Chapter 431

Joseph pursed his thin lip. He was never used to explaining, and at this moment, he didn't say anything.

At that time, Ella threatened him to marry her so that she would help Kathy clarifying the medical accident.

And thereafter, he played a trick to investigate the person behind Ella.

There was never a moment when he thought of marrying Ella.

"Joseph, why do you marry her then, do you like her?" Kathy asked nervously.

This was something that she didn't want to ask in the past.

The biggest fear was that the answer would disappoint her.

"That wedding, it wouldn't have taken place." After a while, Joseph spoke.

To her surprise, "So you have arranged it all along?"

Why would the Ella's family took the people away only on the day of the wedding, all this, she thought was just a coincidence.

"Yup, I wouldn't marry her."

"Then why do you agree to this marriage at the beginning?" Kathy asked with a low voice.

A certain thought flashed through her mind, was it because of her?

It happened just at that time when Ella helped her.

But...she didn't even associate that two matters together at that time.

I needed to check the Bridges family.

"Oh."

"Stop thinking of nonsense. We will remarry when you are discharged from the hospital." Joseph said it without a doubt.

Pouting her lips with a resistant look, Kathy said, "No, it can't be so perfunctory."

"Perfunctory?" Joseph frowned.

"Of course, we were in a hurry last time when we got married but this time was not allowed."

"What does Mrs Joseph want?"

"Don't call me that, I am not Mrs Joseph yet!" Kathy said in a righteous manner.

Joseph smiled, "Hmm, Kat?"

He had always remembered Kathy's nickname.

As the words fell, Kathy was slightly lost in her thought for a moment, she remembered that there was also a boy who had once called her that.

Billy pursed his lips and remained silent for a long time.

"I want to go out." He said in a deep voice after pausing for a long while.

"Do you think it's possible? In addition to the crime of producing fake drugs, Joseph still has the evidence of you raping Veronica a few years back in his hands, and these two crimes are enough to let you rot in jail for the rest of your life." Jennifer shook her head saying.

Billy sneered as he did not think that a day like this will come.

However, he was fully prepared for it.

"Kathy had an operation after the car accident. During the operation, a chip was implanted in her brain, which can only be controlled by drugs and cannot be taken out."

“What?” Jennifer’s face suddenly turned pale.

“You think that I am lying to you? If you don't believe me, then watch as Kathy’s life starts being threatened by this chip, her memory will gradually decline, and when all her memories are gone, she will die.”

“You are talking nonsense!” Jennifer was so angry that she could not hold back.

She could not help but stood up, her eyes were red with anger as she stared at Billy with a deadly glare.

However, he still remained as carefree as ever.

“Is that so? Then you should go out now, there is no need for us to discuss further.”

Jennifer wanted to leave, but her feet felt like as if they were stuck there and she could not move.

Her heart slowly turned cold.

“Why are you doing this?” She chose to sit down after thinking for a while.

“I know what Joseph is capable of, he won’t let me go, so I had to be the one to make the first move.” Billy said in a deep voice.

Jennifer lowered her eyes and clenched her fists, but she was still trembling with fear.

She absolutely could not let anything happen to her daughter.

“All I can do is to help you reduce your sentence.” Jennifer said in a softer tone.

“Within three years.” Billy replied back.

“I will think of a way, so where is the medicine?” Jennifer asked nervously.

“It's in the third cabinet in the study room, but there's only a month's worth of medicine. After that, it all depends on what you do, mom.” Billy showed a winning smile.

Jennifer did not know how she arrived back to the Hilton family’s house; the limousine had been parked at the door for a long time.

“Where is Joseph? I do not see him for a long time.”

After hearing that, Kathy was stiff, yes...

She thought Joseph was busy working so she did not see him.

But it was the third day, Kathy could not control herself anymore.

“Maybe he is busy with the stuff in the Joseph’s Group,” Kathy said sadly.

“He should come and see you no matter how busy he is. You just rekindle your relationship with him recently, both of you should stay together every day...” Zofia nagged her.

Kathy thought for a while, her words sounded true...

After Zofia left, Kathy looked at the book but she could not focus on its content.

She took her phone and could not help dialling Joseph’s phone number.

But John accepted the call.

“Sorry, Ms Kathy, Mr Joseph is still having a meeting.”

“When will he finish the meeting?”

“Probably need three more hours.”

“Okay, noted.”

After hanging up her phone, the sense of depression was overwhelming. Kathy did not manage to focus on her reading and decided to watch the news.

Recently, the bankrupt news of the Hilton Group was making a stir. Julian’s new company just started up.

Many people thought that the Hilton Group bankrupted in such a fast rate was because of Julian. Julian was a part of the Hilton Group and he immediately started up a new company after the Hilton Group bankrupted. He was suspicious.

Kathy did not know much about the market but the comments in the articles cleared her confusion.

Kathy searched Julian’s new company. It was a medical company too and seemed like purposely challenged the Joseph’s Group.

Out of the blue, her phone rang. It was Joseph’s call!

Kathy was nervous and accepted it instantly.

Just then, at the Joseph's Group.

Joseph just went back to the office, the familiar voice from the phone reduced his tenseness.

"Kathy," he called her.

"Wow, Joseph, are you busy?" Kathy's tone was affectionate and sweet.

Hugging Joseph, Kathy's emotions gradually returned to normal. But she didn't know what to say.

"Has everything been all right these past few days?" Joseph asked.

"Well enough. You know how it is," she replied listlessly.

"You've still got to take your medication on time," he said, looking at the bottle of pills. The nurse had already switched them, as per his request.

"I know, I'll be good." She lifted her gaze to meet his, touching her fingertips to his face. "Go get some sleep."

"Do you want me to stay?" he asked instead. Immediately he undid the top button on his shirt, his legs crossing the bed.

Seeing this, the corners of Kathy's mouth couldn't help but lift. "Yes," she said, nodding. He touched her temple tenderly, and had her lean against his chest, wrapping her up tight in his arms. It had been three days he'd not dared come.

The first time, he'd had trouble controlling his emotions. He should have protected his girl, but instead she got hurt again and again. Deep self-blame had led him to want to avoid the problem. But in the end, he'd suffered endless yearning.

"Joseph, are you unhappy?" Kathy asked, sensing his wandering thoughts.

He shook his head, lying down beside her. "I have a girlfriend, how could I be unhappy."

Kathy smiled, and seeing his handsome face mere inches from hers, she kissed him spontaneously. Joseph already had desire, and just that simple action ignited it. He narrowed his eyes to give her a wolf's look, ready to devour her.

She loved but was afraid of that expression. "Joseph, I'm still a patient!" she protested.

He shrugged and, seeing her smile, felt helpless. She really was a temptress, and he was under her spell. "Goodnight, Kathy," he murmured in her ear. Kathy fell asleep relishing in the perfect moment.

That night, Kathy saw Joseph bring a bag in, and reach for it curiously. "What did you bring me?"

"Formal attire." At her baffled look, he elaborated, "You can leave the hospital tomorrow. That night you'll accompany me to a banquet, hmm?"

"What banquet?"

"For Mathew's new company."

Kathy furrowed her brow and blurted out, "You're not going to sabotage him, are you?"

Joseph laughed. "Do you want to see me ruin things so badly?"

Kathy bit her lip. She knew Joseph better than anybody. She knew that beneath his urbane exterior lurked anger and violence. But she liked him so much. "Of course I do," she nodded, though she was only kidding.

"Tomorrow I can leave the hospital," she went on, "and soon my break will be over. I'll miss it," she admitted as she unwrapped her gown. Here she ate well, lived well, slept well. It was first-class treatment. If not for a few things, she'd consider it the finest living indeed.

He smirked. "What, you want to stay sick here?"

Immediately she shook her head. "No, no. I want to get better soon." She still had many things she needed to do—she couldn't fritter away all her time in the hospital. "I'll go try on my clothes," she said, getting out of bed to go to the restroom.

But Joseph stopped her, shutting the door and the curtains. "Try them on here."

Kathy stared. To get dressed where he could see... to have him watch... It was unacceptable. She didn't listen to him, hurried to the bathroom—but slipped in her haste, nearly fell. Joseph caught her up against him, murmuring against her hair, "Kathy, if you don't stop this, when you get out the hospital I'll take you home and not let you leave."

Julian's face turned dark. He didn't think that Kathy would talk back to him.

"Julian, I'm not here today for you to talk bad about my beloved," said Joseph cold and sternly.

"I wouldn't dare. I'm just joking, don't take it so seriously."

Julian didn't press the matter since everyone around them knew them rather well.

"My company is new, I'll be in your care in the future," said Julian as he raised his glass.

Joseph looked indifferent. He raised his glass as well, he finished his drink alone without clinking glasses with Julian.

Julian hand was left awkwardly raised in the air.

He threw the glass on his hand angrily on the ground after Joseph walked away.

“Mr. Julian, don’t mind him. It’s a prosperous day today.” The other executives standing next to him tried to comfort him.

The rumour about these siblings was true after all, that they didn’t get along with each other.

Julian’s face was dark until he saw a figure in black shirt and pants by the entrance. The expression on his face turned brighter as he went up to this person.

“Mr Bridges.”

Kathy didn’t eat much before they came here. She got hungry and Joseph brought her a piece of cake.

“I feel like I’m just here to eat,” said Kathy a bit frustratedly.

She should’ve eaten before they got here. Joseph and Kathy were the only by the food table.

The other guests were busy fawning and congratulating Julian.

“You’re such a little glutton, let’s go have hot pot later,” said Joseph as he pinched her nose softly.

Even her eyes were smiling, “Can we really?”

She kept a bland diet the whole time she was in the hospital, so bland that it ruined her appetite.

The desserts displayed in front of her right now were basically seducing her taste buds.

“Yes, we can,” Joseph nodded.

Kathy took a bite of the cake and when she looked up, she saw a familiar figure walking towards her.

Ella?

The expression on Kathy’s face immediately turned bleak.

She met eyes with the man with a handsome face. Kathy shook her head repeatedly.

Today should be the first time they had ever met each other.

She might have seen him just now from afar in the backyard, but that was it.

The man looked disappointed. He helped her with directions last time, but she didn’t seem to remember him.

“Are you lost again?” he asked.

Kathy looked at him puzzledly, again?

Could it be...

She finally remembered. No wonder his voice sounded so familiar.

It was hard to forget such a deep and husky voice.

Not long ago at Joseph and Ella’s wedding banquet, she got lost and this man gave her directions.

“I am indeed lost again,” she said awkwardly, but she was less tense than before.

“I’ll lead you out of here.” The man threw away his cigarette butt and made a gentleman gesture beckoning Kathy to go on first.

“Thank you.”

Kathy tried to look for Joseph when they arrived at the resplendent terrace in the garden.

A glass of alcohol was brought in front of her, “Have some champagne, this has low alcohol content.”

Kathy didn’t take the glass from him. She thanked him once more and walked to the other side.

The man wanted to go after her, but he was quickly surrounded by women in sexy dresses.

“Hey mister, are you alone?”

Reece was used to flirtatious people like them. He smiled mischievously and hugged one woman by her soft waist and squeezed it.

“I’m not interested in you.”

He said dispassionately and walked into the crowd.

...

Joseph was talking to a few guests by the pool.

Ella followed him the whole time.

She ran up to Joseph as soon as he was alone.

She didn't notice that the floor by the pool was slippery and just when she was about to fall into the pool, Joseph pulled her back like the gentleman he was.

"I ..." Taking a deep breath, Ella gathered her courage and said, "Joseph, I won't give up on you!"

"My wife can only be Kathy."

Joseph said indifferently, turned, and quickly dialed a number.

It wasn't long before a group of black-clad bodyguards appeared in front of Ella. It was ... her mother's men.

Joseph was so ruthless.

She fell woefully to the floor, and the emotions in her eyes grew to resentment.

In the bedroom, Kathy sat on the sofa. The familiar decor around her made her feel at home.

She still liked it here.

The home of her and Joseph.

"What's on your mind?" After the shower, Joseph came out and put his arm around her from behind.

Kathy snapped back to her senses and turned to wrap her arms around his neck.

Hmm. It was Joseph's scent.

She sniffed it insatiably.

"You're like a puppy." Joseph looked at her dotingly and teased.

Kathy grimaced, "You're the puppy."

Joseph pinned her to the sofa and buried his face in the nook of her neck. Only with Kathy by his side could he unburden his mind.

"When are you moving back in?" He asked.

Kathy cocked her head and said seriously, "After graduation."

Joseph's face sank, "I can't wait."

Kathy smiled, "Or you could go to Miss Bridges?"

The next thing Kathy knew, he was biting her pink cherry lips in a punishing way.

Kathy let out a gasp of surprise and grumbled.

"You really are a dog!"

Chapter 439

The next second, Joseph was so angry that he couldn't even stand up. He collapsed on the sofa and pointed at Julian shakily.

Julian also panicked. Grandpa was irritated by his words. Immediately, he held his grandfather nervously and the maid immediately brought over the medicine. After taking the medicine, Grandpa got a little better.

"The only person who will inherit the Joseph's Group will be Joseph!" Mathew was in better spirits as he said curtly and loudly.

"Grandpa, you know that the rules of the Joseph's Group were set by Great-Grandpa and cannot be changed."

"Your great-grandfather is dead. Now I'm in charge!"

Julian pursed his lips, and the ruthlessness under his eyes gradually emerged.

"Grandpa, it seems you really don't intend to care about me and Dad."

"I've seen all the shit you two have done over the years! The Joseph family is in a mess because of you, and how dare you still mention this to me!" Mathew banged his cane heavily.

"If you had followed the rules and let me inherit the Joseph's Group, there wouldn't have been so much going on at all," Julian muttered.

"Get out of here." Julian gasped, not wanting to say anymore.

Just in time for Joseph, another eyesore to return.

Mathew ignored both of them and went upstairs alone.

Mathew was still angry because of what had happened earlier when Joseph refused to leave his job at the hospital.

"Brother, you left so early the day of the party. Did you have a good time?" Julian approached him.

"You wanted to show that we were on good terms in front of outsiders, and I've cooperated." Joseph didn't answer his words.

Julian's mind was clear to him.

"Gee, you're still smart. I don't think things are going well for Joseph's Group right now. As Dad doesn't come out, the company's reputation is falling all the time."

Diego was, after all, a member of the Joseph family. If something happened to him, the Joseph's Group was bound to be affected. And now that Diego was directly accusing Joseph of misappropriation. Things were getting even worse for the Joseph's Group.

"If you want to get Diego out, then confess to the crime yourself." Joseph remained expressionless.

"This has nothing to do with me. Instead, brother, you need to pay more attention. You might be the one to go in at some point." Julian said grimly.

Joseph narrowed with cold eyes.

In the evening, Joseph came to the Joseph's Group for a meeting.

It was late at night by the time they finished the meeting, but John still had quite a lot to report.

"Mr. Joseph, regarding Diego's accusation that you misappropriated money, I have submitted the evidence to the police. I will send a letter from my lawyer tomorrow."

Noticing that Kathy wanted to refuse, Joseph continued, "If you go back, I will not have the appetite to eat."

Kathy was annoyed, she wondered why she was always being affected by Joseph easily.

It was already a little late when they leave the Joseph's Group. Jennifer called Kathy and was relieved to know that Joseph was by her side.

They parked in front of the Booth Family residence, and Kathy looked out the window in the dark, her head was a little uncomfortable.

It's always like this lately. It was not that pain in specific but she could felt the discomfort.

"Are you uncomfortable?" Joseph came closer and asked with concern.

Kathy shook her head. After returning to her senses, Kathy unbuckled her seat belt.

Joseph kissed on her brow gently.

"Go to the hospital tomorrow for a follow-up, I'll pick you up."

"Okay, then I'm going back." Kathy eyes were still looking deeply at Joseph.

"Good night."

Kathy dawdled. Just as soon as she pushed open the car door, Joseph held her back and kissed her deeply.

Joseph started the engine long after watching Kathy leave.

He lit a cigarette, but eventually extinguished it after a short while.

Suddenly, Johnson called and Joseph answered the call, "I found out that the doctor who operated on Kathy after the accident is in City B, and he has some connection with Billy, do you want to come over?"

"Yes, I'll be there tomorrow."

That night, Joseph did not rest. He immediately took a private plane to City B.

Johnson went over to welcome Joseph's arriving. It was not even dawn yet and Johnson drove personally there.

"He is now in a private clinic, Billy gave him 3 million. Here is the account information." Johnson said as he handed over the report.

Joseph's eyes were gloomy, the report was crumpled into a ball by him.

"I just got the information, but it seems like there are other people observing him, I had my subordinates go check it out first."

"Well, there are bound to be other people who know about this matter, keep checking."

Joseph closed his eyes, his aura was so gloomy that it was terrifying.

Johnson had not seen Joseph like this in many years.

Joseph was filled with pain, struggle and fear.
