My Sweetheart

Chapter 391 I am Always Here with You

Kathy certainly knew it, too embarrassed to put her hands well. She had to run to the bed, with a blanket covering herself.

But soon Joseph started to walk towards her.

Kathy bit her lips and watched Joseph helplessly.

Joseph had a swallow and seemed to be more aggressive from his eyes.

He extended his hands to hold the leaving Kathy in his arms.

Kathy struggled to say, "Joseph, let me go... Now take a shower please. Shower please."

Joseph acted like a wild animal and said, "No!"

Kathy was so badly scared by him but could do nothing to stop him, only staying in his arms to lose all control of her own move.

They had not been in such a relationship for long time. Kathy was unable to make it easily.

However, Joseph led her too gently that helped Kathy feel at ease.

She did not refuse him anymore, closing her eyes as well as holding the bed sheet tightly.

Just the moment, Kathy felt some warm liquid coming from her body...

She had to push Joseph and curled her legs.

"Sorry, my period is coming..." She avoided seeing Joseph now.

She knew he definitely got angry.

Joseph took a deep breath and changed to cuddle Kathy and kiss the middle of her eyebrow.

She asked, "Do you have something..."

Joseph frowned to ask, "What did you say?"

"Sanitary..."

"I have to ask Veronica."

Veronica fell asleep and was disturbed with someone knocking at her door so late. She came to open the door to see his angry elder brother and dared not blame him.

It was obvious something disappointed him.

She asked, "Hey, Joseph. What are you doing?"

Joseph was unwilling to say, "I would like to get something sanitary."

"I-I-I-I-I!" Veronica could not help laughing and then seemed to understand something, "I know why you look annoyed now."

Kathy smiled, “How could there be so much tears?”
Bertie looked at her intently, Kathy had been so wounded ever since she came out from the hospital. He frowned, perhaps Kathy found out about something...
But at this moment, he dared not to ask.
Kathy always liked spicy food, but ever since Alexia left City N she had almost never had it again. This time she ate to her heart’s content. Watching Bertie ate until he was sweaty as well, Kathy passed him a tissue.
“I rarely have any friend who can tolerate so much of spiciness,” Kathy said.
Even Zofia almost never ate spicy food.
Bertie’s lip curled, “Then when you crave spicy food afterwards, you can always find me, I’ll always be there.”

Hearing this, Kathy's expression froze.

Although she had turned Bertie down for many times, she knew that he never gave up.

After a long while, she put down her chopsticks, "I'm together with Joseph now, although he too doesn't like spicy food, but I'll accompany him to have something else."

Hearing this, Bertie stunned.

Together?

These words coming from Kathy's mouth were really cruel to him.

He was trying his best to control his anger.

"When did this happen?"

"Not long ago."

"Alright, you have my best wishes," these words of Bertie were half true and half false.

"Thank you, thank you for what you did today."

She returned the coat to Bertie and Kathy went to pay voluntarily. But when she came out, she saw Joseph coming out of the restaurant opposite.

This mall was located nearby the Joseph group.

Kathy was surprised and she halted in her footsteps.

But Bertie's hand was on Kathy's shoulder, and she had not realised it at the moment.

When Joseph's eyes swept towards here, he saw the two being close.

He stopped in his steps and ordered for the managers to leave first, while he walked towards this direction.

"Why are you here?" Joseph came close, he did not look at Bertie at all.

He held onto Kathy's hand naturally.

"I was just here to have my meal coincidentally, and I'm going back to campus now," Kathy lowered her head.

She felt some anger coming from Joseph's expression.

Kathy saw that smile and she was about to be drunk. She blinked and did not manage to resist him, and Joseph's kiss already landed. He kissed her until her face was all red, then only he let her go. "This is an office!" Kathy was a little angry. Although no one would come in at this hour, but she was still uneasy... "Yes, a place that I could do something to you at any time."

Kathy, "..."

Why was this not quite like the Dr Joseph she knew!

Yet the feeling of sweetness was overwhelming and she hugged Joseph tight.

When she went back to her dormitory it was already twelve at midnight, yet she had not seen Zofia.

Kathy was a bit worried and called her, but no one picked up at all.

She went down from the dormitory and she saw that Joseph had yet to leave.

“Why are you running down again?”

“Zofia hasn’t come back yet, I’m worried that something might have happened to her,” Kathy replied anxiously.

Joseph frowned, “Let’s look around on campus.”

Kathy nodded, because she was too worried, when Joseph held onto her hand she did not push him away.

The campus at this hour basically had not many people, the two walked all the way to the field. There was a scattered forest nearby, and some indistinct sounds were coming out of it.

“Sonny...”

It was Zofia’s voice!

Kathy wanted to speak out of instinct, yet she immediately muffled her own mouth.

Zofia was together with Sonny.

She knew that the two had been close recently, then they would possibly be dating?

If that was so she would be relieved.

She retreated immediately, but she accidentally knocked into Joseph’s embrace.

He held onto her steadily, obviously knowing what was going on.

Seeing Kathy, Joseph was calmer than before and put down his fist. At that time, Aaron took the chance to strangle Kathy.

Kathy's face suddenly paled.

Aaron frantically laughed, pinching Kathy's neck hard all the time.

Joseph narrowed his eyes and kicked Aaron. Several students standing beside worried that they would be seriously injured so came to stop them.

But Aaron kept pushing Kathy out. Joseph kicked him several times but he still didn't stop. Kathy felt hard to breathe and she could not open her eyes gradually.

It was so hard.

She could not see clearly but she saw Joseph worried about her and he looked angry at this time.

At the moment, Joseph quickly attacked Aaron and he had no time to react. He fell on the ground in a very awkward position. Kathy finally could breathe but she was too weak to stand and her face was pale.

When she was almost in a coma, Joseph held her up.

The students helped Aaron up but he was drunk and slept.

Joseph took Kathy back to the hospital and he went straight to the clinic.

The health workers came here and Joseph simply told them the situation. He was always by Kathy's side.

Kathy was a little dizzy. Aaron strangled her hard just now and there was a strangulation mark on her neck.

She was so weak and the doctor told her to have an intravenous drip. She could leave after the injection.

But she needed to work tonight.

Kathy stopped the nurse from giving her the injection. "I don't need it."

Joseph looked gloomy now and he held Kathy's hands so she could not move.

"I have watched this part several times. Do you take the surgical tool?"

"Yes" Kathy nodded.

"These tools are taken out from the cardiothoracic surgery. Do you disinfect them before sending them to the operating room?" Aaron queried.

Kathy's face suddenly paled. At that time the nurse told her it was already disinfected.

She immediately explained. "These tools are disinfected before."

"Are you sure?" Aaron sneered.

Then he played another video that the nurse handed the tools to Kathy and told her to disinfect them.

How come?...

Kathy clearly remembered the nurse didn't say the sentence in the video and her voice was different too.

"I will find her and figure it out. This video is different from the situation."

Aaron didn't give her the chance to find the evident. He said, "The nurse follows a Professor to a meeting abroad. I have already sent the video to president and hospital director. You will be punished."

"Professor Aaron. It was not true. If the nurse tells me to disinfect them, definitely I will do it."

"Nobody knows whether you do it on purpose."

Kathy staggered back and nearly fell.

If everybody thought it was her mistake, then her life would be ruined.

Why was the surveillance video different from the real situation?

Kathy was in ghastly fears. She stood in the office and wanted to check the video but it was locked.

She had no choice.

Soon Joseph knew about it.

Aaron believed Kathy made the mistake. Now Benedict was not here and Aaron took over the patient. He was in charge.

Joseph listened to John's report and he gradually became angry.

"Mr. Joseph. Where do you go? You have to attend a meeting later." Seeing Joseph was going to leave, John hurriedly said.

"Cancel it." Joseph indifferently ordered.

Chapter 396 I will never let the one I want go

Kathy felt warmth in her heart at the moment. She had been shattered and bruised before she met Joseph, but her world was no longer cold after knowing him.

Standing on tiptoe, she met his deep black eyes and kissed his chin. She relaxed, and then leaned reliantly on his chest.

Regardless of the final result, she would try her best to find out what happened this time.

However, there was not much time left for her.

It would be a week before the nurse who had negotiated with her returned home.

They returned to the dorm absent-mindedly, but Joseph didn't let go of her hand.

"Don't go to the hospital tomorrow." He said.

“But... I'm still in charge of the patient.”

“Aaron has found a student to replace you, now all you have to do is wait for Benedict to return.”

“Do you think I will sit back and do nothing?” Kathy said irritably.

“You will not, so stay with me.” After the words came, Joseph led her into the car without any explanation.

Kathy resisted, “No, I still stay in school.”

“But, I am worried about you.”

Joseph fastened Kathy's seat belt, and prevented her from leaving.

In fact, she didn't want to leave him either.

She wanted Joseph to be with her at her most vulnerable moment.

Her mobile phone was charged in the car for a while, and Zofia's call came after the phone was turned on.

“Kathy, where have you been?”

“I was walking in school just now, and I won't go back tonight.”

“Where are you? I'll come to you.”

Kathy glanced at Joseph. “I'm with Joseph tonight.”

“Then I can set my mind at rest. Please let me know if you are in trouble.”

"So you mean someone framed you?" The principal squinted.

"I think, yes."

"You're talking nonsense! Kathy, do you still want to quibble? You have caused a lot of troubles at Ocean University, which has seriously affected the reputation of the school. You're a man of bad character, and I think you should take a break from school and reflect on yourself." The principal said very harshly.

Kathy was stunned that the principal's words undoubtedly confirmed her charge.

"Principal, please believe me, I'm innocent in this case."

"Then you prove it." Principle said with a poker face.

Kathy was silent for a while and then said, "The nurse who handed over to me will return in a few days. I'll confront her face to face."

"Kathy, the surveillance video has showed it all, you are stalling for time!" Aaron questioned.

"I just want to clear my name."

"Don't mess around." The principal frowned and resented.

Now Kathy fully understood their attitude towards this matter.

She didn't even have a chance to explain.

But, she still had to fight for it.

"Principal, please give me a chance, one week, I only need a week's time."

"Fine, I'll give you a week. If you can't produce any evidence at that time, I will order you to quit school."

Kathy looked pale, and she nodded, "Thank you, principal."

After Kathy left, Aaron looked at principal, "Principal, why did you leave time for her to collect evidence?"

"If I don't even give her a chance, what the others will think of our school. After all, she is still a student of the Ocean University, and we have to pretend to protect her."

"But..."

"She can't find out anything." The principle said coldly.

After leaving the office, Kathy was spiritless.

She was not sure of getting the evidence within a week.

If the nurse who handed over to her did not tell the truth, then she would be ruined.

Joseph took Kathy to race over to Benedict's hospital room. A nurse blocked them in the doorway, and asked, “Are you relatives of the patient?”

Worriedly Kathy replied, “I'm Professor Watson's student.”

The nurse said coldly, “If you're not a family member, you can't visit.”

Joseph's expression didn't change. His gaze fell on the tightly shut door. He went over and pushed it open. The nurse wanted to stop him, but his aura of power was too strong—she didn't dare. All she could do was to remind outsider, “You can't interrupt the patient's rest!” Then she hurried to report the incident to her superiors.

Inside the room, Benedict was looking lively, a book in his hands. “Professor Watson!” Kathy exclaimed, rushing over with great concern.

He looked at them in surprise. “How did you two come to be here?”

Softly she said, “When I couldn't reach you, I was so worried. I had to come.” Seeing him looking well, she felt such relief.

"I lost my phone in the accident, and I can't leave the hospital. My assistant is in the hospital as well," he replied with a furrowed brow. Though he'd not been badly hurt, the doctor had insisted he remain in the hospital to be examined. He himself was a doctor, he was quite familiar with his own condition.

"Professor, are you all right?" Kathy asked with concern.

"By and large, yes."

"Then..." Kathy looked at Joseph.

"Is she okay?" Bertie asked, calling her immediately.

"I think so, but inside she must be suffering."

"Take good care of her."

"I will. I can't help but think that ever since she enrolled, bad things have happened to her."

"She should never have enrolled at Ocean University."

"Why?"

Bertie did not reply. Some things, even he didn't know too much about. "It's late, get some sleep."

He hung up on her, and Zofia, looking at her phone, felt quite frustrated. Why would he be so vague?

The next day, Kathy woke quite early. Benedict was back, and she wanted to train with him. She went to the hospital, which she still felt a bit apprehensive about. The patient who'd been infected had not yet woken. Because Aaron was not a neurologist, the patient had been passed on to Benedict.

Aaron, seeing Kathy, narrowed his eyes. "Benedict, why have you brought Kathy?"

"She's my student."

“Miss Bridges, tell me your term. Who secretly instructs you to slander Kathy?” Joseph always said in an indifferent tone.

He turned a blind eye to Ella’s being cute.

Ella thought Joseph’s tone was so cold as if he only regarded her as a business partner.

It was different from her imagination.

“I want you to marry me.” She finally had the courage to say these words.

She didn’t expect she could meet Joseph again and she would never give up this chance this time.

Joseph heard her words and kept the same expression.

Ella was Sophie Fisher.

He knew it.

“If I don’t marry you, you will not help Kathy clean the air, right?” Joseph said in a low and dangerous tone.

His gaze made her felt scared and nervous.

But she still tried to keep her courage and said, “I have no idea what you’re talking about. If you marry me, you will be my husband and definitely I will help you. If you won’t, I won’t either.”

Joseph frowned. He understood what Ella meant.

He also knew that Kathy would definitely be dropped out of school without Ella’s help.

Now he still could not influence the decision of Ocean University but the woman in front of him was the only one who could change the current situation.

Joseph pressed his eyebrows. Instead of drinking the glass of wine, he picked up the lemonade next to him.

He knew her tricks too well.

That glad of wine had been already drugged.

“What do you think? Joseph, you would benefit from our marriage and my stepdad’s family is much stronger than the Smith family.” Ella looked at him expectantly.

But Joseph’s indifference made her upset.

She looked down and felt depressed.

“Ella, we could get married.”

When she almost lost her confidence, she heard Joseph’s words in a deep tone.
