Chapter 511 Mr Joseph's Eyes Can Only Look at Me

Ella stunned, Mathew had long arranged for Joseph his future path. He was one of the Joseph family, so he had to take over the Joseph's Group.

Just like now she was already one of the Bridges family, since Reece was in charge of the Bridges family now, so she had to obey him.

Being in a rich and powerful family, Ella was very clear about these.

"The thing he has to do is to go back to the Joseph's Group and not stay at the hospital," Ella's voice went lower and lower.

These words came out rather unconfidently.

This was what Mathew told her. What she had to do was to convince Joseph to return to the Joseph's Group. If she had done so, Mathew would allow her to be engaged to Joseph.

But there was no possibility that Joseph would be convinced by her.

At this moment, the man pushed the door open and came in.

Seeing Ella, displeasure started spreading from Joseph's expression.

"Doctor Joseph, I'll be discharged from the hospital tomorrow," Ella walked towards him.

"Alright," Joseph responded coldly.

"It'll be the one hundred anniversary gala of the Joseph's Group, I'll be accompanying Grandpa to attend."

"Ella, with your identity, you'll never be one of the Joseph family," one phrase from Joseph cut off all of Ella's planning.

Having said so, Joseph did not stay but left holding Kathy's hand.

"You'll be there tomorrow, right?" Ella followed them and asked anxiously.

Joseph have not been minding the affairs of the Joseph's Group recently, so this gala was organised by Mathew. But the Joseph's Group must have notified Joseph.

Joseph was expressionless and only left her an indifferent silhouette.

He walked very fast, Kathy had to jog a bit to catch up with Joseph. Only when he got on the car did Joseph's taut expression loosen.

"Will you be going to the Joseph's Group gala tomorrow?" Kathy looked at the man beside her.

"Yes," Joseph nodded, and pinched his brows in exhaustion.

Kathy frowned a little, and reached over to massage him on her own accord.

Joseph's face tensed up as his eyes drifted over to meet Kathy's. Frowning, he headed towards the high platform.

Ella was intimidated by his cold and solemn countenance and retreated.

"Stand right here," Mathew ordered.

Ella stopped.

Her heart raced as she nervously watched Joseph approaching her step by step.

"Grandfather."

"I'm coming." Mathew stood up with the help of his walking stick. Now Ella and Joseph were standing on either side of him.

Jealousy swept over Kathy as she watched the trio in harmony on the high platform.

Joseph was dressed in a black handmade suit, while Ella was wearing a gauzy white dress. It appeared to Kathy that Mathew was the witness for the love of this adorable pair.

Kathy's mind was awl with this unsettling thought as her face grew pale.

The next moment, Mathew stated loudly, "Ladies and gentlemen, we are gathered here today to celebrate the 100th anniversary of Joseph Group, as well as my grandson Joseph and Ella's engagement!"

Engagement?

Kathy was hit hard by the word and felt dizzy.

The glass in her hand fell from her loose grip, but Reece caught it.

A faint smile touched his thin lips when he noticed Kathy's ashen face.

The guests were delirious with joy and surprise. The reporters in the crowd exerted themselves to capture the fair couple immersed in nuptial bliss, the flash dazzling.

Mathew lifted their hands. Just as they were about to touch, Joseph shook off Mathew's hand.

A sinister look flashed in his eyes as he walked around Mathew to Ella.

However, Ella was nervously gazing at Joseph in anticipation.

She slowly held out her hand for Joseph's large palm, but before she could react, Joseph took off her tiara.

Chapter 513 This Tiara Only Belongs to You

There was no way he could stay at the banquet, so Joseph left the hotel with Kathy. The reporters waiting outside quickly surrounded them.

Joseph protected Kathy in his arms. The reporters were asking all sorts of questions about Joseph Group, but Joseph only answered them with a frown.

Soon, bodyguards came to help them out. The noise disappeared when they got into the car.

The car slowly started, and Kathy took off the tiara.

She had been astonished by Joseph's actions just now.

She pored over it and was dazzled by all its gems and diamonds, which was why it felt heavy.

"Joseph, I believe this is yours."

It was too precious for her to keep.

Joseph's expression dulled a little, and he did not take it.

"You should hold on to it," he ordered.

"No, bring it back to your house."

"Kathy." Joseph sounded somewhat helpless.

He gazed at her and then held her in his arms.

"This tiara only belongs to you."

"But..."

Mathew intended to give it to Ella.

"After tonight, the entire city will know you are mine." A smile touched Joseph's thin lips.

She flushed with embarrassment.

She drummed Joseph's chest and smiled.

"It looks like there is nothing Mathew can't do to make you marry Ella," Kathy sighed.

"He thought I wouldn't embarrass him in public, but I would do it a thousand times for my happiness," Joseph said in a deep voice.

For Joseph, Mathew needed to show him some respect to deserve any.

Chapter 514 I Am Not Surprised

Joseph stayed at Joseph Bay for the next few days. As a surprise, Joseph Group's share price rebounded. It was probably because Joseph's love video became a hit.

Unfortunately, the company still had no leader, and the top managers were agitated. Only Joseph remained calm.

Kathy's interview was on Friday, and she needed to go to Country F. Joseph had to work that day, so she did not let him tag along.

"Wait for me in City N. I'll be nervous if you are with me."

"Kathy." Joseph's eyes were laced with displeasure.

"Go to the hospital now. You're going to be late...."

"I'll pick you up tonight," Joseph added.

After work, he would go to Country F.

"No need. I'll be back early tomorrow morning."

"No. I won't let you go to the interview if you don't agree." Joseph put on a fake angry look.

Kathy pouted and stopped talking in fear.

She knew Joseph would keep his word.

Jennifer had been waiting for her at the airport.

She insisted on accompanying Kathy, and Kathy had no way of stopping her.

The interview was in the afternoon. Kathy went straight to the school after she got off the plane. University F was well-known for its medical department. Today, more than a thousand students came for the interview. Kathy was near the end of the line.

Then a familiar figure passed by her. She looked up and met Reece's deep gaze.

He stopped in front of Kathy and said, "Did you do your homework?"

"Yes, I am ready," Kathy said softly.

She felt she was at her best.

"The tutor might ask some tricky questions. You must improvise," Reece reminded.

With that, he walked into the classroom.

"I am not surprised."
Joseph had so much confidence in her.
Kathy grinned and said, "I was nervous for a long time after the interview. Something bad happened."
Joseph quietly listened to her. "I saw Reece..." she said.
Joseph frowned slightly.
"Fortunately, it ends well."

After hanging up the phone, Kathy left the school and rested at a nearby hotel with Jennifer.
Booth Group needed Jennifer's attention. So, she went back to her room to work after dinner. Kathy lay in bed and chatted with Joseph on WeChat.
Kathy had been tense all day, so she drifted off. She was still on the phone with Joseph, and his voice was so charming....

Just then, a knock came. Kathy opened her eyes with great difficulty. Was it Jennifer?
Kathy tried to stay awake and opened the door. She was shocked when she saw a handsome man in white shirt and black trousers.
Joseph? How did he get here?

Her eyes lit up. The next moment, Joseph held her wrist and pulled her into his embrace.
The air felt cold around him, and it smelled like him.
"Why are you here? Didn't you say you would pick me up tomorrow?"

They had been talking on the phone just now. Kathy was surprised to see him.
"I want to see you sooner." Joseph's voice was gentle. He led her into the room.

Kathy's eyes were shimmering. She stood on tiptoe and pressed Joseph against the wall, kissing him more passionately than ever before.

Joseph held the back of her head and smiled faintly.

The loud honks behind her interrupted the stalemate. Kathy turned her head and was astonished by what she saw.

Three super-luxurious extended Rolls-Royce cars stopped at the entrance of the dormitory. The man who came out of one was wearing a light blue shirt, elegant and noble.

"Heavens.... These are limited editions. They are so hard to get."

"It's Professor Joseph! He is here to pick up his girlfriend. I'm so jealous of Kathy...."

"He is so handsome. I must be dreaming.... Why isn't my boyfriend Professor Joseph?"

Screams went on. When Kathy regained her composure, Joseph was before her.

Reece looked annoyed.

Joseph was putting up a front, which broke Reece's stride.

Kathy asked blankly, "Did you just buy cars?"

Joseph smiled faintly and said, "They were in the garage all along. You just didn't notice them."

Kathy didn't know what to say.

She rarely drove, so she never went to the garage in Joseph Bay....

"Are you here to pick me up?" she asked uncertainly.

"Yes, I am here to help with your luggage." With that, he held her hand and walked into the dormitory.

Another wave of screams came. The girls were eaten up by jealousy.

Kathy felt she was some sort of celebrity because of Joseph.

Ever since his love video was posted, she had felt she was being watched.

"Joseph, what a waste for the cars to carry my luggage." Kathy walked out of the balcony. The three Rolls-Royce cars were so imposing.

Although she knew Joseph was rich, this was too much!

Fortunately, she was no longer a student at Ocean University. Otherwise, she would have to face jealous gaze on a daily basis.

"I disagree," Joseph said indifferently.

He felt girls would have plenty of things and feared one car would not be enough, so he asked the driver to bring two more cars.

Quinn frowned and did not move at all, because he saw Joseph coming over.
Ella broke free from his brother and ran to Joseph.
"Joseph, trust me. I didn't harm Grandpa...."
Joseph's face was tense as he stared at Ella and Reece.

"Ella, let's go home." Reece came to Ella and held her shoulder, taking her away.

Her eyes on Joseph, she wanted to grab him but couldn't even reach his arm.

Reece brought her into the car.

Ella burst into tears. She stared at her brother and murmured, "Was it you?"

Reece looked coldly at the building that was fading away from sight and smiled sinisterly. "So what?"

In the next second, Ella's hand came at his face, but he caught it.

"Ella, don't forget who you are," Reece reminded her.

"Mathew has been nice to me," she muttered.

"Mr Mathew is nice to you?" Reece sneered, "And I am not?"

His eyes were dripping malice.

Ella did not dare to look at him or speak.

She twisted her fingers, looking ashen.

"Veronica is suspecting us."

"So what? She doesn't have proof."

"Reece, don't hurt Mathew...."

He cut her off quickly, "Ella, I want him dead."

Ella grew even more agitated when she saw his bloodthirsty eyes.

Chapter 518 Not Born a Flatterer

Joseph came back after midnight.

Kathy was sitting on the sofa with a textbook but couldn't take anything in.

She turned her head when she heard someone unlocking the door, running into Joseph's arms the moment she saw him.

A day felt too long without him.

Joseph's tense expression softened a little as he looked at the little woman hugging him like a koala bear.

Rubbing her hair dotingly, he hugged her and sat down on the sofa. "Did you have anything tonight?"

Kathy did not answer.

She seemed to have forgotten about dinner.

He knew the answer when he saw her expression. He helplessly frowned, rolled up his sleeves, and walked into the kitchen. Kathy followed him like a doll.

She watched as he made the noodles skillfully. Not long after, an inviting fragrance pervaded the room, and Kathy's belly groaned.

"What kept you so late?" she asked with concern.

"I was looking into Grandfather's attempted murder."

"Any clues?"

"Yes, but they aren't enough." Joseph turned off the heat and emptied the pan.

Noticing it was only enough for one person, Kathy looked at him and said, "Have you eaten?"

"No, but I'm not hungry."

"No can do. I'll cook something for you!" After saying that, Kathy returned to the kitchen.

Joseph forcefully carried her out of it and pressed her down on the seat, so that she couldn't move. "It won't taste good when it is cold. Be a lame and have your meal."

She looked at him unhappily. "If you don't eat, I won't either."

She pushed the noodles to him.

Joseph compromised under her insistence.

Only this woman could make him do that.

He cooked another bowl of noodles and placed it in front of Kathy. Then he began to eat the cold ones.

"Stop talking and eat," Joseph ordered.

"Why are you here?" Kathy looked at him in surprise.

Joseph should go to work today. Normally, he would only be free at night.

"I'm here to pick you up." Joseph clenched her small hand with his big palm.

"The driver has been waiting. I'll go back after the stroll." Kathy cuddled up to him.

Not far away, Reece stared at them with cold eyes.

Joseph saw him as well. He frowned slightly and looked at Kathy. "What did you and Reece talk about just now?"

He had seen them talking when he came over.

"He said my mentor would treat us to dinner tomorrow. The time is being discussed in our group chat."

"Where?"

"River Hotel. It is right across the school."

The next day, Kathy came to the dinner party a little early, but Reece beat her to it.

Kathy picked the farthest position from him. He coldly curled his lips and said, "There's no need to avoid me. I don't bite."

"That remains to be seen," Kathy muttered.

In her eyes, Reece was a wolf.

Not long after, the mentor Dona and her four students also came. Reece was her only doctoral candidate, and all the other students were grad students.

Kathy was a transfer student. Her classmates and the mentor were already close, but she was not sociable, so she rarely spoke during dinner.

However, Dona was impressed with her. She showed admiration when she talked to Kathy, and Kathy loosened up a bit.

Dona stopped the manager when he came to ask if it was time to serve the dishes.

"Who else is coming?" Reece frowned.

"You'll know soon. He's a big wheel," Dona smiled.

Chapter 520 Stay Out of This

Johnson took Alexia away, and the party was basically over.
Quinn became the CEO of Joseph Group, but he still had to report many things to Joseph, the chairman.
Kathy listened to the briefing but was confused. However, she didn't miss out this news. University F and Joseph Group were cooperating in the research and development of several new drugs. Professor Dona took part in it.
Kathy was only a new transfer student, so she probably wouldn't be invited.
Kathy did not give it much thought and turned in early after returning to Joseph Bay. She had to go back to school for the orientation tomorrow.

Joseph also started to get busy. He did not stay in Ocean University but returned to the Central Hospital where he used to work.

The Central Hospital was affiliated to University F. Many of his fans suspected he made this decision for Kathy.

Although the topic was hot on the Internet, Joseph wasn't affected by public opinions. He was busy at work every day, and Kathy hadn't seen him for half a month after she started school.

After school on Friday, Kathy checked the time and called Joseph. Making sure he was in the hospital, she went to find him.

The Central Hospital was undoubtedly ranked first in City N. Although it was evening, it was crowded.

Kathy had just arrived at the neurology department when she saw a familiar figure.

Ella was dressed as a nurse and was standing at the nurse's desk to help the patients with the paper work.

Noticing Kathy, she actually smiled faintly. "Hello, Ms Kathy."

"Joseph will probably be busy until evening. You may have to wait."

"How many patients does he have?"

"Twenty-eight."

Kathy frowned. It would probably take an hour or two.

She wasn't surprised Ella was here. Perhaps Mathew or Ella's family was behind it.

Ella would follow Joseph everywhere.

As time passed, Kathy sat quietly outside his office. Gradually, this floor quieted down.

Ella walked into Joseph's consulting room, and he was surprised to see her.
