Chapter 271 I Wanted to Know All about Him

"You need to send Billy abroad on the day of wedding." Zack angrily said.

"He wouldn't be obedient."

Billy was arrogant and restless.

He had taken over the Hilton Group and secretly attracted many powerful people.

Zack originally planned to let him be in charge of the Booth Group, but at this time, Zack found out Kathy's identity and just stopped.

Otherwise Billy absolutely could contend with Joseph family.

"I wouldn't let him ruin my granddaughter's wedding."

"Dad, don't worry, I would always keep an eye on this kid."

...

Joseph walked Veronica their old house and neither of them spoke.

Veronica looked as usual. But when she saw Billy just now, her eyes were full of strong hatred.

Joseph pushed her back to her room and urged, "Have a good rest. Don't worry."

"Well, I've got it." Veronica was terribly calm.

But the calmer she was, the more Joseph worried about her.

"I would always be with you. my sister."

"I am no longer the Veronica I used to be. I come back, which means that I had got through the difficult situations. Why do you not believe me?" Veronica suddenly smiled.

Joseph frowned and his eyes always looked cold.

Kathy and Joseph returned to Joseph Bay at night. No one spoke on the way.

Looked at the man beside her, Kathy wished to speak but stop on a second thought.

Tonight's dinner was temporarily cancelled. She thought Billy must be the reason.

And Veronica was not on the dinner list too because she came back suddenly.

She always felt that these two persons were related to this matter.

But Joseph had a sullen face. He looked indifferent, making people afraid to approach.

Chapter 272 Aggravate the Situation

In the evening, Joseph came to pick her up at the Booth family.

After sending Alexia to the hotel, they went back to Joseph Bay.

When they just arrived, news came from the Joseph family that Veronica was in trouble.

“Have a good rest. I would be back soon.”

Kathy took his hands. She frowned and said, “I would go with you.”

Joseph frowned and he didn’t agree.

“Joseph, I want to be there for you.” Kathy firmly looked at his eyes.

“Stay at home and wait for me, darling.” Joseph kissed her forehead.

Disappointment appeared in her eyes. She raised her hands and embraced his waist. “I want to go with you.”

She repeated again.

She did not want to be excluded from his family.

Joseph looked down and thought. But he could not refuse her and he slowly nodded finally.

When Joseph and Kathy arrived at the hospital, they went straight to the psychological department.

Veronica was asleep quietly in the ward and she had an intravenous drip.

The doctor walked out and obviously he knew Joseph before. He said hello and continued, “She calm down now. You’d better inform her psychologist because she had relapsed.”

Joseph solemnly nodded. He stood outside the ward and looked gloomy.

Kathy took his hands for comfort.

She felt that Joseph was very angry now.

"Mrs. Joseph, Could you stay here and look after Veronica?" Joseph said and he went to the doctor.

Kathy nodded and walked into the ward.

Veronica was lying on the hospital bed. She frowned and tightly grasped the bedsheets. She was nervous.

Veronica kept tossing and turning without falling asleep.
Kathy was sleepy, but Veronica didn't sleep, she was worried.
"Do you feel ill?" Kathy asked with concern.
Veronica turned around and looked at Kathy.
The Joseph family had been blocking news all these years, and she didn't know anything about City N.
With hatred flashed across her eyes, she said in deep voice, "Kathy, do you know that man?"

"Who?"

"Billy Hilton."

Kathy pursed her lips and looked a bit odd.

Veronica understood.

"You know him?" Veronica frowned, and soon remembered, Billy Hilton, seemed to be Kathy 's family?

Otherwise, how could they come to the dinner of the two families together.

"What is your relation with him?"

"He...is my brother."

Veronica gradually tightened her fists after hearing this, and the resentment in her eyes was almost exposed.

"I see." She smiled.

But that smile was so cold.

Kathy was shocked. Veronica quickly stretched out her hands and squeezed Kathy's neck fiercely, "So you mean, you are very close?"

Close...

She and Billy were not close at all.

Breathing deeply, Kathy wanted to push away Veronica, but she was crazy, the hatred in her eyes was so obvious.

"I'm your sister-in-law..." Kathy said with difficulty.

Veronica paused, and looked at her with even more hatred.

She could not control herself at the thought that this woman was Billy's sister.

"Kathy, go to hell!"

She pinched her neck even harder.

At this moment, Joseph burst the door open and walked in. He grabbed Veronica's wrist and pulled her away, then said in a deep voice, " Veronica!"

"Kathy, look at me." Joseph turned her face with his uninjured hand.

With a pale face, Kathy looked down.

"You don't need to care about other people, you know."

"But she is your sister, Joseph, she is your sister." Kathy murmured.

She knew how much Joseph cared about his sister.

She didn't want to wreck their relationship.

In particular, she was also one of her stimuli.

"I'm here." Joseph looked at her solemnly.

Kathy pursed her lips and said nothing.

Old house of the Joseph family.

Quinn brought Veronica back, but she had always been making trouble, disturbing all the family.

Quinn was almost hit by the pillow Veronica threw when he went to her room.

Veronica calmed down when she saw her grandpa.

"What are you doing?"

"Grandpa, Joseph can't marry Kathy!"

"Damn you, don't talk nonsense!" Mathew's face looked drawn and taut.

"I'm not talking nonsense, Kathy is his...sister. How can I get along with her?" Veronica said blankly.

She had unpleasant impression on Kathy. Now knowing Kathy's identity, she couldn't hold with her anymore.

She could not tolerate anyone who was related to the Hilton family.

Mathew frowned, and he didn't expect Kathy to be related to the Hilton family.

"You don't live in City N, so you don't need to get along with her."

"So, are you going to keep me from seeing my brother for the rest of my life?" Veronica sneered.

"Veronica, Joseph is going to marry Kathy, not the Hilton family." Mathew spoke in a conciliating voice.

Veronica said radically, "No... she is related to the Hilton family, she is Billy's sister, she is to rest first." Quinn

"Quinn, I want to find that person today!" Joseph said sternly.

"I got it."

After hanging up the phone, Joseph instructed John, "Reinforce the guards at the Booth Family's ancient castle. In addition to that, send people all over the city to search for Veronica."

In the ancient castle, many guests were already coming in one after another.

At the side door, a black car slowly stopped.

"From here, you can access to the next building. That woman is on the third floor."

Veronica raised her eyes. She bit her lips tightly and pushed her wheelchair out of the car.

Looking at the back of Veronica from the car, the woman's eyes flashed with coldness.

Third floor, dressing room.

Alexia helped Kathy to fix her hair. Standing in front of the mirror, Kathy was so beautiful that even Alexia felt jealous.

"Kathy, you're so incredibly charming." Alexia smiled.

Kathy's cheeks flushed as she looked at herself in the mirror. She was indeed unfamiliar with her own reflection in the mirror. But after dressing up, she looked stunning.

She barely wore makeup, and her dressing was usually very simple.

Now, with the elegant wedding dress, bright makeup, and a flower crown on her head, all of her exquisite beauty was perfectly displayed.

"Miss Alexia, can you come over to help me?" At that moment, the makeup artist came over.

"What's wrong?"

"Mrs Booth hasn't put on her makeup yet. I might not be able to take care of it all by myself. There's not much time left."

"Kathy, please give me a moment. I'll come over later."

Not long after, a strange sound echoed outside the door. When Kathy looked up and saw Veronica, her face instantly changed.

Veronica was sitting in a wheelchair. Her pale face was bloodless, but her eyes carried an intimidating feeling.

"Yo, I find this happy smile of yours very ironic." Veronica's icy voice sounded.

Kathy frowned. Why was Veronica here?

"Veronica, let's go back. Your brother has made his choice."
"What about the injuries I suffered in the past... Quinn, how could he do that..."
Matthew rushed over when he knew about this matter. Quinn was just about to help Veronica into the car.
He had a long face, "Veronica, why are you making a fuss again?"
Veronica was much calmer now. She felt a lot happier after hurting Kathy.
"Dad, it's time for the wedding. You better get back to work," Veronica was indifferent.
"Matthew, Joseph had already arranged a private jet. I will bring Veronica back safely." said Quinn.
Matthew looked at the man in front of him. If Veronica could escape, it was definitely because of Quinn's negligence.
"I don't want any more accidents to happen!"
"Why are you so mean? Quinn did not do anything wrong," Veronica murmured grumpily.
She was the one who sneaked here, but everyone was questioning Quinn.
"Veronica, don't spout nonsense." Quinn's attitude was always respectful.

After getting into the car, Quinn asked her, "Who brought you here?"

"I came here by myself. Who else would it be?" Veronica said indifferently.

"Tell me." Quinn demanded sternly.

Veronica angrily pushed his hand away, "It's none of your business."

"I'll find out."

"Quinn, you're just my psychiatrist. Who are you to tell me what to do?"

"I'm going to find out everyone and everything that is affecting your mood. Or else, it will affect the implementation of your treatment plan."

"I'm already fine, so don't give me any more treatment."

"If you were fine, would you still attempt to kill Kathy?"

"She deserves to die!" Mentioning Kathy, Veronica became agitated.

Quinn pressed her shoulders, "Damn it. It's Billy, Veronica. It's Billy. The Gray family will settle scores with him. You have to trust your brother."

"Investigate this case thoroughly, why the stolen jewellery will end up in here?" Zack was furious, his granddaughter's wedding was disrupted. How could he not take any action?

The most worrying situation was the thief intended to frame Booth family!

Billy Hilton looked at the scene excitedly from a distance which was not far away. His lips curved as he gloated.

Besides him, Bertie Marshall walked towards him, "You did it?"

"Hey, why do you suspect me?"

"It seems like something that you will do," Bertie said indifferently.

Billy frowned. The police had not found out anything after an hour. He looked at Bertie suddenly, "It seems that you have helped Booth family."

"I hope that she can have a perfect wedding," Bertie looked at Kathy.

"Mr. Marshall is indeed infatuated with her," Billy said coldly.

"Billy, I have told you before, don't hurt her. Why you always forget my words?"

"I do nothing at all. Besides, whatever I do is merely aimed to help you."

"Put away your kindness, I do not need that."

The police were unable to find out anything after searching every corner of Booth family. Then, they left.

The mood of the guests was influenced after such an incident happened. The wedding could not be carried on anymore.

The lively scene in the manor gradually became cheerless. Kathy experienced fear and worry before she could calm down and relax. Joseph accompanied her all the time to make her relieve.

John's efficiency was high, he had found out something.

"Mr. Joseph, the escaped prisoner that involves in the case of FY Jewellery has entered here. But, we cannot track his whereabouts now."

"If I am not wrong, the gemstone should be here initially."

Joseph raised an empty ring box.

The next day, Kathy woke up at noon, and her ankles were cold. Joseph had just put on medicine for her.

She rolled over and opened her eyes, and the spot next to her was empty.

But the memories from last night echoed clearly in her mind.

The corners of her mouth drifted upward, the soreness from her body reminded her of last night's madness.

At that moment, a footstep came from outside the door, and Kathy subconsciously hid under the blanket.

She was blushing red like a tomato.

Joseph had already sensed that she was awake, and his gentle voice sounded above her head, "It's time for lunch."

The blanket was taken down, and Kathy looked at him with an innocent expression.

Kathy's expression was so innocent that it was hard to resist.

He lowered his head and kissed the ardent red little person that he loved.

Kathy stared at him for a long while before she got used to it.

Joseph had already backed away before she was satisfied with it.

"Want me to carry you down?" He raised an eyebrow.

Kathy was embarrassed and immediately got out of bed to put on her shoes.

But she didn't notice the injury on her foot, and when she stepped on the floor, it hurt like hell!

"It seems that I still have to carry you." After that, Joseph picked her up across the room.

Kathy looked downwards at her injured ankle. Her small face buried in Joseph's arms.

"When did you put the medicine on for me?"

"Morning."

"I can walk on my own."

There were at the Booth family mansion, it was not like they were at the Joseph Bay where there was only the two of them.

"I'm worried," Joseph said coldly.

"Nothing to be worried, I'll walk slowly." Kathy looked at Joseph expectantly.

"There are a lot of things that aren't as easy as you think, Mrs Joseph. I know you're worried about Alexia, but can you stop her from having no contact with Johnson?" Joseph was straightforward.

Kathy pursed her lips, and as long as Alexia had this in mind, it was useless for her to stop it.

She didn't want Alexia to make the same mistake.

It had been a week since the wedding ended, and Kathy hadn't been idle, she had accompanied Zack almost every day.

Recently, her grandfather had been ill, and he planned to go overseas for treatment and bring Kathy along. Still, initially, Zack had only returned because of Kathy, and now that the wedding was over, everything was at ease.

Kathy was very reluctant to leave her grandpa, she felt grandpa's love. Moreover, the doctor had already said that grandpa might only have six months to live, she wanted to spend more time with him.

It was just that if she went abroad with her grandfather, then she and Joseph would not be able to see each other for a while.

"Kathy, what do you think, tell Mom, want to go back to Country B with us? You haven't started school yet, so stay there for a month or two to keep Grandpa company." Jennifer spoke emphatically.

Jennifer usually had to take care of the Booth Group's business, and she was afraid she couldn't keep watch over Zack.

Kathy hesitated, it was true that she was free during this time. She wouldn't have time to accompany grandpa when school starts.

"Mom, I'll think about it."

"Well, I know you will miss Joseph, but Grandpa doesn't have much time left, he's been alone all these years, I just don't want these last days to be the same..." Jennifer's tears gradually fell.

"Mom." Kathy hugged Jennifer, and she felt sad.

It would be three months...

After her marriage, she hadn't been apart from Joseph for such a long time.

In the evening at the Joseph Group, John went into the president office and reported, "President Joseph, the culprit who robbed DF Jewelry a week ago was taken to the hospital yesterday and passed away from a fatal illness."

Upon hearing that, Joseph's expression got serious, "Did you find out his background?"

"His relatives were already made to leave the country, but there was an unspecified large sum of money in his account before his death. The origin of the money can't be tracked."

"I just want results," Joseph ordered.

John bowed, "noted."

It was already an hour after driving over to the Booth family's mansion, and Joseph waited outside without going in.

Kathy came out, knowing that he hadn't eaten, so she invited Joseph to come in and eat something.

"I'd like to go home and have Mrs Kathy cook me dinner, eh?" Joseph asked in a low voice.

Chapter 280 Really cannot Let Her Go

"Bertie, what do you mean?"

Kathy never would have thought that the car her grandfather sent to pick her up would also be picking Bertie up too.

And that they were both going to the same place.

"It was your grandfather who invited me to stay at your house as a guest. You perhaps did not know, but when I was younger I stayed at the Booth's house for a period of time. Your grandfather always hoped that he would have a granddaughter, so that I could marry her."

"You are just speaking nonsense!" Kathy interrupted him.

She was not able to believe what Bertie was saying.

However the expression on Bertie's face made it seem like he was not lying.

"Kathy, you have to believe that our fate was destined from a very young age." Bertie raised his thin lips.

"I'm already married." Kathy said in a rather righteous way.

"Well no one can predict what will happen in the future, Kathy, I don't mind being with a woman who has married once before."

Kathy was speechless for a few seconds.

"I have a very happy family now, so Mr. Marshall, please would you stay away from me!"

Bertie narrowed his eyes and said, "It seems that currently we are not on intimate enough terms with each other yet."

Kathy pushed open the door and got out of the car, not paying any more attention to him.

Compared to the extravagant ancient castle that the Booths reside in within City N, the Booth's estate in Country B had a European style garden which made the property seem mysterious, quiet and rather low profile.

Jennifer came out from the living room and said, "Kathy, you've arrived! Did Bertie arrive too?"

"Yes, Mr Booth and I have something to talk about. Therefore I'm afraid that I will be disturbing you for a short period of time here." Bertie said politely.

Jennifer nodded, "I will go and get someone to arrange a room for you now."

Bertie started to walk towards the study as if he had been there before. Kathy watched the back of him as he walked away; she never expected that what he had just said was true.

"Kathy, were you and Bertie on the same flight?"

"Yes." Kathy's face was rather indifferent, as she thought about how she would have to be living with him while she stayed here; it made her feel very uncomfortable.

Jennifer seemed to be able to sense Kathy's emotions and therefore went to lightly pat Kathy's shoulders and said, "Bertie's father was very close with your grandfather, therefore that child used to often come to our home. Because of this your grandfather regarded him as half a son."

Kathy really was not interested in anything to do with Bertie, and therefore her face remained disinterested.

As she went up to her room, she didn't expect that Bertie would be staying in the room opposite her.

Kathy ignored him.
