Chapter 311 Unwilling To See Me

Joseph turned on the light and supported Kathy to sit up. "I'll buy something for you to eat."

Kathy knew that he will still go and buy even if she rejected so she kept quiet.

Bertie came in soon after Joseph left. Kathy was irritated and didn't want to deal with Joseph, much less with Bertie.

"I'm sorry." Bertie apologized sincerely as soon as he spoke.

He was outside the patient's room and didn't dare to enter. He was partially responsible for Kathy's brush with danger. He compelled her to go to TC Mountain with the intention of helping her relax and improve her mood but little did he expect that she would meet with such an accident.

"If you really feel sorry, then get out of my sight," Kathy said calmly. She didn't want to see him.

"Okay, Kathy, remember what I said. Don't get too close to Joseph." Bertie reminded her. He left without waiting for Kathy's reply. He didn't want to hear Kathy's refusal. To think that he had to resort to escaping reality, feeling remorse, and guilt.

Kathy didn't take his words seriously. She also did not want to be close to Joseph but he kept appearing beside her though they had already divorced.

Alexia came soon after and cried bitterly when she saw the bandages on Kathy's hand and legs.

Kathy smiled, "I'm not dead yet, it's just a slight injury."

"It's a serious injury! How could you hurt yourself to such an extent by climbing this mountain? Is this your jinxed period?" Alexia sat down beside her.

She looked at Kathy's medical record and was relieved only when she confirmed that Kathy's condition was not serious.

"My luck had been down every time Bertie is with me." Kathy frowned and became irritated and angry when she thought about how Bertie held her against her will at the Marshall family.

"Bertie? Why are you with him?" Alexia was puzzled.

"He... forget it, I don't want to talk about him." Kathy shook her head and didn't want to mention it. She just wanted to go back to N City and didn't want to see him anymore.

At this moment, footsteps could be heard outside. Joseph had returned from buying some porridge. Alexia was stunned for a while when she saw him. Weren't these two divorced...

"Didn't Alexia say that we will remarry?" Joseph raised his eyebrow.

“Who wants to remarry with you? Not me!”

“You are angry with me because I agreed to divorce.” Joseph narrowed his eyes.

“How do I dare to.” Kathy was fuming.

Joseph was fully aware of her emotions. Her chin was pinched by Joseph and forced to look directly at him, “My ex-wife’s body is full of thorns, what won’t you dare to do?”

“That’s because of your unreasonable actions.”

Joseph laughed softly, “Yes, I’m unreasonable. But that’s just to you.”

The aircraft landed at N City airport two hours later. Kathy alighted the aircraft first and left the airport and intended to go home by herself. Joseph knew that she would reject. Without asking, he grabbed her wrist and led her to the car. Kathy was furious but he was calm and collected.

“I won’t bother you after I send you home,” Joseph said solemnly.

Kathy frowned and looked at Joseph’s firm expression and her disappointment gradually spread throughout her.

“Then please stop sending someone to check on my movements, Mr. Joseph.” Kathy composed herself quickly. From the time Joseph appeared at TC Mountain, she realized that she had never escaped the sights of Joseph. Whether he sent someone to follow her or to protect her, she didn’t like to be monitored.

Joseph’s expression changed when he heard this and said sarcastically, “You don’t want me to find out about your date with Bertie?”

Kathy wanted to retaliate but quickly changed her tone, “It’s great that you know.”

The atmosphere in the car suddenly turned very cold and Kathy clearly felt Joseph’s fury. Neither spoke from then on. After sending Kathy to AN road, Joseph’s car quickly disappeared from Kathy’s sight. She stood at the balcony and looked down for a long time.

She didn’t know what she was looking at. Perhaps she was hoping that Joseph didn’t leave.

Neurology was the most popular major at Ocean University, but the seats were usually reserved for their own students. It was quite difficult to get admission for students from other universities. Kathy had been working for several years, and apparently, she had also been the cause of uproar at the university in the past.

Surprisingly, she was still the only one accepted by Benedict Watson.

However, Zofia immediately understood that it was probably due to Joseph.

Disdain flashed in her eyes.

Kathy didn't notice. She had only found out today that how many people were jealous of her being taken under Benedict.

After all, Professor Benedict Watson had been in Ocean University for decades. Being in the university for that long, he had only accepted around ten graduate students, and all of his students were prominent figures in the medical field.

Soon, Bertie came over with Zofia's luggage.

"Bertie, why are you so slow?" Zofia got angry at him.

"There was a traffic jam. I can't fly over in a plane, you know!" Bertie had always spoiled her with love.

Hearing the familiar voice, Kathy turned her head and looked at Bertie.

Bertie asked her with concern, "Are you okay now?"

Kathy turned her head back around and hummed faintly in response.

Zofia looked at both of them, then pulled her elder brother aside and asked, "Don't tell me the reason you offered to bring my luggage so kindly today was so you could see Kathy?"

Bertie frowned. He really didn't know about this.

During this time, he had been thinking about how to deal with his feelings.

Kathy was single now. It was, undoubtedly, the best opportunity to pursue her.

But she avoided him so much.

He didn't have any experience in chasing after girls, it was always the girls who chased after him.

"I didn't know." He said lightly.

"I don't believe you! You just saw her? Hah! Do you think I don't know you?"

When Cohen slightly distracted his attention, Kathy ran towards the door. She was about to hold the knob but Cohen pulled her back, Kathy nearly fell.

She leant against the wall, looked at the crazy man.

"If it is not you, I have been admitted by Professor Watson. Kathy, tomorrow is your university opening ceremony. I remember that you are selected as the representative to give a speech. If you are absent, how will professor think about you..."

Cohen sneered, he quickly tied Kathy's hands with the rope in his hand. She kicked Cohen instantly, he had expected that and avoided it immediately.

He tied Kathy on the chair and narrowed his eyes furiously, "Don't blame me, you should blame Professor Watson for admitting you. I will become the representative to give a speech tomorrow."

"When will you let me go?" Kathy asked calmly, looked at the surrounding, she seemed chanceless to escape.

"Depend on my mood."

"If I can get out from here, I will complain to the dean's office," Kathy showed her dull expression.

After listening to her words, Cohen did not panic at all and smiled, "You just try and see who will believe your words."

After that, Cohen put Kathy's bag at the corner and locked the door when he left.

The light was dim inside the equipment room. The surrounding was full of dust, it was obvious that this place has been abandoned for a long time.

Kathy untied herself agilely. After she got her freedom, she took out her phone from her bag.

But this location...had no signal.

She was depressed.

It was totally enclosed. People will rarely pass by there. She should have noticed Cohen's action earlier.

Kathy stood up and patted the door hard, "Can anyone hear me? Anyone?"

However, there was only her sound echoed in the room.

When Zofia went back to the hostel, it was nearly in the dawn. She frowned as she noticed Kathy had not yet come back.

They went to karaoke. Kathy stayed with another classmate in the restaurant.

Joseph frowned, looked at the playground then strode over to the equipment room.

With the help of some students, he found the equipment room. As it turned out, there really is a sign with word "demolition" on it, normally no one will ever come out.

"Is there anyone here..."

As he heard a familiar voice, he cooled himself down and immediately pushed the door open.

But it was locked.

"Mrs. Joseph, step back first!"

Kathy regained consciousness and heard Joseph's voice, she was touched, and she almost cried.

She had been trapped in there for ten hours, and every minute was tormented for her.

If Cohen did not come back, if no one ever found her...

At that moment, the door was kicked open. She looked up, and in her blurry vision, Joseph's handsome face came into her eyes.

It was him.

Wearing his usual monochromatic outfit, the man seemed to be her savior from the sky.

And in the end, tears still flowed from her eyes.

Kathy's heartbeat finally returned to normal as Joseph held her tightly in his arms.

All her anxiety, fear, and dread, finally gradually dissipated.

"I'm the one who's late." Joseph's frustrated voice sounded, he dared not to think about how long she had been here, and what she had experienced.

Kathy kept her eyes closed, greedily enjoy this peaceful moment.

The two of them, neither of them made a sound.

Only after a long while, Kathy lifted her head and asked, "How did you know I was here?"

Joseph pursed his lips and did not speak.

Bertie went silent when he heard of the news. He remembered grandfather's advice to let Kathy stay in Country B and leave Ocean University.

The trouble would still come again and again.

"Yeah. You have to be there for her."

"I'm not close with her though." Zofia raised her eyebrows, "Don't you love her? If you can help her overcome this, maybe she'll fall in love with you after this."

"Not this time."

"Why not?" Zofia's curiosity continued to increase.

"Just focus on your studies and stay out of other matters," he warned.

"Then I can't be there for Kathy." Zofia blurted out.

"Don't you want the ticket to your beloved singer's concert?" he threatened.

Zofia's expression immediately changed. "Fine! I'll console her! I want the first row seat!"

When she got back to her dorm, she thought that Kathy would be hiding in her bed with tears flowing down her cheeks. Surprisingly, she was reading.

"I'm pretty sure you haven't eat anything. Here, I bought you fried rice." Zofia gave her the food container.

"Thank you, Zofia."

"Don't thank me. My brother forced me to do this."

"This time, how are you planning to solve it?" Zofia asked her again.

"I don't know," Kathy answered honestly.

She looked at Zofia. She knew that Zofia had a huge circle of friends. "Hey, do you know where Caelan stays?"

"Two floors above you. 1208."

"Thank you."

Soon, she was standing in front of his dorm door, unsure of her decision. However, before she could knock on the door, she heard a boy's words from nearby.

"Caelan, isn't that Kathy who copied your answers?"

Kathy turned around and ran to the radio station of the University rather than went to meet Benedict Watson.

Now it was the morning, only the student on duty was in the radio station. When the student on duty saw Kathy, the student looked at her angrily, "Why do you break into the radio station? You couldn't come in if you are not a student at our university!"

"I haven't been dropped out of school yet." Kathy finished and went directly to the broadcasting station.

"What are you doing?" The student on duty said angrily.

"Give me one minute." Kathy finished and opened the radio.

At that moment, all people at university could hear Kathy's words.

"Dear students and teachers, I am Kathy. I know that there has been a lot of discussions about my cheating in exams recently. But I want to clarify that I have never violated any discipline before or now, and I was admitted to Ocean University on my capacity! As for why there is the same exam answer between me and another student, I am willing to retake the exam under the supervision of everyone on the playground with another candidate since there is no evidence to prove who is cheating!"

Kathy turned off the radio when she finished. Kathy's words were out of stimulation.

But Kathy didn't regret it.

The student on duty had already stayed in a daze, and gradually raised a little worship, "you are so brave!"

Kathy smiled. Kathy wasn't sure whether her request would be accepted.

Now Kathy was going to meet Benedict.

"Thank you very much."

Kathy left and went to the office building immediately.

At this time, the principal immediately organized a meeting with professors of various faculties regarding the issue.

"I disagree. There has never been such a precedent at the university. Now the invigilator has made it clear that Kathy was cheating while taking the exam."

"Aaron Fisher, although Kathy behaved abnormally in the exam, I don't think it's cheating. Now that she's willing to retake the exam under the supervision, just give her a chance," Benedict said.

"Professor Watson, I know that you are partial to Kathy since she is your student. But the point is that there is no such rule at university!"

"Indeed, Professor Watson, it's not quite in line with the rules of the university." The principal also disagreed.

Aaron Fisher grimaced in displeasure and came to the playground. There was a car parked in the driveway outside. Joseph was leaning against the car door, watching Kathy Joseph do the test.

There was no expression on Aaron's face when he saw him.

"She's at Ocean University, and there is always someone who's looking for trouble for her." said Aaron.

"Are you one of them?" Joseph looked at Aaron.

"It's you I hate. As for Kathy, if she really cheats, I will surely not let her stay."

"I believe in her."

"She will have more and more troubles in the future."

Joseph frowned because he knew.

Kathy's days at Ocean University were not meant to be peaceful.

But since it was her choice, he would do anything to clear the way for her.

"I'll see how you can protect her." Aaron said coldly.

"Thanks for the reminder." Joseph was pale.

Kathy had finished all the questions in less than two hours.

Benedict reviewed it with several professors.

Kathy waited quietly until Caelan also handed in the test papers. It didn't take long before both test papers were reviewed.

The professor did not announce the results first, and there was an interview question right after that.

They answered one after each other, and finally got the final score.

Benedict Watson frowned as he looked at the difference between the scores.

"Kathy got full mark and Caelan got fifty points."

All the students were shocked when they heard the results. As for Caelan, he ran away in embarrassment almost immediately after the score was announced.

Kathy was calm as usual. The score was enough to prove that her strength was definitely above Caelan. How could she copy him?!

And now it had been confirmed in front of the teachers and students of the whole school.

Benedict walked down and looked at Kathy with admiration.

The questions in this exam were more difficult than the postgraduate entrance's ones, but Kathy actually got full marks. It could be seen that even after the end of the postgraduate entrance examination, she did not let up with her studying.

"Where do you live? Can I live in your dorm tonight? I don't want to go back to the Joseph family." Veronica looked at her expectantly.

Zofia paused, "There's another roommate in my dormitory. I was about to go home today, so she will take her boyfriend to our dorm. We'd better not disturb her."

She could only make an excuse casually.

"Well, then I'll go to your house with you!"

"Sure," Zofia smiled.

But before long, the smile on her lips froze.

Kathy was walking out of the opposite office building.

Zofia thought to herself, "Didn't I tell her not to come out!"

Veronica obviously saw Kathy too.

Her face suddenly became gloomy.

"Veronica..."

"Is she also at Ocean University?" Veronica said coldly.

"Don't be angry. Kathy has divorced your brother."

"What? Divorced? Why don't I know?" Veronica was dubious.

Kathy stopped as she saw Veronica. Although she looked normal now, she really didn't know when she would suddenly go crazy.

"Just ask your brother and you'll know."

"I just don't like her anyway," Veronica said angrily.

The road was so narrow that the two of them would inevitably run into each other. Kathy stood aside, letting Veronica's wheelchair pass first.

"Kathy, does my brother get bored with you?" Veronica said sarcastically.

Kathy didn't want to quarrel with her, so she didn't say anything.

"It's true. How could my brother possibly fall for you? Fortunately, he realizes it now." Everything Veronica said was aggressive.

"Veronica, please don't speculate about the reason for my divorce," Kathy said solemnly.

"Speculate? This is the truth, Kathy, you were dumped by my brother."

"Veronica, I'm hungry, let's go." Zofia interrupted Veronica.

Diego stopped abruptly when he saw the people in the dining room.

He curled his lips, "There are so many people today. I happen to have something to announce."

"Bastard, get this woman out of here!" Mathew put down his chopsticks angrily, not wanting to listen to Diego.

But Diego ignored him and continued, "Dad, don't be mad. She's going to be your daughter-in-law."

"I won't admit this woman!"

"Dad, you and my mom haven't divorced yet!" Veronica looked at her father angrily.

As he heard Veronica mention her mother, Diego's eyes flashed with hatred.

"Your mother and I have been separated for three years, we will definitely divorce!"

"No! Diego, you can't do this to my mom...you can't do this!" Veronica glared at him sulkily.

"Don't mention that woman to me. Dad, I'm just here to tell you that I will marry Nell Harvey!"

"Diego and I really love each other." Nell looked at Mathew nervously.

But Mathew ignored her.

"I don't care what your relationship is with Diego, but you can't marry him unless I die!" Mathew said firmly.

Nell's tears rolled down her face almost instantly as he heard that.

Leaning in Diego's arms, she sobbed.

"Dad, you are so stubborn!" Diego said irritably.

"Steward, take them out. Don't let them irritate Grandpa again," Joseph ordered.

When he finished his words, bodyguards came in soon looking as if they tried to throw Diego and Nell out of the house.

"Diego, I will bring my mother back. Don't you dare to marry this woman!" Veronica said angrily.

Diego sneered, "Veronica, I really shouldn't have let her give birth to you!"

Hearing that, Veronica was obviously irritated. She couldn't help but throw the spoon in her hand towards Diego.
