Chapter 501 In the Future, I Will Come Back

Kathy immediately picked up, "How's Ella Bridges?"

"Kat, are you concerned about Ella, or about me?" Joseph joked about it.

"You, of course!"

"The situation is not too optimistic. Surgery is very risky, and medication is of minimal use."

"Then do you want to operate on her?" Kathy asked indifferently.

As a doctor, the patient's status would hardly be considered when treating them.

She also did not want him to do nothing and let Ella die.

"I'm not a doctor now. I couldn't operate unless the hospital reinstates me."

"Joseph, you are using the Bridges family influence to reinstate yourself." Kathy guessed.

If he insisted on being appointed, Mathew's punishment was nothing at all.

Only that it was now necessary to get Mathew to drop some of his guards.

That was why when Maria King proposed to him to treat Ella, he did not refuse straightaway.

"Reinstatement is one thing. But if I don't fight back, I'm afraid that grandpa will forget who is in power now." Joseph's voice got serious.

Kathy froze, at this moment, Joseph suddenly felt like a stranger to her.

She had always thought of him as a doctor, but she had forgotten that he was also the president of Joseph's Group.

After hanging up the phone, she laid on the bed. She thought of the conversation Jennifer Booth had just discussed.

When she returned to Ocean University, she wasn't even sure if she would have a tutor to take her on. But if not, she didn't want him to use his connections to help her anymore.

She had a sleepless night. Next day she got up and went to see Mr. Watson immediately.

"Which school do you want to go to?" Joseph asked.

"I have not thought of it yet."

The atmosphere in the car was getting chilly.

"Joseph, send me to my school," Kathy said.

She wanted to know the schedule arrangements for Ocean University.

"Ok, I will accompany you."

Joseph told the driver to start driving.

Joseph held Kathy's tiny hands as there was a cold breeze.

Joseph looked tense. Although he did not drink too much wine today, there was still a faint smell of wine mixing with his icy breath.

All of a sudden, Kathy felt very much depressed.

If she had to travel overseas to continue her studies, a long-distance relationship with Joseph would be inevitable.

Kathy held Joseph's big palm tightly with her two hands.

"Joseph, what if I said, I wanted to go overseas," Kathy murmured.

As expected, the aura surrounding Joseph dropped quickly in temperature.

Kathy did not speak anything for a moment.

Joseph frowned and lost in his thought. He then turned to Kathy after a while, hiding the chills in his eyes.

He gently said, "Kathy, what if I disagree."

There was a hint of dominance in his tone.

"I need some time to think," said Kathy.

For now, nothing was planned.

After arriving at Ocean University, the familiar buildings triggered her sense of nostalgia.

"You should head back. I will be fine on my own," Kathy said while releasing her seatbelt.

Joseph was staring right into Kathy's soul, it made her panic.

Kathy thought Joseph would send her back to the Booth family, unexpectedly he took her back to Joseph Bay.

Kathy was stunned, then she heard Joseph saying, "I told you. I will never let you leave my side."

Kathy was speechless.

She must be at his side.

"Don't tell me that you even want to take me to your work," Kathy muttered.

"That's exactly what I plan to do." Joseph nodded.

"Recently I am contacting other universities. I am so busy." Kathy frowned.

"Which university do you want to go to? Leave everything to me." Joseph said firmly.

Kathy looked at Joseph. His expression was so serious as if everything was settled and there was nothing negotiable.

"But, I want to handle this by myself," Kathy whispered.

"You know that, apart from Ocean University, the top medical universities are not in City N," Joseph said solemnly.

No matter which university Kathy wanted to choose, she definitely would leave City N.

"Hmm..." Kathy frowned.

This was exactly the reason why she hesitated about choosing the university.

"We will have to be separated," Joseph said.

"I know, but in the following a few years, I want to put study first." Kathy trembled.

Otherwise, she would regret it in the future.

"I support all your decisions, but what I hope most is that you can stay by my side." After saying that, Joseph let go of her hands and went into the study.

Upon seeing Joseph was going out after writing down her condition on the medical report, Ella subconsciously called out to him.
"Joseph, will you be in charge of me from now on?" Ella asked nervously.
"Yes." Joseph replied then went out quickly.
The smile on Ella's face gradually widened, could she stay in the hospital so that she could see Joseph every day?
As if she could look through her daughter's thoughts, Maria King walked towards her, "You will be having your medical operation by Dr Joseph next week, this is what I have been requesting him for a long time before he is willing to treat you."
"Oh, really? So it is you who begged him, mum." Ella sighed.
"I helped him to get reinstated but I didn't expect the hospital to be so powerful. If it was not your grandfather who is the major shareholder of the hospital, I am afraid that I wouldn't have been able to help."
There was no one from the management in the hospital agreed Joseph to continue his job, and it seemed that he had been banned.

“Well, he was fired.”

“When you are done with your surgery, I will take you back to Country C.” Maria said irrefutably.

“No, I’m not going back!” Ella said while pouting with a reluctant expression on her face.

“If you don’t go back with me, I will take you back now and you will not see Joseph in the meantime!” Maria’s face turned colder.

In terms of tactics, how could Ella able to compete with her mother?

She could only compromise with Maria. By the way, she would beg her brother to let her stay after the operation.

Now, she had managed to make Mathew satisfy with herself and she didn’t want to give up halfway again.

Kathy and Alexia arrived at the hospital room; Sue was awake already, but Lincoln didn't enter.
Looking at the feeble woman on the hospital bed, Kathy recalled how, just a while ago, they were still happily expecting to greet a new baby. No one foresaw that the baby was gone before they knew it.
"Sue, the doctor said that you probably had abortion pills." Alexia hesitantly said.
Sue's face turned pale white; she pressed her hand against her stomach and remained silent.
How could she be so cruel to have taken her own child's life.

Unless... it was something she ate in her daily meals.

"Far too many people want my child dead." Sue said solemnly as she shut her eyes.

What she didn't say was how frightened she became ever since she was pregnant with her child.

The Fletcher family's old man had many devious methods, and had tried to take her child's life innumerable times already.

Sue was surprised she was even able to remain pregnant for four months.

"Sue..." Kathy whispered, but then fell silent for a while.

On the surface, Lincoln and Sue looked like quite a lovely couple; even the Fletcher family seemed to have accepted them. But in reality, things may not be this way.

At this moment, footsteps sounded from outside the room; it was Lincoln, and both Kathy and Alexia left the room to give them a private moment.

Sue kept looking down, her eyes were filled with a look of gloom.

Then her eyes turned red, but she bit her lip and held in her tears.

"Sue, sorry..." Lincoln said, then he knelt down next to her bed.

He held her small hand tightly; she could clearly feel his anguish and pain.

"Lincoln, is this our fate?" Sue suddenly asked with a smile.

But as her smile widened, tears began to roll down her face.

Lincoln rushed over to gently kiss away the tears off her face.

However, Sue began to cry out even more uncontrollably; she held Lincoln tightly and said, "I want to get revenge for my child."

Joseph greeted politely and sat down on the side of the sofa.

The person Jennifer had contacted for Kathy was a good friend of Jennifer's who was a tutor at University F. She knew that Kathy was preparing to go over for an interview, so she was planning to have her friend's student come over to give Kathy lessons and she wanted to ask for Kathy's opinion.

"Mom, I don't think I need to take extra classes, I've learned all the basics quite well." She replied while she subconsciously glanced at Joseph.

If she wanted to take extra classes, she thought that the genius beside her could be the one to teach her.

"But that student of hers is studying for a PhD at University F and knows some techniques that can be used in interviews. Mother just wants you to pass this test one time."

Kathy frowned, and rejected her proposal again after thinking for a while. Jennifer then continued saying, "Can you first try to interact with that student, if you still feel really dissatisfied, I will not force you anymore."

After saying that, Jennifer already sent the person's WeChat ID to her.

Alright.

Kathy thought she would just ask the person what should she focus during the interview, as these extra classes...did not need to be too bothersome.

It did not take long for Jennifer to go upstairs to rest. Joseph had listened to the conversation between the two, his expressions remained tense throughout the conversation.

When Kathy looked up, she felt a chill all over her body.

"Joseph, let's go up to the bedroom." Kathy walked over.

However, Joseph took her phone and saw that Kathy had already sent the verification message to that PhD student from University F.

At that moment, it just so happened that the other party accepted Kathy's verification.

Joseph's expression became even colder.

"Joseph, I don't intend to let him give me extra lessons." Kathy spoke out.

"Ok." Joseph's demeanor and tone were cold.

"You seem to be angry." Kathy looked at Joseph without blinking.

Normally, even if he did not speak, his aura around him would not be this cold.

Now that Kathy was beside him, she felt like she was going to freeze up.

Joseph helplessly frowned, holding Kathy's wrist and pulling her into his arms, "I'm not angry, but I don't want you to contact this PhD student, I'll make sure you get into University F."

Kathy blinked, as for what Joseph had said, she believed him naturally.

However, was there anything about this PhD student... that displeased him?

Knowing that Reece had left, Jennifer checked the time. It was less than half an hour!

She had planned to keep Reece for dinner, but now he was no longer in the living room.

Kathy was sitting in the living room. She was a little annoyed to think that Reece's tutor might be the one who interviewed her.

She believed what Reece said.

It was just that she didn't believe that he could change the result of her interview.

Thinking of this, Kathy regained her energy and went back to her study to review.

Jennifer came up and looked at her daughter helplessly, "How come Mr. Bridges left so soon?"

"Mom, don't let him come here anymore. I don't want to have any contact with him." Kathy said coldly.

Jennifer frowned after saw her daughter was not willing to accept him.

Didn't they know each other? Why Kathy's attitude was ...

"Did something happen between you two?"

"I don't know him well." Kathy didn't want to say anything anymore.

She didn't want to see Reece at all.

Jennifer was puzzled, but she didn't contact Reece any more.

Kathy had been preparing for an interview recently. She occasionally went to see Sue, mostly she was in Joseph Bay.

The day before Sue was discharged from the hospital, Kathy received her call. She asked her to come and pick her up that night.

Kathy didn't know why, but she got there right away.

Sue had already packed up and had to go through the discharge formalities.

"Sue, what's going on? Are you going to be discharged now? " Kathy asked doubtfully.

"Well, I'll fly to BV City later. It's not convenient for me now. Please take me to the airport."

Kathy frowned, and Sue's sad look made her feel pitiful.

Chapter 508 Dissolve the Club without Any Hesitation

Kathy accessed her phone and found the social media of Joseph's fan club and saw that a minute ago, her identity had just been revealed.

Now, all of his fans were searching for him, just because she had seduced Joseph...

However, Joseph and she were two love birds harbouring feelings for each other. Those fans were just distorting the truth!

At the thought of this, Kathy felt extremely infuriated.

She never intended to hide her relationship with Joseph, but she didn't expect that ever since Joseph had returned to the hospital, the number of his fans skyrocketed through the roof and he was even more famous than before.

Then again, all his fans declared that Joseph had always been single...

Kathy felt her scalp tingle when she thought about those fanatical fans. If Joseph didn't make a statement by himself, there was no way those crazy fans would believe her.

Just as she was still deep in her thoughts, Reece had already led her to the parking lot.

"I will go back on my own, Mr Bridges. We are not that close to each other." Kathy turned around in an attempt to leave.

Even though she might be halted by those fans, she would rather not spend time with Reece alone.

She entered a taxi and felt frustrated that her good mood had been affected by those fans and Reece.

When she returned to the Joseph Bay, dinner has been prepared by the maids early because Joseph had a surgery he needed to command at night. Kathy started to revise seriously after that.

Reece returned to the surgical theatre but Ella's surgery was going to last three hours. He waited outside the theatre while accompanying Maria.

"You didn't go back to school lately?" Maria asked coldly.

She wasn't all that familiar with Reece. It had been a year since she was married into the Bridges family, and Reece had always been aloof and cold towards everyone.

"Sometimes I do." Reece replied coldly.

"You don't need to worry about Ella anymore after this."

"Are you telling me that you have time to take care of sister, Ms Bridges?" Reece didn't intend to conceal the sarcasm in his tone.

Maria would be out in different countries from time to time to catch his father in adulterous actions. His father never disappointed.

Chapter 509 Getting a Taste of Your Own Medicine

Joseph was sitting on the sofa when his grandfather came to him.

“Who have you chosen for the executive president position?” Matthew asked with a deadpan face.

“Quinn Davis.”

Matthew was startled when he heard that.

It was not a news that Quinn was known to be together with Veronica.

He initially thought that Joseph had selected an outsider, but to his surprise that candidate was none other than Quinn.

“I clearly recall that he is the descendant of the Davis family, and he needs to handle some of the business under the Davis family name.”

Matthew was implying that Quinn wouldn’t have time to take on another arduous position.

“The heir of the Davis family wouldn’t be Quinn, so it won’t be a problem to hand over the Joseph’s Group under his leadership.” Joseph explained calmly.

If that candidate was Quinn, Matthew wouldn’t have a lot to complain about.

The only thing left for him to validate was Quinn’s capability.

After all, he was just a psychological doctor prior to this, and despite holding some education in the business field, he didn’t have much practical experience.

“Joseph, even if that is the case, you still have to be the one overseeing things in the Joseph’s Group.” Matthew’s tone was still seething with mild anger.

“I never said that I won’t oversee things in any way. It’s just that I don’t plan to hold on to the president’s position for too long.”

When Quinn finally cemented his position as the executive president in the near future, Joseph planned to transfer all of his power to him.

At that moment, Matthew finally understood Joseph’s plan.

“Quinn is still not part of the Joseph family yet!” Matthew howled angrily.

“Grandpa, his marriage with Veronica is as good as done. He is already part of the Joseph family, like it or not.”

Matthew still had a grumpy expression on his face. From his point of view, there couldn’t be another person sitting atop the Joseph’s Group other than Joseph himself.

“You plan to throw away every ounce of power you are enjoying now, am I wrong?” Matthew’s gaze slowly seeped with disappointment.

Chapter 510 Mysterious Side

Joseph was getting ready to leave the hospital in the evening, when Veronica came herself.

She had tried to convince her brother to go home for a few times, but her brother did not go home. So she could only come to find him.

“Brother, please follow me home, alright? Are you really not going to handle the matters at the Joseph’s Group?” Veronica frowned.

The performance of the Joseph’s Group was getting worse and worse recently, and Joseph seemed to be abandoning his job. Further, her grandfather was unable to take charge, so he could only stay home and sulk.

If this continues, it would be the end of the Joseph’s Group sooner or later...

She really did not want to watch her family business close down because of the bickering between the grandfather and grandson...

“You should tell Grandpa about the matters at the Joseph’s Group,” Joseph frowned in displeasure.

“But Grandpa has already handed you the Joseph’s Group,” Veronica frowned as well.

“Veronica, stop telling me about the Joseph’s Group anymore.”

“No, follow me home! You haven’t been home for so long...” Veronica mumbled.

But she was sitting on a wheelchair, and could not stop Joseph at all. She could only let Quinn to be the convincer.

Yet Quinn knew what Joseph was thinking, he never had the intention to take over the Joseph’s Group. The more Mathew kept forcing Joseph, it would only have the adverse effect.

Joseph was never one to compromise.

The fact that he would agree to inherit the Joseph’s Group was already the greatest concession.

“Let’s go home, Veronica. Joseph will never watch the Joseph’s Group fall.”

“But look at how bad the stock price fell today, the outsiders kept saying that there is a feud in our family, and the Joseph’s Group is going bankrupt...” Veronica had been watching a lot of rumours recently and was afraid.

“Now that it’s already hit rock bottom, it will go back up soon, let’s go back.”

Quinn pushed on her wheelchair.

Veronica lowered her gaze, she was being anxious for nothing.
