Chapter 341 To be Punished

When Zofia came back from class, Kathy was still in some sort of trance. When she saw the news that Joseph was be teaching one of her classes, she patted Kathy on the head.

“Felling love struck?”

“Stop speaking nonsense... I am not love struck!”

“Aren’t you looking at a photo of Joseph? If he wears a suit to class, he will look very handsome...”

Kathy was speechless.

Another image of him appeared in her mind. Joseph wearing a smart suit, with his rimless glasses, and then his sharp and charming eyes that fall onto Kathy...

Kathy’s face was turning even redder...

Gosh, what was she thinking about?

Joseph teaching one of her classes had nothing to do with her!

She needed to look at something else to distract her attention away from him.

She picked up her phone next to her and without thinking opened the internet browser.

What caught her eye was the news of the bankruptcy of the Herbert’s Group.

Kathy paused on this and read the content of the news. Recently both the production of the Herbert’s Group main pharmaceutical drug and the market share of this drug had been declining. However at the same time the Joseph’s Group products almost monopolize the whole of the pharmaceutical market. This was definitely a fatal blow for the Herbert’s Group.

At present the Herbert’s Group don’t have enough capital, and the Hilton Group is just standing by and not doing anything, therefore it seems that the Herbert’s Group will really be unable to survive this crisis.

Bankrupt...

Kathy’s face sunk for she did not expect that the consequences would be so serious.

Was Joseph targeting the Herbert’s Group?

Although no journalist dared to write this directly, it was clear that the report wanted to express this meaning.

Her phone then suddenly started ringing, it was an unknown number.

Kathy frowned and then answered the phone.

Kathy is clearly targeting the Herbert's Group or you are stirring up trouble and causing some drugs that we purchased from somewhere else. Your company has no innovative ability, your market share is shrinking and therefore the capital turnover is having difficulties. This is the Joseph Group; however the main reasons were due to the Herbert Group's own inner problems. Joseph was surrounded by numerous students at the rostrum. Kathy packed her things and waited for Joseph. At some point, Zofia ran over and stuck her head through the window.

“Kathy, how was Joseph during the class?”

Kathy frowned and didn’t know how to describe it.

She only managed to mumble three words, “Not too bad.”

Zofia sniggered, “Joseph is a first-rate professor, of course, his class would be outstanding! I meant to ask if you had exchanged looks with each other. After all, you two were...”

Kathy immediately interrupted what Zofia wanted to say, “There is nothing between us, absolutely nothing!”

“I don’t believe you. I saw you standing behind, were you being punished? Why were you the only one being punished? Was Joseph picking on you?”

Kathy was speechless.

“Kathy, come with me.”

At this moment, Joseph said with a stern voice.

Kathy picked up her bag and went along.

Zofia looked at the two and shook her head, ‘Brother, your chances are fading...’

Joseph's tall build walked ahead while Kathy followed but maintained a distance behind him.

At some point, he stopped and Kathy walked right into him without realizing it.

Joseph stretched out his hand and lovingly caressed her forehead, "Are you hurt?"

He sounded like before.

Kathy was dazed and shook her head when she came to her senses. She backed away and said, "No."

She then realized that they had arrived at the office.

"Why weren't you paying attention?" Joseph narrowed his eyes. In class as well as while they were walking. "Was it because of me? Huh?"

"Of course not! I didn't sleep well last night." Kathy looked away.

“You eat it, I won't.” Kathy did not take it.

“Really? I can't finish all this food...” Zofia Marshall deliberately pulled a chair and sat beside Kathy, then opened the take-out box.

It smelled delicious.

And it made Kathy’s mouth watered!

She saw that it was her favorite fried chicken in garlic soy sauce!

Joseph knew her so well.

“Even if you don't eat it, he will think you do, so you might as well have some.” Zofia said primly.

“No.” Kathy is very determined, her face darkened slightly, “You shall ignore Joseph in the future. “

“How can I ignore him? He is a professor. Although he is not a professor of thoracic surgery, even the principal respects him in the school.”

“Forget it, let me throw it away. If my brother knows, he might be angry with me.” Zofia thought for a while and said.

Kathy calmed down, focusing on her homework.

But then she remembered what Joseph said just now, as if he asked her to go to the Joseph’s Group on Monday?

She had to forget it, and she would not go!

She should keep her busy...

The next day was Saturday, and Kathy would come to the Joseph’s Group to participate in the drug development.

Kathy got off the bus early, but she didn't expect Herbert to be standing in front of the company. Herbert saw Kathy and walked towards her.

Kathy ignored her.

But Herbert stopped her and she had to stop.

“What's the matter?”

“I need to talk to you.”

“Go ahead.”

Herbert squinted and looked at Kathy, “Didn’t you divorce Joseph? Why do you still get so close to him?”

“Herbert, if you want to gossip about my personal affairs, I have nothing to say.”

Chapter 344 Don't be afraid, I'm here

At this time, Kathy leaned against the wall in the dark room, with closed eyes. She was so tired and she felt she had little energy left...

She seemed to hear a familiar voice, trying to open her eyes, but she failed...

"Kathy! Wake up!"

The voice was becoming clearer, who was it?

Opening her eyes hard, Kathy screamed subconsciously. Where was she?

What came into sight was darkness, and nothing could be seen in the dark room.

She tried to stand up, but she had no strength.

The voice just now was so familiar...

"Kathy! Open the door!"

Finally, this time she heard Joseph's voice clearly, and she immediately said, "Joseph, I'm here!"

Where the hell was she...

Why was she here, she didn't leave the Joseph's Group.

She remembered that she was in the lab just now, and then she seemed to be told to go to another room to get something, and then... she could remember no more.

Did she faint?

But she was dizzy and didn't feel well...

"Kathy! Come here and open the door!"

Hearing Joseph's voice again, Kathy fumbled to the door, but the fingerprint recognition system didn't respond at all.

"I can't open the door." She said in a low voice.

It should be a power outage.

Her sense of smell was always sensitive, and she could clearly smell a trace of sulfur gas.

With her darkened eyes, Kathy patted the door hard, "Joseph, there's toxic gas here."

She could only cover her nose, and she didn't know how much she had sucked in.

Joseph's countenance changed, and pressing the iron door, he fumbled for the position of the emergency switch.

Hearing her voice sounded strange, Joseph said nervously, "Do you feel ill?"

Kathy was breathing deeply, leaning against the wall, feeling sick all over. She wanted to speak, but her throat seemed to be pinched.

After a short while, John bought a porridge with a light flavor to her. Only then did Kathy push Joseph away, her cheeks slightly pink.

Bertie was no longer in the ward.

"Did you bring me here?" Kathy looked at Joseph.

"Yeah," Joseph responded, opening the takeaway box.

Kathy watched his moves, feeling extremely comforting.

She didn't dare to think about the consequences if Joseph hadn't found her...

But how did he know?

"Why did you come to the laboratory at that time?"

"I have to come over since there is an accident in the laboratory."

"What about the other colleagues?" Kathy asked with concern.

"They are all off work long ago." Joseph frowned.

Kathy fell silent. So someone should have kept her in the laboratory on purpose.

"Leave it to me. Eat something first." Joseph said warmly.

Kathy knitted her brows, gazed at Joseph, and tried to say something.

She thought that she could get rid of him, but there always seemed to be some accidents.

"Sorry, I caused you trouble," Kathy said in a low voice.

If this incident really happened because of her, it would probably cause trouble to the Joseph's Group and even Joseph.

Joseph frowned and held Kathy's face, his face serious, "I'd rather you trouble me, but only if you are safe."

She clearly saw the concern in Joseph's eyes.

She pursed her lips and did not make a sound for a long while.

She didn't quite understand what he meant.

"I'm all right now," she said.

"I can't bear it if anything should happen to you." Joseph let go of her.

He barely revealed his true emotions, except when he couldn't stand it anymore.

This time, they had already crossed the line.

Kathy was moved and asked in a quiet voice, "Do you still care about me?"

Hearing this, Amy's face changed.

She noticed it from the first time Kathy came to the laboratory.

But she didn't think too much about it at that time.

After heading to the personnel department, Amy finished the resignation procedures. Many colleagues around her came to say goodbye to her.

"I'm just a scapegoat this time. You all have to be wary of Kathy. Or you will be the one to be fired next time."

"Really? I don't expect her that she is so scheming. She looks so innocent."

"Yes, I remember seeing her deliberately seduce Mr. Joseph once."

"Yeah. She seemed to have got in Mr. Joseph's car before!"

In the president's office, Julian sat opposite Joseph with a smug smile on his face.

"It's rare for my brother to find me."

"Julian, did I make your life too easy lately?" Joseph raised his head, revealing the coldness in his eyes.

"Really? I don't think I have done anything wrong lately."

"You hurt my people."

Upon hearing this, Julian chuckled, "Brother, who did I hurt?"

"Kathy."

"Tut-tut, you just fired Amy. How does this have anything to do with me?"

"I didn't ask you to admit it by telling you to come over. I'm just very upset." When Joseph finished, he actually grabbed Julian by the collar and kicked him hard.

Julian didn't have time to react and was punched, which almost made him fall off the sofa.

He raised his head and glared at Joseph.

He dared to kick him for a woman!

"It's right to be upset, Joseph. I just want you to be pissed off. I'm telling you, I won't let her go!" Julian threatened him viciously.

"If you must challenge me, then try it." Joseph's eyes were extremely cold.

Julian covered his leg, trying to fight back, but Joseph didn't give him the chance at all.

"Don't touch my people, Julian," he said coldly.

"One part is mine," Joseph laughed in the face of Kathy's expression.

Kathy shrugged. Getting out of bed, the two of them sat at the table. Joseph poured her soup, and added condiments for her, his ministrations precise and gentle. Kathy was at a loss. One day he'd treat another woman like this. The thought wrenched at her.

Impulsively she asked, "Hasn't Grandfather pushed you to remarry?" She remembered that when she'd become part of their household, Grandfather had been quite nervous about their marriage.

"He hasn't been around, so no."

"Oh."

"You really want me to remarry?" he feigned hurt.

She furrowed her brow. "Not really."

"Why?"

"No reason," Kathy replied, and left it at that. The thought of him marrying another woman was torture for her.

"If you don't want me to, I won't," he told her seriously.

Hearing this, she looked up, unable to hide her surprise. "It's your affair, not mine," she said evenly, concealing her joy.

"Is that so?" Joseph asked, giving her a long hard look.

Kathy felt she could hide nothing from him. "Of course it is. Or else what?" she countered.

He laughed lowly. "I don't want to hurt my ex-wife."

"You won't," she insisted.

"Ms. Fleming, please understand, as you're at Ocean University, you must follow our rules."

despicable."

Gradually, others began to tune in to their conversation, and then Kathy understood: they all think she'd purposely gotten herself locked in, forcing Joseph to come save her. But she'd been trapped with a poisonous gas, it could have killed her!

Kathy pursed her lips. "I don't know why you're all so prejudiced against me. When the lab was destroyed, I was a victim too."

"A victim? You seem fine to me. You and Joseph have a complicated relationship, go speak with him directly," said Claire coldly.

"Do you really want him to hear about this?" Kathy's voice grew cooler. "You don't follow the university's rules, and even spread rumors about your boss... I doubt the company will let you get away with that."

The voices around them grew quiet. No one wanted Joseph to know of this. They only dared bully Kathy. And so finally Claire passed papers to Kathy and said reluctantly, "This is our content for today. Have a look."

Kathy took them, facing all those mocking faces, and felt worse immediately. Leaving the lab, she took deep breaths, trying to calm down. Then, going to Professor Watson's office, she tried to regulate her mood.

But he had sharp eyes, and saw something was off with her. "Who's bullied my student?"

"Nobody," she replied, handing the papers over.

"I heard there was an accident at the Josephs' Group Lab. What happened?" he asked instead.

He had no idea she'd been hurt. "The electricity went out, and all the instruments are in the process of being repaired."

Chapter 349 Admitted To The Hospital

Kathy came out in a short while, but she still had to wait for the report.
Bertie was still there, and Kathy raised her eyes to look at him.
But after a long while, she still did not know what to say.
If she asked him to leave, he would not have listened.
Yet his presence disturbed her.
"What time would the report be available?" Zofia could only try to dissolve the awkwardness forcefully.
"After an hour.'
Kathy went down to pay the fees and then waited at the corridor.
Bertie was opposite her, leaning against the wall.
His handsome face often attracted attention, and soon quite a lot of female nurses began to hurdle over, some who were braver even asked for his WeChat contact.
Bertie was already used to situations like this, just that Kathy was sitting opposite him.
"Sorry, but I didn't want the person I like to misunderstand," Bertie's voice was laced with coldness.
It disappointed the female nurses surrounding him a lot.
Kathy lowered her head looking at her phone, ignoring all of this the entire time.
It was about time, and she should go to get her report. Zofia waited for her in the examination room, while Kathy went alone.
But she saw someone that she did not want to see.

Herbert was here for her body check-up. When she saw Kathy, her intricate brow raised up.

“Such a coincidence?”

Kathy frowned and ignored Herbert.

Yet Herbert did not care, “Let me guess why you’re in the hospital, are you hurt?”

“Herbert, my affairs are none of your business.”

“Pfft, we were once classmates after all, is there a need to be so cold?”

Kathy smiled coldly, “There is.”

“Say, where have you got such courage to treat me like this. Was it the bankruptcy of the Herbert group that made you so arrogant?”

Not long after, the door of the examination room was opened and the doctor came out.

Zofia had already waked up, but her emotions were still very unstable.

“The patient has been through a shock, for now I would recommend some medication to aid the treatment. The family members may go in now.”

Bertie stood at the door and did not go in, he only watched as Kathy accompanied her.

Zofia stared at the ceiling unblinkingly. She only turned slowly after a long while.

“Where is this?”

“The hospital,” Kathy helped her sit up worriedly.

Zofia’s complexion was so pale it was terrifying, the fear at the bottom of her eyes still dwindled.

“Oh.”

“It’s alright now, Zofia,” Kathy hugged her. Her temperature was very low, and her body was still trembling.

It was the fear deep inside her bones.

“Can I be released from the hospital?”

“The doctor is giving you a prescription, let me go ask.”

As she said so, Kathy wanted to go out. But Zofia hung onto her on instinct, “Don’t leave...”

She lowered her eyes, the tears in her eyes moistened her entire eye socket.

Kathy’s heart ached even more for her.

“I really am weak, I can’t accept myself like this,” Zofia mumbled.

Kathy looked at Zofia. She was already deep in self-blame, and it was hard for her to get out.

Leaning in Kathy’s embrace, Zofia fell asleep not long after. There were some sedatives in the drip and it could help to release her nervous emotions.

Kathy helped her to lie down, and Bertie had already come in unknowingly.

“I’ll accompany her tonight, she can only be released from the hospital tomorrow.”

Kathy looked at the time, it was already night time.

“I should stay,” Kathy still felt guilty over this incident.

“You don’t have to feel guilty, this incident was not your fault, Zofia’s very strong.”

Kathy was silent and she still did not leave.
