Chapter 561 Haven't Broken up

"Kathy, you are the cause of everything." Zofia stated.

Kathy bit her lips hard, and her face was extremely pale.

She trembled slightly. She kept thinking of the scene of Zofia lying on the road in blood.

She closed her eyes and shook her head.

"Zofia, be reasonable. I'm sorry that something like this has happened, but it you who came between us knowing exactly that we had been together." Kathy calmed down and said word by word.

She admitted that she might have upset Zofia that night.

However, the prerequisite for this was that Zofia deliberately created a scene to mislead her.

She came out of Joseph's room with hickeys, but ... Joseph was her boyfriend!

"So what? I am like this now. Joseph won't ignore me, or he will be a beast!" Zofia's tone was gloomy.

She was betting that Joseph would compromise.

"Then let's see what he will do!" Kathy took a deep breath and turned around to leave.

"Kathy, Joseph and I have already done it all. Are you really okay with it? Do you believe in Joseph that much?" Zofia's cold voice sounded behind her.

Kathy did not stop. She ... believed in Joseph.

Right now, she knew clearly who Zofia was and wouldn't believe her anymore.

Walking out of the ward, Bertie extinguished the cigarette and looked at her with a heavy expression.

"You're going back to City N?" He asked.

Kathy nodded.

"You know how Zofia is doing. She is my sister and I will pursue this matter." Bertie's eyes were filled with ruthlessness.

Kathy's expression remained indifferent as usual as she twitched her lip corners, "How?"

"Joseph failed Zofia. I won't let him live in peace." Bertie always paid attention to Kathy's emotions.

But now, her emotions were well hidden.

He couldn't read her.

"Bertie, Zofia caused this. Do you think what she did is right?" Kathy said and left without stopping.

She was irritated. She turned on her phone and booked another flight ticket.

However, she did not see any missed calls from Joseph. She was disappointed.

Chapter 562 Heartbroken

After leaving the office, Kathy went straight back to the dormitory. She wanted to read, but the words in the book gradually changed into Joseph's appearance.

Joseph said that he was in the Joseph Group, but he had handed most of the work to Quinn. What important matters would need to be handled by him?

Did something happen to the Joseph Group?

After thinking for a while, she sent Veronica a WeChat message, and then browsed news.

However, she didn't see any news about the Joseph Group. Instead, there were quite a few news reports about the bribery of the Bridges Group's higher-ups. The situation of the group was worrisome.

She wasn't interested in the Bridges Group, but when she remembered that Professor Zane just said that Reece had something to do with the shareholder change in the hospital, she continued to read.

But she didn't get the information she wanted.

Not long after, Veronica replied. Quinn had also been working overtime recently because he wanted to compete with Bridges Group for a few imported medicines.

So the reason was this.

"Joseph didn't even tell me," Kathy muttered.

Time flew and it was night. Kathy wrote for a while, but she couldn't help glancing at her phone.

Joseph said he would come tonight.

But it was so late....

She picked up the phone and put it down. She did this again and again. Finally, the phone rang!

Kathy picked it up without even looking at the caller ID.

"Joseph!"

"Kathy, it's Mom." Jennifer said resignedly.

Kathy was embarrassed, "Mom."

"Are you waiting for Joseph's call?" Jennifer smiled.

"No." Kathy replied. But she didn't mean it.

"Come back to the old house this weekend with Joseph." It had been a long time since Kathy and her mother met.

"Kathy, I've never cared about her." Joseph said coldly.

"Really?"

"And you! Stop getting so close to Zofia. She is not that simple." Joseph reminded.

Kathy was always so kind-hearted. Zofia would seize on her weak spot to hurt her.

Kathy bit her lips and didn't say anything.

"I know."

Joseph hugged Kathy in his arms, but in fact, neither of them fell asleep. It was not until early morning that Kathy got a little sleep.

When she woke up, Joseph had already prepared breakfast. Kathy smelled food as soon as she stepped out of the bedroom.

"It's been a long time since I've had your breakfast." Kathy smiled happily.

"If you move here, I will make it for you every day." Joseph sat down opposite her and helped her warm the milk.

"I'm still living on campus." Kathy said. Thinking of what Jennifer said last night, Kathy continued, "Mom wants you back for dinner this weekend."

"I may go to Country C on business." Joseph frowned.

"Business? Is it about the Joseph Group?"

"Yes. I need to deal with loads of things recently."

"Is it because of the competition with the Bridges Group?"

Joseph raised his eyes and curled his thin lips, "You know a lot."

"You never tell me about that. So, I went to ask Veronica." Kathy was a little dissatisfied.

Joseph put down his spoon, stretched out his hand, and wiped the corner of Kathy's creamy mouth.

"Reece has been took aim at the Joseph Group recently. Of course, he's mainly targeting me." Joseph said.

"So, you were suspended because of him?"

"Yes. The Central Hospital is now controlled by the Bridges Group. However, their condition is not good now. What Reece did will only backfire. Many doctors have left the hospital now."

Kathy looked at Joseph. He looked like he's got his ducks in a pan.

The next day, Kathy finally met Professor Zane.

She told Kathy that it was a transfer from the higher authority, and she had not expected it.

The school had arranged for other professors to take over. Other students have already contacted their new mentor except Kathy.

"Kathy, your mentor will come next Monday."

"Who is my mentor?"

"You know him." Dona smiled and didn't say anything else.

Kathy was puzzled. She knew him?

Benedict Watson?

However, she had just contacted Professor Watson not long ago. He was traveling around the world now, so it was impossible for him to come to work.

She didn't seem to know anyone else.

That night, the students organized a dinner party for Professor Zane. Kathy came later and Reece was also there.

He was very familiar with Professor Zane, and they chatted for a long time.

They were both grim-faced.

Kathy drank the juice quietly and was a little absent-minded.

At this moment, a burst of footsteps came from outside the door. A familiar figure walked in.

Kathy raised her eyes and suddenly saw Sonny.

He....

Dona then sat in the middle and introduced Sonny to everyone, "I haven't introduced him yet. This is Sonny Carr. He just transferred to our major. He's Professor Lee's student now."

Kathy was surprised and a little delightful.

When Sonny was expelled from school, she felt pity for him. And now, it was good for him to be in University F.

When they returned to Joseph Bay, Kathy had fallen asleep.

Joseph stared at her quiet face and smiled tenderly. Then he kissed on her lips and it went deeper.

After the car stopped, he carried Kathy out and she finally woke up.

"Why didn't you wake me up?" Kathy muttered.

When she opened her eyes, Joseph had carried her into the bedroom.

He put her on the soft bed and pressed down on her. Kathy got trapped and could not get away.

"Just sleep. I'll give you a bath," Joseph said in a gentle voice.

Then he began to take off her clothes.

Kathy couldn't help but tremble and curl up.

Now she was not sleepy anymore.

"I can do it myself."

Although she had slept with Joseph, she felt shy sometimes when she got naked in front of him.

Seeing that Kathy almost escaped from his embrace, Joseph immediately dragged her back.

Then he carried her into the bathroom.

Kathy was slightly drunk tonight, so Joseph easily turned her on. Leaning against his embrace, she was quite irresistible to him.

"Joseph, you're still going to work tomorrow. It's very late now."

After a long time, Kathy was getting drowsy, but Joseph still couldn't get enough.

He sounded very energetic when he kissed her ear and said in a hoarse and sexy voice.

"I won't go to work tomorrow."

Kathy closed her eyes as her body was turned over again.

When Jennifer mentioned Joseph, Kathy finally lighted up.

"He doesn't come with you?" Jennifer asked with concern.

"He has some work to do."

Joseph finally came at 7 p.m..

Kathy helped Jennifer deal with some work. She had always known that Jennifer wanted her to enter the Booth Group. However, Kathy just couldn't meet the business tickler successfully.

She just wanted to be a doctor like Joseph, treating illnesses and saving people.

After dinner, Kathy and Joseph took a walk in the garden.

Kathy told Joseph that Reece came to the Booth Mansion today.

"You feel like you don't know Dona at all, don't you?" Joseph saw through her.

Kathy was a simple girl. She believed what people showed to her.

"Yeah." Kathy frowned.

"Dona is working for Reece now. Perhaps it is not her purpose at the beginning. After all, Reece does whatever it takes to win in the business world," Joseph said indifferently.

"What about you?" Kathy stared at him.

"If people don't offend me, I won't do anything."

"The Bridges Group has been targeting at your company. You won't stop the competition until one of you gets broke?"

"Yes. Who do you think will win?" Joseph looked at Kathy, all calm.

"Of course you." Kathy held his arm.

Joseph had been an omnipotent God to her.

"You're very confident in me." Joseph smiled.

"Because I like you. No matter what, I only trust you." Kathy stared at him.

Joseph held her little face and gazed at her smile. Then he closed his eyes and hugged her tightly with his forehead against hers.

Joseph looked sullen.

As Kathy rejected him, he stared at her with his eyes full of intimidation.

"I'm a little regretful now," Joseph said in a deep voice.

Kathy was embarrassed and glared at Joseph.

"Listen, you are a teacher in the school, and I'm only your student."

Kathy led the way.

Joseph smiled and shook his head, feeling she was adorable.

The news that Joseph became a professor at University F went around the campus and even the entire city in less than a day.

Along with it, another news became popular.

Several media outlets began to report that Joseph was dismissed by the Central Hospital for making mistakes in work half month ago.

Kathy was angry about those groundless reports.

In her opinion, Joseph had always taken his work seriously. It was totally out of the question for him to make medical blunders. What were reported were completely false rumors!

She wondered if Joseph had seen those reports....

Kathy became increasingly anxious and wanted to call Joseph.

All of a sudden, what Joseph had mentioned after they finished the meal occurred to her. As he probably was in a meeting, Kathy put down her phone again.

Given the Bridges family was the biggest shareholder in the Central Hospital, was Reece behind the matter?

Kathy followed up on public opinion online. Although netizens and Joseph's fans believed him, Joseph's reputation was badly affected.

Kathy had been nervous for an afternoon. And Joseph didn't finish the meeting until evening.

As a newcomer, Joseph was busy with work.

Kathy followed him to the office and said, "Tell me if you need help."

"You are my student, not my assistant," Joseph said in a gentle voice.

She had a premonition that...

In the next morning, Kathy went to the canteen for breakfast. Sonny had entered school recently, and his mentor was David, an authoritative professor of surgery.

Seeing Kathy, he took the initiative to greet her.

"Are you going to David's class today?" Sonny asked.

Kathy smiled and nodded, "It's my first time attending his class, but I've heard a lot about him."

David was transferred from Country F, and he had taken over most of Dona's students.

"He used to be as famous as Professor Joseph. I've admired him for a long time, and I've never expected that I can become his student one day."

"It's good that your dream comes true now."

"I have to appreciate you for your help back then," Sonny looked at Kathy and said.

Kathy sat across from Sonny and had breakfast. She felt at ease when talking with him and kept smiling all the morning.

Since she had an appointment with Joseph for lunch, Kathy said goodbye to Sonny after class.

However, Sonny stopped her, "Professor Lee said we needed to work in group for the assignment. How about we work together?"

"Of course, I'm happy to team up with you. You are an excellent student," Kathy said and put on a smile.

"Are you busy this afternoon? We could have a little group meeting then."

Kathy frowned, "I have to do experiments later. How about this evening or tomorrow?"

If Maria was clear about that, she wouldn't have taken so many detours.

"Joseph, please save my daughter. I can agree to anything..." Maria said, trembling.

In her mind, nothing was more important than her daughter's life.

Joseph remained calm as usual, as he pursed his thin lips and said softly, "I will do my best."

Ella woke up soon after she was transferred to the general ward.

Joseph was holding a meeting with some brain experts, only Maria was there for her.

"Mom, where are we?" Ella opened her eyes, still a little confused.

"Boston Hospital." Maria was already exhausted from crying.

Ella frowned, "Was it Joseph ... just now?"

"Mm, I didn't expect either that he didn't refuse to save you at this time." Maria sighed.

"Mom, didn't Brother say that he would find a doctor for me? Why do you bring me here?" Ella muttered.

Right now, she didn't really want to face Joseph. The man had a poker face and a heart of stone.

"I don't think your brother has the ability. Since Joseph is willing to save you now, then just let him go on being your doctor."

"Is he ... willing to do this?" Ella looked down, her face filled with great disappointment.

"I begged him with benefits in the business world. I think he will agree." Maria narrowed her eyes.

"Mom..."

"Alright, you just stay in bed and be good. I won't let anything happen to you."

In the evening, Joseph finally finished the meeting. Judging from Ella's current status, she must have a craniotomy immediately. However, she had had one just half a year ago, and now was not the best time to undergo another one.

Hence, she could only be on medication for the time being.

Joseph had already told Maria about the situation. After analyzing the feasibility of different treatment plans, it was still up to the family to decide which one to choose in the end.

"Then I'm really grateful to Maria. Reece has monopolized a large chunk of the overseas market recently. His capability does scare me to some extent." Quinn narrowed his eyes.

At the very least, he hadn't found any breakthrough to fight against the Bridges Group yet.

The two companies were on a par at the moment.

"But are you sure that Maria will help us?" Quinn asked worriedly.

"Ella's life is in my hands. What do you think? However, we do need a back-up plan. I'm very surprised too that she just gave it to me like this." Joseph said softly.

Originally, he wasn't in a hurry and planned to play with Reece slowly. But now, this game seemed to be getting pretty exciting.

The next day, Kathy only met Joseph in the afternoon.

"What happened yesterday?" She asked with concern.

Joseph frowned and said softly, "Mrs. Bridges sent Ella to Boston Hospital. Her condition is at stake."

Hearing the name Ella, Kathy inevitably furrowed her brows.

She had no good impression of this woman.

"So you're in charge of her now?"

"Yes."

"Alright then, does that mean you will spend less time in the university these days?" Kathy was somewhat disappointed.

"No, but I do have to shuttle between the hospital and the university."

Kathy pursed her lips and couldn't help but feel a bit emotional.

Joseph could see that and smiled helplessly, "You're not happy about this?"

"Nope."

There's nothing more important than human life. She wouldn't be angry on that matter.

It was just that she wasn't really feeling good.

"You can come to the hospital with me." Joseph curled his lips.

Kathy was his student, so there was no problem for her to study beside him.

Hearing this, Kathy's eyes lit up.
