Chapter 281 There Was A Guy Lingered Around My Wife

"Grandpa, during this time, I just wanna be with you." Kathy wrinkled her forehead.

"Of course I know, but it just so happens that Bertie is going to do research and development. You go there to help him and learn from him. Besides, you can also get to know Booth Group better," Zack said sincerely and earnestly.

"I'm sorry that I'm not interested," Kathy said blandly.

"Is it because of me?" Bertie narrowed his eyes.

"Of course it has nothing to do with Mr. Marshall. It's just that I have to prepare my lessons recently, so I can't pay much attention to this project. I'm worried that the whole project will be delayed." Kathy appeared calm and indifferent.

Bertie could see that she was more stubborn than anyone else.

"Kathy, don't you obey me?" Zack was a bit ratty.

"Grandpa, I didn't mean it. But now, I don't feel like participating in any projects. I hope you can understand."

"You're my granddaughter, the only granddaughter! I don't want to force you, but...it's your responsibility!" Zack slapped the table angrily.

Kathy's eyelids droop while her body trembled slightly.

Responsibility.

The identity and responsibility that she didn't even know in the past twenty-five years suddenly fell upon her shoulders.

She gave a slight, sad smile.

"I'm not interested in Booth Group."

Zack's face was getting paler and paler. When he heard Kathy's words, he was so angry that he could hardly stand on his legs.

Bertie immediately stepped forward to support him. Zack pointed at Kathy, feeling helpless and angry.

"Kathy, let it go at that," Bertie said solemnly.

Kathy sat quietly, watching her mother and Bertie helping her grandpa go upstairs. After that, she took out the phone and called Joseph.

But at this time, he was in a meeting and his phone was not around.

After dozens of minutes, Kathy's phone rang.

At this moment, the doctor had gone upstairs to Grandpa's room, while she was standing in the hallway.

"Mrs. Joseph." Joseph's soft voice rang in her ears.

Kathy bit her lips, and after a while replied in a low voice, "Yes."

"Has anyone bullied you?" Joseph asked observantly.

"No."

"Mrs. Joseph, I don't want to be apart from you, not even for a day," said Joseph in an aggressive tone.

"Then what should I do..."

"I'm at your home already."

Joseph arrived at the entrance of the Booth's mansion in his car.

Kathy walked out to the balcony and saw a black car parked in front of the entrance.

She changed and walked out of the room, Bertie coincidentally did the same.

He smiled when he saw Kathy, "Can't sleep?"

"It's none of your business." Kathy's face darkened.

"I can chat with you a bit if you can't sleep." Bertie ignored what Kathy said.

Kathy rolled her eyes and ignored him.

She went downstairs and saw that Joseph had already invited himself into the living room.

Bertie smiled menacingly when he saw Joseph.

"Hello, Mr. Joseph."

Joseph ignored him, his gaze was locked onto Kathy.

He held her hand and hugged her tightly.

"Were you waiting?"

"I couldn't sleep anyway," said Kathy honestly.

"I see that Mrs. Joseph needs me by her side."

Kathy pulled Joseph's hand when Joseph was about to go upstairs.

Her grandfather and her mother were probably resting right now, Joseph should only be able to see them the next morning.

"Are you staying the night?" asked Kathy nervously.

"Either that or you leave with me," said Joseph as he squinted his eyes.

"Well, it's better if you stay the night then."

They turned around and was going to head to the room, but Bertie halted them in their tracks.

Chapter 283 Retreat

Zack said in a low voice as if he saw through Kathy’s thoughts, “You are the person that I trust the most right now and you have experience with this sort of matter. This drug will be our flagship product next year, there is no room for mistakes.”

“But grandfather...”

“No buts, there are still three months left. It should be more than enough time for you,” said Zack, he was irrefutable.

“Go meet Bertie in the afternoon, he’ll take you to the lab.”

“But grandfather, I want to stay with you.”

She wasn’t here to solve problems happening at Booth Group.

But it was obvious that her grandfather’s main intention for her to be here, was so that she could help Booth Group out.

“You wouldn’t need to take a hand in this matter if you want me to go to the lab instead. I don’t have much longer, I don’t really want to run about and deal with Booth Group’s problems on my death bed...” Zack sounded bleak and desolate.

Kathy’s heart ached even though she knew that he was just trying to egg her on. She yielded to his request.

“I’ll go, grandfather.”

“Okay, I’ll be at peace knowing that you are a part of this matter.”

Kathy didn’t look so good when she walked out of the room.

What Zack told her just now meant that she couldn’t avoid coming into contact with Bertie.

She knew that Jennifer controlled part of the Booth Group's industry and the other part was still in Zack's hand.

She also knew that Zack trusted Bertie a lot. He was getting old and had temporarily handed his part of the industry over to Bertie.

Joseph would be furious if he found out that she needed to work alongside with Bertie.

But she didn't want to hide it.

She called Joseph without hesitating.

Joseph's masculine voice could be heard from the phone, "You miss me already?"

"Joseph, there's something serious that I need to talk about." Kathy took a deep breath, "There's some issue with the new drug at Booth Group and my grandfather wants me to help out at the lab."

"And you think that I will disagree?" Joseph could tell from her tone of voice.

"Yes, because Bertie will be there," said Kathy nervously.

"Besides, isn't Mr Bertie working on Booth Group's affairs? Wasn't my grandpa training you to become his successor?" Kathy asked calmly.

Bertie Marshall raised his eyebrows, "Wow, I didn't know that you are paying so much attention on me. Indeed, your grandfather had the intention. But then, he called you back. It seemed like I had to give way."

“Besides, we would be married if I was in charge of Booth Group.

“You’re crazy”. Kathy said coldly.

“Everything is possible.” Bertie laughed heartily and said.

After leaving the building, Kathy was confused.

Could all of this mess be prevented if she hadn’t come to Country B?

Even if she had a second chance, she would still come to Country B as she was worried about her grandfather’s health.

Returning to the the Booth family, Kathy reported her job on that day to her grandfather.

She hesitated upon speaking when she thought about what Bertie said.

Zack Booth figured out what Kathy was thinking, “Is there anything you want to tell grandpa?” he frowned and asked.

Kathy shook her head as she refused to believe what Bertie had told her.

Besides, grandpa might be emotional again if she mentioned about Booth Group

“Rest well, grandpa.”

As she left the room, she had a phone call from Joseph.

“Are you back home?”

“Yes, I’m at the Booth family.”

Kathy looked at her watch, it was 6 o’clock.

“You don’t have to wait for me tonight, I’ll be home late.”

“Hmm, what are you busy about?” asked Kathy.

“I have a transnational meeting to attend to later.”

“Okay then, don’t forget to have your dinner. I’ll wait for you if it’s not too late.”

As Kathy hung the phone, Bertie appeared behind her.

Inside, Kathy was reading a medical text, but was becoming quite drowsy, unable to stifle her yawns. Looking at the clock, she saw it was nearly one.

Just as she was getting ready to give Joseph a call, he returned. Seeing her sitting there on the sofa reading a book, he narrowed his eyes. "Waiting for me?"

"Yeah. I'm not tired yet anyway." But the next moment, she couldn't help yawning.

Joseph pursed his lips and dropped a kiss to the side of her mouth, saying lowly, "You're a very devoted wife."

"I really wasn't waiting for you," Kathy insisted, unwilling to let him see her true intentions.

But nothing escaped Joseph. Taking her by the chin, he looked her in the eyes and said, "You'd dare lie to me?"

"No, no. Go take a shower." She nudged him toward the bathroom.

But Joseph only became more daring. Wrapping her up in his embrace, he murmured in her ear, "Shower with me, hmm?"

Kathy's ears turned red. "I already showered."

"Then help me..."

"Fuck off."

"I saw Edith today." This was two hours after Kathy had been bundled up and carried to bed.

"Yeah," Joseph replied, "I saw her too, she was waiting for me at the company gates. It was late, so I took her home."

"You're already off?" she asked him.

"Yeah, I didn't spend any time with you last night. Today I'll make up for it." Kathy should have been thrilled at his response, but not after the day she'd just had. He asked, "Has something happened?"

She hesitated, then pulled a report from her bag. "This details the third stage of our drug development. There've been different degrees of repelling reactions, but I can't find a reason why."

Joseph furrowed his brow, and didn't take the report. "This drug is still in development. I'm not part of the company.

"Good point. Never mind," she said, shaking her head.

But though she'd not asked him, that night Joseph received an email from Edith regarding the drug's problems. Kathy, sitting at his side, saw it and asked, "Will you reply?"

"Is this project important to you?" he asked.

She bit her lip and did not respond. She was very hopeful about this drug—after all, it was the only one of its kind, and it could be enormously helpful in treating heart disease. But she also didn't want to be involved. Her grandfather had wanted her to enter the Booth Group, and everything she did was preparation for that.

She shook her head. "I don't want to refuse my grandfather, but this project is part of Booth Group's research and development. I don't want anything to go wrong." With Joseph's help, they might even be able to get it on the market early. His skills were unmatched.

"My services are expensive," he smirked. Edith requesting his help surely had something to do with Kathy. She understood that to help her was to help Kathy.

"I know. If you don't want to do it, it's okay. You've already done so much, I don't want to make trouble for you." She reached over and deleted the email herself.

"Sure?" He took her by the chin, looked deep into her eyes.

"Yes," she nodded.

Apparently unwilling to wait for Joseph's response, Edith called. Joseph happened to be in the shower, and Kathy did not answer it, instead waiting for Joseph to finish. He didn't even look at it, instead rubbed a towel over his wet hair and pulled Kathy in for a kiss.

Chapter 287 Dance with Me

Kathy immediately refused. She knew that Joseph had a dinner party tonight.
He was always busy.
"No, I will join the party with my mother."
"Call me at any time. I will come as soon as possible."
In the evening, Kathy and Jennifer went to a six-star hotel of Booth Group.

Kathy wore a white dress with a tube top design, showing her slender collarbone. She coiled her hair up and she looked beautiful tonight.

"Mom, What type of party is this?" Kathy asked.

Some politicians and stars who appeared on TV also attended the party. Their presence made the party lively.

"It is the birthday party for the daughter of Marshall Group. The Booth family always has a good relationship with the Marshall family. I have watched her grow up."

"The Marshall Group?"

It meant that Bertie would attend it too.

Sure enough, Kathy firstly saw Bertie who dressed in white suit when she walked in. He was surrounded by many people, which showed his distinguished identity.

"Mrs. Booth." Zofia Marshall, Bertie's sister, walked to them and said hello.

She was the protagonist of the party. Her white dress also had a tube top design, showed her slender waist. It was similar to Kathy's dress.

"Zofia, this is my daughter, Kathy."

"Miss Marshall, Happy birthday." Kathy smiled.

"Thank you. Enjoy yourself." Zofia blinked naughtily.

She walked to Bertie and took his arm fondly.

Jennifer was famous in rich women and they gathered together and talked. Kathy did not want to join them.

She found a corner and waited for leaving.

At this time, a sound came from the door. A beautiful girl sitting in the wheelchair came in. She wore a black dress and looked glamorous and cold.

Kathy did not know Veronica was here too. She knew Veronica hated her very much.

She picked up the wine bottle beside and threw it to Kathy.

Kathy pursed her lips and stopped. Seeing the bottle was thrown to her, she was not afraid.

She stepped back. The wine bottle rubbed her arm and fell on the ground.

"Veronica." Quinn nervously went in.

"Stop! Don't bring shame on Joseph family." Kathy coldly said.

"You are the one who bring shame on my family. You have married to my brother. Why do you still not satisfied?"

At this time, people started to talk about them. Many people knew that Joseph was Veronica's brother.

And Kathy was introduced by Jennifer that she was the daughter of the Booth family.

Kathy and Joseph's wedding was held half a month and many people knew it.

And some of them was dissatisfied that Kathy was dancing with Bertie just now.

"It is Mrs. Joseph. It seems that she is close to Bertie."

"Yeah, she might have kept his husband from knowing she is flirting with others"

"..."

"Veronica, what happens?" As the host, Zofia frowned.

"Zofia, this bitch has sex with my brother and she wants to flirt with you brother now."

"Veronica, you are telling lies." Kathy said in a deep voice.

There was no connection between her and Bertie.

“Am I wrong?” Veronica innocently looked at her.

Zofia looked at her brother. He said nothing and no one knew what he was thinking.

Jennifer was playing cards with a few ladies, and she didn't know what happened in the banquet hall until later. When she left, Kathy had already left with Joseph.

She made a phone to her daughter.

"Kathy, are you ok?" asked in concern.

"I'm fine, mum, I left early."

"I know. I'm not worried as long as you're with Joseph."

After hanging up the phone, Kathy looked at the man beside her. He was looking at the tablet computer in his hand, and there were still many official matters for him to handle.

"How are things in City N?" Kathy asked.

Joseph had always stayed in City B before, and now Mathew was old and hardly dealt with the affairs of the Joseph's Group. Would it really be okay if he was not there?

"Well, now the Joseph's Group is managed by Diego and Julian." Joseph said softly.

"Julian? What's his relationship with you?"

This was the first time that Kathy heard this name.

"He is Diego's son."

Kathy was shocked.

So he was Joseph's elder brother or younger brother?

Obviously they were not close.

"Why did he come back?"

She remembered that Joseph said that the roots of the Joseph family were in Country C, and their relatives were all over there.

Julian did not show up at their wedding, why did he just come back at this time?

"Grandpa is here, he may hardly sit still." Joseph sneered.

Kathy paused. Joseph was gloomy and frightening.

She didn't ask any more.

Bertie Marshall did not come back that night, and Kathy hadn't seen him for the next few days.

Suddenly, there was a violent sound from the elevator, and the calling machine responded.

Kathy picked up the interphone," We are trapped in the elevator."

"I have arranged rescue personnel, Kathy, I am here."

He was here.

Kathy finally relaxed.

But in the next second, Edith frantically pulled Kathy's hair.

"You bastard, you must die..."

"Ouch..."

Kathy didn't hold back the scream, and subconsciously pushed Edith away.

She was hit on the back of her head and fell to the ground.

Kathy was startled. When she turned around, the smell of blood made her tense.

Edith didn't seem to move...

She squatted down to help Edith up, and couldn't talk to Joseph.

But she didn't response at all.

"Edith!"

She turned on the flashlight and saw the injury on Edith's forehead, which must be dealt with immediately.

But she had nothing here.

She hurriedly picked up the interphone, "Joseph...Edith is unconscious..."

Kathy panicked without hearing Joseph's voice.

Joseph's voice came again a few minutes.

"Kathy."

Kathy looked up and watched the elevator doors open little by little. Finally, Joseph's long figure came into her view.

She breathed a sigh of relief, and fell right on her rear, seeming like she was wiped out.

Joseph strode in, held Kathy's cold hands, and took her into his arms.

He frowned when he saw the blood on Edith's face.

He said to the security guard behind him, "Call an ambulance."
