that the maids all them. There was absolutely no need for her to worry.

As soon as Joseph returned, he went up to his room and quickly fell asleep. He was obviously exhausted.

Kathy ordered the servants not to wake him and went to the kitchen.

The Joseph Family had maids for three meals a day, but Kathy was uncomfortable with being cared for like this. She always thought about what she could do.

Seeing the maid cooking, Kathy went in to help.

Having stayed here for a few days, she also probably knew Joseph and Mathew's tastes. They liked plain food, and she can make simple dishes.

"Mrs. Joseph, you should go to rest. This kind of thing should be done by us." The maid couldn't dare let Mrs. Joseph cook. These things should be done by maids.

However, Kathy insisted. Besides, she had nothing to do when she was off work. Doing cooking was also good.

The maids didn't dare to disobey Kathy. She cooked alone in the kitchen, but the maids kept a nervous was content to serve the dish.

"Put it down." Hearing Joseph's command, Kathy dared not move.

She sat down and felt aggrieved.

This sentiment came inexplicably.

"You are my wife. You don't need to work so hard." Joseph sinks his voice.

Kathy frowned and was just about to retort. Then Joseph's cell phone rang. Something seemed urgent that his delicate brow furrowed.

After taking the call, Joseph didn't continue to eat. He turned around and headed upstairs.

It didn't take long for Joseph to change and come down. He saw Kathy clean the dining table. He came over and intimately held her in his arms.

"I'm going to the hospital and I maybe don't get back tonight. You go upstairs to have a rest. The maids will deal with these things."

Kathy nodded her head. After Joseph went out and she came back, she found that Joseph had eaten all the food.

She couldn't help but chuckle.

At that moment, a thunderous roar suddenly sounded outside, and it didn't take long for the rain to pour down.

Kathy ran out with her umbrella, while Joseph already drove away.

Lily was once again pushed into the operating room. This accident had alarmed the dean. And a number of people of the Smith's Family had come over early. They all blocked the door to the operating room.

It was three hours before Lily was pushed out and Joseph removed his mask. His face became serious

"Dr. Joseph, what's going on? Isn't Lily out of danger?" Lily's father Zohm walked forward and expressed worry.

"The patient was allergic to methylcobalamin, causing rejection in the body." Joseph sank his voice.

"Is there methylcobalamin in the drug you're prescribed?" Zohm panicked for the drugs his daughter was taking he was aware.

Joseph was silent and his brow still furrowed.

The dose of methylcobalamin in his previously prescribed medication was so small as to be almost negligible.

And now, it's not known when the large dose of methylcobalamin was added which was so irritating that Lily's body was overwhelmed.

Lily was still in a coma, and Zohm immediately ordered people to investigate the event. And then he angrily came to Joseph's office to question him.

"Joseph, did you do it on purpose?" Zohm's face was cold. Lily's allergy to methylcobalamin had been tested before. He assumed Joseph knew full well, but Joseph added it.

"Kathy, you are really lucky! Since you marry, you will fall in love with each other later." Alexia squeezed her eyes at her. She had wondered before why Kathy got married so quickly. Now it turned out to be an agreement between them.

"Dr. Joseph won't like me." She said indifferently. She remembered what he said, "I will never like you."

It was because of this that Joseph married her.

"There are exceptions to everything." Alexia was much more optimistic. She felt that Joseph must have some special feeling toward Kathy, so he chose Kathy.

...

Throughout the day, news of Joseph's medication error was covered by the media, and even a number of reporters blocked the door of the hospital. But they didn't have the chance to interview Joseph.

Kathy was off duty and she didn't know why she came to the hospital.

Why she came here?

Thinking about it, Kathy turned her head and left.
