Chapter 451

Sometimes Kathy would come to help Joseph with the work. They stayed in the office together, which was one of their few dates.

John knocked the door and came in to report on work.

“Mr. Joseph, The land in North Bay will be auctioned tomorrow. Will you come?”

“Yes” Joseph nodded and he frowned.

Kathy was looking at the auction files.

The land in North Bay was used for medical purpose and now several companies wanted to build hospital on this land which was just developed and potential but lacked public resources.

The main competitors were the Joseph's Group, the Booth Group and Bridges Group.

Kathy knew the Booth Group. When talked about Bridges Group, she couldn't help thinking of Ella's family.

But why did Bridges Group want to develop in City N?

Kathy didn't know about it and didn't pay attention to it too.

She helped Joseph organize the files, checked the time and walked to desk.

“Joseph, it is time to have dinner.”

It was late. Joseph always didn't eat on time, which made her worried.

“I will order John to drive you back.” Joseph said.

Kathy frowned and didn't move.

John walked in and looked at them. He didn't dare to speak.

Joseph looked up and saw Kathy's anxious eyes. He finally put up his pen.

“Let's have dinner together.”

Kathy smiled.

“Will you go to the hospital tomorrow?” Joseph asked.

Kathy shook her head. Benedict would go aboard to attend meetings and several professors were not in the hospital too so she had a three-day holiday.

“I want you to accompany me to North Bay.”

Kathy still didn't speak because she really... couldn't speak out.

"Wait for me."

Kath didn't answer him and he directly decided to find her.

Kathy was panic and immediately said, "No... Hum, I can't go with you tomorrow."

"Why?"

"My mom will go to the hospital tomorrow and I have to bid for her..." Kathy's voice became lower.

Joseph must know she already knew the bottom price of two companies.

"Well. You are the member of the Booth family. It is normal." Joseph said in an usual tone.

Kathy was a little nervous and asked, "Joseph, don't you angry?"

"for what?" Joseph asked softly.

"I have already known the price of the Joseph's Group and my mother tells me the price of Booth Group..."

"Kathy, I allow you to know the matters of the Joseph's Group just because you are my girlfriend. You also are a member of the Booth family and I believe you know how to do."

"But I ..."

"Don't worry. There are many opponents too." Joseph reminded.

Well. Since Joseph said it, she no longer struggled.

Tomorrow she would represent the Booth Group. Though she knew the reserve price of Joseph's Group, there were many companies wanted this land. Maybe she should not focus on the Joseph's Group

Thinking of this, Kathy felt better.

"Don't worry and have a good rest." Joseph softly said.

Joseph's voice sounded magical and Kathy was not annoyed anymore.

"You too, do you come back to old house?"

"I just arrive."

"Good night, my boyfriend." Kathy laughed.

In the hospital, Jennifer was surprised to see Kathy and Joseph coming together.

"Kathy, Joseph."

"Mom, Dr. Joseph and I will take you home." Kathy came over to hold Jennifer.

"I'm fine. The doctor prescribed some medicine today. I just need to come back for regular examination in the future."

At the entrance of the hospital, Joseph was gracefully holding the door of the car. He drove the car himself. The driver had already left.

Jennifer looked at Joseph, then said with a smile, "Joseph, sorry to trouble you to pick me up today."

"Mrs. Booth, you are welcome," Joseph said politely.

On the way, Kathy told Jennifer about the auction today. It was indeed a pity that the land in North Bay had fallen into Bridges Group's hands.

With Joseph's Group as an opponent, Jennifer didn't have much expectation. But now it was snatched away by Bridges Group with such a high price, which was really unexpected.

"What Bridges Group offered is overpriced. It won't be worth it if we compete with them," Kathy analyzed rationally.

"Well. You're pretty smart, Kathy."

Kathy smiled. In fact, Joseph taught her all these because she worked with him sometimes.

Two days later, in the hospital, Kathy was assigned to be on the day shift. There were always many patients in the neurology wards, so the day passed quickly.

In the evening, Benedict came to the hospital immediately to follow up with patients after getting off the plane. When he left the ward, Benedict called Kathy to the office.

"There will be a neurology exchange meeting in BV City tomorrow. You're going with me."

"Professor, me... can I?" Kathy was a little excited.

"Why, you still don't believe my judgment?" Benedict smiled, "When I say you can, then you must can do it."

"Thank you, Professor." Kathy nodded heavily. Listening to Benedict's instructions, she wrote down what she needed to prepare.

It was almost eight o'clock after the shift. Zofia was also in the hospital today. They were going to leave together.

Zofia hurried over, "Kathy, do me a favor..."

"Benedict, I will help you tutor Kathy," Joseph responded instantly.

He didn't ask Kathy's opinion at all.

She bit her lip and glared at Joseph.

"I don't want to follow you."

"Benedict is very busy. He is the chairman of the meeting and can't take care of you." Joseph explained.

"Oh..."

"If you don't want to follow me, then go back to City N by yourself later." Joseph pulled out his hand held by Kathy.

Kathy immediately leaned over and hugged him, "Fine. I'll be with you. No big deal. You won't eat me anyway."

Joseph's eyes were soft. He was stroking her head, "I will really eat you."

Kathy was speechless.

Bastard!

"No, we are going to work," Kathy said righteously.

"Yeah. Work." Joseph's smile was meaningful.

Kathy blushed...

When the plane arrived at BV City, Joseph had arranged a car to pick them up.

Benedict disappeared after getting off the plane, so Kathy had to follow Joseph.

Kathy was quite nervous for she attended this meeting for the first time, but she actually felt relaxed a lot because Joseph was by her side.

At least, he got her back no matter what should happen.

What Joseph gave her was enough sense of security.

Kathy leaned in his arms and held his waist for a long time without letting go.

"Why don't I know my wife is so clingy?" Joseph was smiling, his eyes soft.

"Don't talk nonsense. I'm not your wife. I haven't agreed to marry you yet!" Kathy said sternly.

"Is there any difference? My future wife." He then raised Kathy's chin with his slender fingers, kissing her passionately.

"Aaron, I'm warning you, don't talk nonsense." Joseph finally fixed his eyes on him, looking rather cold.

But Aaron didn't seem to see it, and smiled wider, "I only tell the truth."

Kathy listened to the conversation between the two, feeling quite tense.

There was something between the lines, but she knew nothing about it.

The meeting would start soon, so Kathy didn't have time to gossip, just holding Joseph's hand with worry and trying to calm him down.

Joseph always had great self-control. He smiled and said, "Don't worry. I never care about him."

Then Jax gave his speech, which lasted for three hours. After that, they needed to award the candidate of the outstanding neurologist. Joseph was the one to present the award.

Kathy then knew that Joseph came to present awards.

Looking at the man in a white shirt and black pants on the stage, Kathy's eyes were filled with adoration.

After giving the award, Joseph also gave a short speech.

Under his leadership, the Joseph's Group would invest hundreds of millions of dollars in the research and development of scarce drugs on the market in the next decade.

This move undoubtedly caused a sensation. Joseph didn't stay on the stage for a long while. After signing an agreement with the Institute of Materia Medica, he got off the stage.

But he still gained a lot of attention as he was getting back to his seat.

Kathy was shocked. She knew that although the Joseph's Group was low-key, it had powerful economic strength. Joseph invested so much money in research and development, which greatly promoted the long-term development of the domestic pharmaceutical industry.

"What? Are you tempted by me?" Joseph sat down beside Kathy. She still didn't come to her senses, shocked at what Joseph said just now.

"Yeah, you are so handsome!" Kathy blurted out looking at the handsome man in front of her.

Joseph curled his lips. "Actually, I didn't do anything."

"I'll take care of it," Joseph said solemnly, frowning slightly.

"I know, but this is the least I can do." Kathy looked at him sincerely.

Joseph held her face. His slender fingers stroked her eyebrows with affection.

"Kathy, thank you."

Kathy stood on tiptoe and met Joseph's eyes. She murmured, "What was going on back then?"

"I am indeed responsible for the death of Aaron's sister," Joseph said.

Kathy's eyes widened. She suddenly felt scared.

She covered Joseph's mouth subconsciously.

Joseph held her wrist and gently told her.

Five years ago, Joseph was an intern with Jax. Aaron's sister, Sabrina Fisher, was admitted to the hospital because of a brain tumor. But because of the special position of the tumor, it was not easy to perform surgery, which resulted in a disagreement. Jax suggested that they could perform surgery, but there were no clinically successful cases at that time. But if the tumor was not removed, Sabrina would not live long. But Sabrina agreed to have the surgery, but Joseph must be appointed to perform the surgery.

"Why does Sabrina ask you to have surgery?" Kathy asked suspiciously.

"She told me that she loved me. I rejected her."

Kathy was speechless.

At this moment, there was only one thought in her mind. A woman was easy to fall for this handsome man.

"Did you perform the surgery on her?" Kathy asked nervously.

"Yes." Joseph said, "Her condition is similar to yours, but she is not so lucky. The tumor has deteriorated. The surgery lasts for too long. So many things got out of control."

"But Sabrina decided to have surgery herself. She knows the risks. Why does Aaron blame it on you now?" Kathy angrily said.

"He was angry that I rejected Sabrina at the time, which affected Sabrina's mood and caused her to be very emotional. The patient's mentality is very important for the recovery of the illness and would also affect her decision. She demanded to ask me to perform surgery. At that time, I was not the most suitable doctor."

Kathy fell silent and didn't speak for a while, feeling a bit sad.

"What's up? Isn't Joseph with you?" Aaron said in a heavily jesting tone.

"It's none of your business." Kathy was in a bad mood at the moment, and had been hard on him.

"Tut, is that how you treat the principal?" With a stern face, Aaron said in a majestic tone.

Kathy puffed her cheeks, her anger made her almost unable to control her emotions.

He slandered Joseph, so she really couldn't treat Aaron kindly.

"How can I have a good attitude when facing a principal who couldn't distinguish right from wrong?" Kathy said coldly.

Aaron was even angrier when he heard this," Don't imagine that I really can't do anything to you when Joseph is backing you up."

"So? Principal, are you insisting on letting me drop out?" Kathy looked at him coldly.

She was never afraid of Aaron.

Aaron looked at her with straight face. He used to be a professor, but now he was the principal. No student dared to talk to him like this!

"Yes!" He said angrily.

Just because she was on Joseph's side, he could hardly accept her.

"Then I will wait to see what Mr. Fisher can do."

After speaking, Kathy pulled out the blindfold and put it on, just trying to ignore him!

The voyage was not long, but Kathy didn't expect that she would fall asleep. When she woke up, almost all the passengers in the cabin were off the plane.

She quickly picked up her luggage and left. When she returned to Joseph Bay, she didn't find Joseph. She remembered his friend, Johnson, who was close to Joseph!

However...she didn't know his contact details.

But after asking Alexia, she immediately contacted him.

Johnson thought for a while and told Kathy the address of a villa.

Kathy rushed over immediately, but the villa area was heavily guarded, and she couldn't get in at all.

Standing at the gate of the community, Kathy looked at the map. This was a villa district in the east suburb of City N, which were built many years ago. Those who could live here were all aristocrats with certain status.

She asked if Zofia knew anyone who lived here, but the reply was no, which disappointed her.

"Joseph, I am not your girlfriend when you are in a bad mood, is that right?" With a calm face, Kathy said very angrily.

"I didn't mean that." Joseph frowned, but didn't know how to explain it.

Kathy looked at his dark eyes, and said seriously, "No matter what your mood is, no matter what happens, Joseph, remember, I will stay with you and never leave."

"Kathy, that's what I want to tell you."

And then, avoiding her wound, Joseph gently pressed her to the sofa and kissed her affectionately.

Kathy was stunned. She didn't expect Joseph to make such a trick again.

He had always kissed her by surprise.

After a while, Kathy stopped him in time when he continued to stroke her body.

She didn't come to him to do such a thing!

"Joseph, are you hungry?" Kathy asked seriously.

She knew that Joseph usually didn't eat anything when he was busy or in a bad mood.

"I'm hungry." Joseph was honest.

He didn't even think about eating. He rushed back and packed things in the villa, so he didn't have any spare time.

"Let's order delivery." Kathy picked up her phone.

Only then did she think of her phone's screen was dead.

Joseph took her phone, "What's the matter, I'll buy you a new one."

"No, I'll fix it." Kathy snatched it back.

Although she had used this phone for several years, she didn't disdain it at all.

"How did you come in?" Joseph looked at her.

Chapter 459 Planning To Have How Many Children

Kathy laid down in Joseph's room. This was where Joseph once lived, and it felt familiar to her.
“If for my child afterwards, I would want to decorate a room so adorable for him too.”
“Sure, then we should get remarried faster,” Joseph added on to her words.
Kathy stunned, every time Joseph mentioned about remarriage it always took her by surprise.
“Then we should plan properly,” Kathy replied seriously.
“Yes, plan to have how many children.”
Kathy was speechless.
She decided to stop this subject!
The following day, when Kathy woke up, the space beside her was already empty. According to usual practice, Joseph would wake up earlier than her to make breakfast.

But this was not Joseph Bay, there were no ingredients.

After she went off the bed to tidy herself, Kathy went out into the corridor and her footsteps stopped at the half-opened study.

Joseph's back was facing the door, his tall silhouette facing the French windows, an ignited cigarette at his fingertips.

This man was smoking in the early morning!

She went in furious, as Kathy reached over and took Joseph's cigarette.

"No smoking, Joseph!"

She knew that Joseph had no habit of smoking. Normally, he would only smoke when there was something bothering him.

But it was so early, so it still worried her.

"Alright," Joseph turned around. His moody emotions had already been hidden by him.

"Why don't you sleep for a bit more?" Kathy was unhappy.

Joseph pulled her into an embrace, his voice ringing in Kathy's ears, "You won't let Aaron go, right?"

"Umm."

"Zofia, what do you know?"
"I don't know, about this you have to ask my brother, or I can help you to ask."
"Never mind," she did not want to trouble Bertie.
Seeing through Kathy's thoughts, Zofia sighed. It seemed that she could do nothing more. But she feels that for Joseph's means, Aaron would be terminated very soon.

The gossip of Aaron targeting Joseph naturally came into Mathew's ears. Although he was still angry at his grandson's actions, at the end of the day he was still worried.

About taking action against Aaron, Mathew was even a step ahead of Joseph. Just three days later, Aaron was arrested being reported that he had bribed his way to the deputy headmaster's position.

On campus, Aaron was escorted away by the police in the public. Coincidentally Kathy and Zofia saw the scene, Aaron's expression was very unpleasant.

"Just three days, such fast actions," Zofia expressed.

"If Aaron had really used any means to get the position of deputy headmaster, then he deserves it," Kathy said lightly.

"I think this is confirmed, as the original popular candidate for the deputy headmaster wasn't him, and Aaron hasn't got enough experience. If he hadn't taken a shortcut he couldn't possibly get the position."

"There's a lot of people on campus, let's go," Kathy did not continue this subject matter with Zofia.

Since Aaron was not confirmed guilty, everything was not conclusive.

At the Joseph's group.

Hearing John report that Aaron was arrested, Joseph frowned.

He had yet to take any action these few days, but Aaron was reported...

In the evening, he returned to the Joseph family's home. Mathew was playing with his pet bird in the garden, and Joseph walked over with his long legs.

"You're back to see me?," Mathew was still looking at the blue pigeon with the red beak in the cage.

"Grandpa, did you take part in the matter of Aaron?" Joseph asked although he knew the answer.

Aside from his grandfather, no one else could have took such fast actions.

"Of course, to mess with my grandson, do you think I can bear it?"
