

Sweetheart 351

Chapter 351 Obsessed

Joseph heard her words and frowned.

“Why?”

“I want to be an excellent doctor like you.”

“A doctor needs good mental qualities.”

“I will control my emotions.”

“If you can enter a medical university, then consider these questions again.” Joseph calmly said.

Veronica was a little angry that he didn’t trust her.

“Do you think I will fail?”

“Veronica, I hope you could think about it carefully before doing anything rather than impulsively.”

Actually Joseph believed her because they were very similar. If they decided to do something, they must succeed.

So he hoped she could think it carefully.

Veronica heard his words and kept silent.

When she was young, her brother was her idol. She wanted to follow his footsteps to be a doctor.

She had this idea before but she didn’t have the courage to say it.

“I really want to be a doctor.” Veronica seriously said.

“Now I don’t have time to teach you. If you have made the decision, Quinn will come over and help you with your lesson.”

Hearing the name “Quinn”, it drove Veronica crazy.

“No, don’t tell him. I can learn by myself.” Veronica was even nervous.

Joseph raised his eyebrow and said, “I don’t think there is a more suitable teacher than him.”

“I will learn by myself and I don’t need anyone’s help.” Veronica was stubborn.

“It is up to you.”

“Does Veronica hurt you just now?” Zofia worriedly looked at Kathy.

She was awakened by Veronica’s voice and explained to her just now so Veronica was not angry anymore.

Kathy shook her head, “I am fine.”

"I am sorry to get you into trouble."

At this time, Veronica ordered the bodyguard to place the nutritional products given by the classmates. She walked to Joseph and asked, "What do you want to eat later? I will buy it."

"I don't need. You may go home now."

"Hum. I want to accompany you."

"She will stay with me." Joseph looked at Kathy.

Kathy blinked, she?

Veronica was also looked at her. Though she was a little unsatisfied, she didn't object it.

"You need to take good care of my brother. If anything goes wrong, you will be held responsible."
Veronica warned.

After speaking, she left soon.

Now there were only Kath and Joseph in the ward.

Kathy was nervous.

"Where are you hurt?" Kathy asked.

Why did she think Joseph was not injured?...

"I have trouble in moving around."

"Huh?" Kathy walked close to him.

Was his leg hurt?

She picked up the case beside. His right leg was broken.

"What happened?"

"I got in a car accident."

Kathy was pale with fear and nervously pulled back the quilts. Joseph had a cast on his leg.

"Is it an accident?" She asked.

"Hum" Joseph's eyes were cold.

Kathy took a long time to calm down and continued to look the case. Joseph was not seriously hurt but he might be in hospital for half a month.

"Have you hired the care worker?" Kathy asked.

He needed to be taken care of by someone.

"Originally I have but she goes back just now."

"Veronica?"

"Yes."

Kathy was muddled. Why did she feel Joseph was lying on purpose?

Veronica had trouble in moving around. How could she take care of him?

Chapter 353 He is Your Ex-husband

Kathy took a deep breath and was going to leave with the bag in her hand.

Feeling much relieved now, she would not like to come again, no more worried or concerned about him.

Joseph stayed in the room of hospital, unable to continue his work.

Seeing John leaving him, he asked him with hesitation, "Just now, I was too mean?"

He remembered how horribly Kathy was looking at him, almost crying out.

In turn, Joseph had never been an emotional man to Kathy.

John did not give an answer at once; actually, he dared not say "yes". Who would take the risk to talk about the boss mean in front of boss himself?

He had to answer his boss seriously, "No, absolutely not. Mr. Joseph."

Joseph narrowed his eyes to say, "Really?"

John was so nervous to have some sweat, "Sure...of course."

...

When Kathy back to the school room, Zofia was surprised to see her.

She asked Kathy, "Won't you be with him tonight?"

Kathy answered peacefully, "No, I won't."

Zofia watched her to say, "You are different today."

Kathy was uncomfortable with her look...

Zofia continued to ask, "What's his problem?"

"Fracture."

"Oh, I'm sorry to hear that." Zofia expected Joseph to talk about his problem more seriously than it was; he only tried to meet Kathy in this way. But it was true that he was really hurt badly.

Kathy said, "He has to be in hospital for days."

"Will you visit him every day?"

Kathy bit her lips to answer, "I...I won' do it."

"Do you worry about him?"

"No. He has nothing to do with me."

"Come to hospital. I will give you the answer."

But Kathy said, "... I have something to do."

"See you." Joseph hung off the call soon.

Just the moment, Kathy realized Joseph always waited for her to hang off first when they had a call before.

She started to be disappointed with him.

But Kathy got to think about Joseph's saying on the phone. To change the team?

It was like that there would be all new colleagues here when she came here next week.

Although it was the first stage of the research, the whole process would be postponed by his decision.

Kathy left the lab with worry and told it to Zofia.

Zofia asked, "What's wrong with you in your lab? I think Joseph did it with purpose."

Kathy answered, "The colleagues there don't like me." In fact, she did not care about their attitude.

Zofia said, "That's why he would like to do. Joseph loves you too much to see you unhappy there."

Kathy frowned, "He does not..."

"So, he doesn't do it for you."

Kathy kept silent; actually, she was eager to know why he made the decision.

She hated to make the process slow for her personal problem.

Kathy started to say, "I am going to the hospital."

"Hey, will you come back later? Anyway, I will lock our room door."

"Yes, I will go back soon."

"Don't fool me."

"Don't lock the door."

Half an hour later, Kathy got to the hospital and walked directly to Joseph's premier room.

It was almost mid-night when nobody was on the corridor. There was so quiet that she even could hear the noise of her own steps.

Kathy stopped at the door outside his room.

After a while, Joseph said, "Come in."

Kathy bit her lips and opened the door.

Kathy burst out laughing, some sweet sensations spreading through her heart.
"I've nothing to do over there, so I won't bother you. Take a good rest."

After replying to the message, Kathy started today's study plan.

But soon after, Joseph called her directly.

"I had a bad fall yesterday. Now I've difficulty moving, but no one is taking care of me." His tone of voice was less serious than usual, and sounded like a spoiled child instead.

"Why did you fall?"

"You flung yourself upon me yesterday, didn't you? My wound split open because of you."

Kathy was rendered speechless.

The truth was that Joseph deliberately held her in his arms.

"Then go to the doctor."

"I did it. The doctor said I need someone to be with me."

"I'm not available."

"John's already waiting for you downstairs."

Kathy was again rendered speechless.

She stepped onto the balcony and sure enough, there was a high-profile car parked in front of her dorm.

It was true...

She also wanted to see him...

"Wait a moment. Have you eaten yet?" Kathy asked.

"Not yet."

"Then I'll buy you food."

After hanging up the phone, Kathy went to the cafeteria to buy lunch before getting into the car.

At the hospital.

Veronica came to visit Joseph in the morning. When she heard his conversation with Kathy on the phone, she got goosebumps.

"Joseph, you're so annoying." Veronica put on a disgruntled look on her face.

She never had a good attitude towards Kathy.

Even though she had now changed her impression of Kathy, it was because she was forced to do so by her brother.

"If you find me annoying, then don't come here," Joseph said in an indifferent voice.

"You don't even think of me as your sister now," Veronica was jealous.

John quickly went out to take care of things, and Joseph remained as calm as ever.
Kathy, however, was not as calm as he was. She didn't want anything to happen to the Joseph's Group.
Seeing that Kathy was worried, Joseph's lips curled, "You're worried?"
"No." Kathy averted her eyes.

"Because of me, you're also worried that something will happen to the Joseph's Group." Joseph had already seen through her.

"After all, I've worked at the Joseph's Group for a while," Kathy could only explain.

"Don't worry. I'm here. Everything will be fine," Joseph vowed.

Kathy looked at him. Joseph's words were always easy to convince her.

She also never doubted his ability.

Whether it was in his profession as a doctor, or as president of the Joseph's Group, he was capable of anything.

In the evening, Kathy returned to the dormitory.

The news of Joseph's Group's faulty new drug inevitably leaked out, despite the public relations efforts that were launched. Previously, sales of new drugs were skyrocketing, but now they were starting to fall.

Kathy watched the news and didn't want to pay attention. But when it came to Joseph, she couldn't ignore it.

Zofia leaned in. Looking at her computer, she shook her head and said, "I've heard that it's a pretty big deal and could be fatal."

"It won't," Kathy said quietly.

"I hope not, either. The drug is inexpensive and effective. It's a boon for patients. It would be a shame if it did get pulled from the market."

"I believe in the Joseph's Group."

Zofia looked at her, "You really love him, even with his company. What drug did Joseph give you to make you trust him so much?"

Kathy was stunned, then laughed and didn't deny it.

Joseph's eyes were cold, and he turned slightly to the side. Several other patients, who didn't believe the results, joined him. Once again, the scene was chaotic.

The dean yelled at the crowd, but it didn't seem to help.

Joseph was in the middle of the crowd, and Kathy saw his crutches being taken away from him.

"Joseph!" Kathy's face turned white. She went over immediately.

It was just so crowded that she couldn't get in at all.

After a while, when the crowd finally dispersed a bit, she couldn't see Joseph anymore.

Suddenly, a familiar voice sounded beside her, "Miss Kathy."

It was John.

"Where's Joseph!"

"Mr. Joseph has gone back to his ward. Please follow me."

Hearing his words, Kathy looked to the crowd. She was relieved to see that Joseph was really not there.

Walking into the elevator, Kathy asked John, who was beside her, "Is he okay?"

"Miss Kathy, don't worry. Mr. Joseph is fine."

When she arrived at the ward, she found that there were many more bodyguards. Kathy immediately saw the intimidating man sitting on the couch.

She looked at his long legs. She had just seen him on crutches, but now it seemed that he was fine...

Joseph crossed his long legs. His posture was consistently languid and noble, fatally attractive.

She looked at him unblinkingly. She really could not associate him with a patient.

The moment she had just seen his crutches snatched away, she was truly terrified.

"Are you all right?" Kathy asked with a shudder.

She really couldn't quite believe it ...

"No." Joseph grabbed her wrist and pulled her to sit beside him.

Kathy kept staring at him.

Especially his long legs wrapped in his suit pants. Without a cast and wearing expensive shoes, no matter how much she looked at him, she couldn't see that he was injured.

"I thought you were all right ..." She murmured.

"You want to see my wounds?" Joseph narrowed his eyes.

Chapter 358 She Had not Believed in the Wrong Person

One hour later, John returned to the hospital.

"I have taken Kathy back to her campus safely."

"Alright, recently Julian should have assigned some people to come; you replace the group of bodyguards but keep his men." Joseph said.

"But, isn't this dangerous?" John worried.

If Julian's men got close to Joseph, then what about his safety...

"Just stay alert."

"Alright, of course."

"Sir, Herbert was also involved in the matter. The statements that were spread online were all arranged by her." John handed him over the investigation report.

The statements were very clearly directed at Joseph and in addition to this, some of the patient's statements were also put into the mix. This meant that some of the Joseph's Group's new pharmaceuticals were all affected to some degree.

Although the Joseph's Group had now already cleared everything up, this may still affect the sales in the short term.

"She won't be able to do much since even if she takes the evidence to the police station, she can't get rid of the charges for the slander and defamation." Joseph said coldly.

Three days later, Kathy saw the news of Herbert's arrest.

She never expected that the person who posted the rumours online was her.

After the Herbert's Group bankruptcy, she still wasn't able to sit still.

This was because Kathy believed that Herbert could not have done what she did alone.

There must be at least someone else working in the background.

Kathy's face fell, she hadn't been to the hospital for a few days now and didn't even know if Joseph had been discharged from the hospital or not.

Tomorrow was Friday, and since she hadn't heard any news that the class was canceled, could this mean that he would still be coming tomorrow?

Kathy put her phone down, however without realizing she had pressed the number to call Joseph.

"Yes?" Kathy was shocked to hear the familiar voice...

She blinked her eyes when she looked at her screen and saw she was in a call with him.

How come she was close to crying after calling Joseph?

"Wrong number." She took her phone.

"You're not going to ask how I'm doing?" Joseph's voice was a little hoarse.

Kathy noticed his hoarse voice and asked, "Are you sick?"

"You and Julian are not able to escape this." Joseph had no intention of helping Herbert.

"I have a lot of evidence of his bribery over the last few years; I think you will need it."

After he heard this, Joseph's expression sharpened.

"With this evidence he would have to leave the Joseph's Group." Herbert approached him and said coldly.

"How do I know if you are deceiving me or not?" Joseph narrowed his eyes.

In exchange for her freedom she would be a person able to do anything.

"Joseph, right now I extremely hate Julian."

When Herbert came out, Kathy was sitting on the other side of the corridor.

She frowned and then walked over to her.

However Kathy never expected that she would be apologizing to her, "I'm sorry."

Kathy was shocked and looked at Herbert suspiciously.

Herbert laughed, "Are you surprised? I have been thinking about many things over the last few days I was at the police station. These last few years I had been secretly helping Julian do many things, however I never would have thought that in the end he would report me, don't you think this is ridiculous?"

"You only have yourself to blame." Kathy said rather indifferently, then paused and asked, "That time when my thesis was swapped, was that also one of Julian's orders?"

If Herbert really had been helping Julian all these years, then it could be possible that the incident regarding her thesis had something to do with him.

But why would Julian do something like this.

She didn't even know him.

"It was me who did that kind of thing, I'm jealous of you Kathy." Herbert's expression was completely unperturbed.

However Kathy never believed too much and knew that Herbert wouldn't say much more about this anymore.

"Soon it is very possible that I could be sentenced to prison, so Kathy I wish you all the best."

Once Herbert said this she turned around and left.

Kathy however thought that what Herbert said was a little strange.

She just didn't understand.

When she entered the patient ward, Joseph was not surprised to see her.

"Did you miss me?" Joseph raised his lips.

Kathy glared at him rather irritably and said, "It was the professor who asked me to send you his condolences for him."

Chapter 360 Don't Make Use Of Her Again

"Brother, what are you doing?"

Joseph pursed his thin lips in a nippy manner and did not speak a word.

This appearance of Joseph made Veronica a little afraid.

Veronica looked at her brother's leg, doubtfully, "Aren't you almost ready to be discharged from the hospital? Why does it seem to be getting worse, did Julian do something to it?"

"Don't worry, I'm fine." It was a long time before Joseph's face softened.

After leaving the hospital, Kathy's heart was in turmoil.

Joseph's words of remarriage with her may have been a joke, but she was unable to calm down.

As soon as she got on the bus, her cell phone rang. It was a call from Jennifer, asking her to go to the Hilton Family's house for a while.

Kathy wanted to reject it, but she had no classes at night. After thinking about it, she hadn't seen Jennifer for more than half a month.

It would take at least half an hour to get down from the station and walk to the villa, so Billy drove out to pick her up.

Billy's face was tense, and it was apparent that he was not in a good mood.

Kathy didn't say anything either, and both of them had their own thoughts.

Only when she got out of the car did Billy open his mouth, "Have you been close to Joseph lately?"

"Nothing to do with you, is it?" Kathy did not want to answer.

"The Hilton Group is going bankrupt." Billy suddenly said.

The Hilton Group's situation was awful recently due to the Herbert Group's bankruptcy. The market share of the Joseph Group's new drugs was very high, and currently even the Hilton Group's original market share was snatched away by the Joseph Group.

A large number of unsold drugs on the market were all belonged to the Hilton Group.

Joseph's tactics were long-established to target the Hilton Group.

It was just that Billy had just realized it now.

Kathy was surprised by the news.

In her opinion, the Hilton Group was a big and famous enterprise, and the bankruptcy of the Herbert Group was expected, so how could even the Hilton Group be affected so much.

"Mom can't sit still now, and she wanted you to return and help. Do you believe it?" Billy even laughed out at this time.

He was busy cleaning up the Hilton Group's mess, but it seemed to be useless. Jennifer was mobilizing her forces to help, but Joseph's blow was too much of a surprise.

Kathy was silent and went directly into the villa.
