My Sweetheart

Chapter 601 Take Control of Your Man

Kathy was in terrible condition now. She was allergic to seafood but just now at the restaurant she had eaten a lot. Joseph wanted her to eat, so she had to.

The doctor wrote her hospitalization bill and some prescriptions. After that, Kathy was quickly transferred to the ward. She needed to be observed in hospital for three days.

Joseph never entered the ward and Kathy stayed in the ward alone. She enjoyed the peace but when she thought of what he did, she felt disappointed.

She didn't know why he tortured her. Would that make him happy?

Kathy was having an intravenous drip on the bed. Not long after the nurse left, she heard footsteps and thought Joseph may come over. But the approaching click of high heels made her vigilant.

She raised her eyes and saw Zofia's furious expression. Then, a slap sounded.

Kathy received a slap, and that made her face even paler.

"Kathy, can you stop seducing Joseph!" Zofia jeered, her eyes filled with disdain.

"I have nothing to do with Joseph." Kathy took a deep breath and she sat up. At the same time, she raised her other hand and slapped Zofia back.

Zofia was dumbfounded because she thought Kathy was an obedient girl. But now, she actually dared to hit back...

Although Kathy was too weak to hit her heavily, Zofia was deeply humiliated!

"Kathy, how dare you!" Zofia was so angry.

"I'm sent here due to Joseph. Please take your man and leave Country F. I don't want to see you anymore." Kathy said coldly.

She was fed up with both Joseph and Zofia.

She had tried to see Joseph in the past three years, but now this thought was gone.

She only wanted Joseph and Zofia to stay out of her life in the future.

"Are you serious? Kathy, you managed to meet Joseph over and over again!" Zofia scolded.

Kathy woke up two hours later. Jennifer insisted on staying with her, so Karl stayed as well.

Kathy opened his eyes and saw a familiar environment. She frowned and felt kind of nauseous.

Jennifer hurriedly helped her up and looked at her with pity.

"Kathy, you're freaking me out."

As soon as Jennifer knew that Kathy was sent to the emergency room, she immediately came to the hospital from the house. Fortunately, Kathy was fine now.

Kathy's face was deathly pale and she suddenly thought of Joseph.

However, she looked around the ward and did not see him.

What was she thinking?

Kathy shook her head and tried to stop woolgathering.

"I'm fine, Mom."

"I will stay here with you. Sleep well."

Kathy nodded. She felt at ease with her mother around.

At this time, at the Westlife Hotel.

After Joseph returned, he headed straight for the suite on the 28th floor.

Zofia opened the door and looked nervously at Joseph.

"Joseph, it's so late. Why are you here?"

"Zofia, she's not someone you can hurt." Joseph finished and turned to left.

Soon after, Zofia chased and took him by the wrist, "Do you trust her so much? Or do you still love her?"

Tears welled up in Zofia's eyes. She was with Joseph for three years. Wasn't it worth it?

"I don't love her."

After saying that, Joseph walked away. Zofia looked at Joseph's back and heaved a sigh of relief.

Chapter 603 You Know What I Am Capable of

On the weekend, Kathy woke up a little late and took out her phone. She opened WeChat as usual, but she saw a new friend request.

Originally, she wanted to ignore it, but she saw the notes.

"See you later."

Kathy was confused.

Then she checked his WeChat profile. His profile photo was the back of a man facing the sea. She could tell that his taste in life was pretty good.

See you later ... Kathy was thinking about the meaning of these words, and suddenly raised her eyebrows. Could it be her blind date?

She almost forgot about it.

She quickly washed up and checked the time. It was almost eleven o'clock.

At this time, her phone vibrated again. It was a message from her blind date, telling her to wear some leisure clothes and try not to wear a dress.

"Do we have plans after lunch?"

She texted back. Originally, her plan was to have a meal with him and then go home by herself.

"Yes, I heard from your mother that you are very busy on weekdays. So I plan to have you relaxed."

Kathy didn't text back anymore.

After leaving, Jennifer called her and told her to get along well with him. She also told her that she could go home late tonight.

Kathy answered without thinking.

However, after arriving at the mansion, Kathy waited for a long time for her blind date. He did not even reply her WeChat message.

Kathy didn't have his phone number, and she couldn't get in touch with him in any other way.

Being late for the first date, he gave Kathy a bad impression.

At this time, the phone rang. It was Reece in Europe.

"Hello."

"Kathy, you don't have to wait any longer. He is not coming." Reece's cold voice was extremely frightening.

"Hello, Mr Young." Kathy smiled faintly.

"I'm sorry I stood you up yesterday. I didn't expect such an accident to happen."

Kathy frowned in frustration. If it wasn't for her...

"Ms Kathy, are you blaming yourself? It has nothing to do with you. It was an accident." Jaydon saw the change in her emotions.

Kathy came back to her senses and turned her head awkwardly with medical records in her hands.

"Yes, but it happened on your way to see me." Kathy said quietly.

"But you also saved my life, didn't you?"

Kathy raised her eyes to look at the handsome man in front of her. Even his voice was like Joseph's.

She thought subconsciously.

"I'm afraid in your condition, you will have to stay here for a while." Kathy changed the subject.

"Then I will be grateful for your help when I'm here."

Kathy was not Jaydon's attending physician. However, she came here almost every day because she was worried and Jennifer also asked her to.

During this period, the two of them had gotten to know each other a bit more. After Jaydon could get off the bed, he came to Kathy's office to see her almost every day. He was so good-looking that he had already be admired by the female doctors and nurses. However, everyone could clearly tell that he was going after Kathy.

As soon as Kathy went out of the operating room and sat down in her office, Jaydon came over.

"Mr Young, your legs are not fully recovered yet. Don't walk around all the time." Kathy said helplessly.

He was a naughty patient indeed.

"Vivian said that you were in an operation early this morning. It has been eight hours now. Let me have lunch with you and I will go back."

Kathy immediately went to Mr Richard's office. She did not apply for a leave herself.

"Doctor Kathy, you haven't taken your annual leave last year. And you have many deferred days off because you've been working overtime. Now we have hired a new attending doctor. Maybe you can take a good vacation."

Kathy knitted her eyebrows and looked at Mr Richard who had a point.

But a month's vacation ... isn't it too long?

She would be bored at home. Besides, she enjoyed such a fulfilling life.

"Mr Richard, this is a good suggestion but I think the vacation is too long... "

"Then you can travel abroad. Don't worry, we will manage your work here."

Though Kathy a little uneasy on this, she could not refuse Mr Richard's kindness.

When Vivian knew about this news, she immediately came to the office.

"Doctor Kathy, you are so lucky. That's a month's holiday. With such a long time, you can travel to Europe!" Vivian was so envious as it was hard to ask for such a long leave.

"Right now, I just want to save people." Kathy smiled.

"Don't be stupid. Rest while you can. Don't treat yourself too hard. You are still human. You have been working nonstop this whole year." Vivian felt heart ached, so she always advised Kathy to make good use of this opportunity.

"Did I? I am just doing my job."

When she was in University F, she had a tight schedule with both homework and internship. Life hadn't changed much for her.

Working kept you from thinking too much.

Before getting off work, Kathy went to do the ward rounds. There were many nurses surrounding Jaydon, chatting with him. Jaydon would be discharged tomorrow so they hoped to be with him more.

This man... was truly a Mack Daddy.

Jaydon gently asked the nurses to leave with patience. After they all left reluctantly, Kathy walked in.

"My mother cooked soup for you." Jaydon handed over an insulated bowl.

Kathy frowned. She had tasted many dishes cooked by Mrs. Young these past few days...

"You haven't slept well these days, have you? This soup can relax your nerve. It also tastes good." Jaydon blinked at her.

Chapter 606 She Can't Ignore Him

In the first-class cabin, Kathy curled up in the spacious leather chair listlessly. The flight attendant at the side bent down and thoughtfully asked Kathy what else she needed.

Kathy felt very cold so she asked for a blanket.

Being at thirty thousand feet high in the sky turned out to have a soothing effect. Kathy wrapped herself tightly. She thought that she might have trouble sleeping, but she still fell asleep in no time.

Then she woke up because of hunger so she ordered a meal. Then she went back to sleep again. This was the longest flight she had ever had, but she didn't find it hard to endure. Instead, she was glad to have a sound sleep.

The flight attendant gently woke her up when it was time to land. Kathy just took off her blindfold and heard a laughter behind her. "Haven't you slept your whole life?"

At this moment, she still found it difficult to adapt to the light. She turned around and realized who was behind. It was Jaydon in a casual white shirt. He narrowed his eyes and looked at her. Then he raised his wrist and pointed at his watch. "Based on my calculation, you have spent 90% of the time on the plane sleeping!"

Jaydon revealed an amazed expression. Kathy wanted to move her lips to reveal a smile, but she found it a little difficult. So she only responded lightly and turned her head to pull open the shade without saying anything.

When Kathy regained her senses, she wondered why Jaydon was on the same flight as her.

He had just been discharged from the hospital and should rest at home. How could he travel so long?

Jaydon quickly walked to Kathy's side and sat down, "Aren't you surprised to see me?"

"Very." Kathy nodded.

However, Kathy was still totally awake from the sleep. She had no intention to have a conversation now so her expression was a little stiff.

"Are you not feeling well?" Jaydon noticed Kathy's pale face.

"I am fine." Kathy shook her head.

At this moment, the plane was rapidly landing and it brought up some uncomfortable reactions from one's eardrums. This didn't last long as the plane landed steadily.

Kathy's first stop was Rome, and Jaydon followed her all the way.

Kathy suddenly thought of something and raised her eyes to ask, "You are also here for a trip? Have you talked about this with my mom?"

Jennifer scheduled this for her. Since Jennifer and Mrs. Young were on good terms, it was very likely that they arranged this coincidence for them.

Sure enough, Jaydon was familiar with everything here. He took Kathy to a restaurant on Parsey Street.
They sat down by the window. As night fell, the vibe of the city was changing.
The waiter, with long brown hair and gray eyes, came over with the menu and greeted Jaydon jovially.
Jaydon smiled and explained to Kathy, "Every time I come to Rome, I come here. The beef is very good."
The dish was served very soon. The fresh veal was accompanied by sake. There was melted butter on the top.

All kinds of aromas mixed together and it smelled wonderful.

The second dish was vegetable salad. The Roman artichokes and asparagus were fresh and crispy, which went well with a special sauce. It tasted just right.

Kathy took a few bites and asked him, "Where are we going later?"

She already knew that Jennifer let her travel with Jaydon on purpose, so he must know about the itinerary as well.

"Sicily, that's where we can really get to know Italy." Jaydon looked out of the window with a deep smile. "For Sicily is the clue to everything, that's what Goethe said."

"You were not a literature major, were you?" Kathy blurted out.

"No, I was a medical student."

Kathy was surprised. She didn't know he was a doctor, too

Chapter 608 She Resisted As Much As He Was Frightening

When Kathy arrived at the airport, she found the lounge packed.

The electronic screen scrolled with the latest airline news. Most routes were temporarily closed because of the volcanic eruption in Iceland.

Kathy's heart skipped a beat. She ran to the information desk. The tired staff members were repeating the words "sorry". She walked out of the crowd and saw that on the other side of the airport, the workers were moving cots in large numbers. She couldn't even find a seat to sit on, so she sat on her suitcase and unlocked her phone.

Many domestic news websites had reported that air traffic in Europe was at a standstill. Tens of thousands of tourists had been stranded at the airport, and the restoration of routes was further away than ever.

The telephone line at the embassy was busy. The news on the Internet didn't send out clear messages. Some said that within three days the flight will be restored, while others said that it would take at least half a month. Kathy stood up impatiently. She wanted to go to the bathroom and wash her face, but out of the corner of her eye she saw a piece of news scrolling.

She closed her eyes and took a deep breath, but couldn't help click on it.

Was he in Europe too?

Kathy was bewildered, and her brain was in chaos.

"Mr Joseph, a leading neurologist, arrived in Europe three days ago and would participate in an international medical conference..."

Kathy was suddenly filled with a strange and distant sense of dependence. She was depressed and ashamed, but at this moment, she really missed the man who was capable of anything three years ago.

"No, I have to do something..." As if to dissipate her weakness, Kathy hurried out of the airport with her luggage.

Perhaps she could get there before the ash reached southern Europe and return home.

Arriving at the station, however, it turned out that she was not the only one who thought so.

There were crowds everywhere. It reminded people of the travel rush during major holidays.

Kathy waited at the end of the line in despair until a kind tourist told her that all airports in other southern European countries were also closed and that she might as well stay here and wait.

So Kathy had to go back to the airport and sit at the gate wearily. Karl called again and asked if she was on the plane. Kathy answered helplessly, "I don't know when the flight will be restored."

Joseph put down the tablet in his hand and walked to the window slowly.
From this place on the second floor, he saw a slim figure which was leaning against the black door.
She could only stand against the wall as she had no umbrella. Her hands were trembling because of cold.
"How long has she been there?"
"She's been there for almost three hours."
It was quite warm in the room. The man only wore a black vest with rhombus patterns over a light-colored shirt. He looked out of the window indifferently. The slim figure which was against the wall was going down.
Joseph frowned slightly. The butler who was beside him reminded again, "Sir, she is about to faint."
"Bring her in."
Kathy walked in, supported by the butler. She was clear-headed even when she was weak.
Kathy got dirty marks on the soft white carpet in the living room with her muddy shoes.
Kathy was a little nervous and whispered, "Is he up yet?"
The butler replied politely, "Ms Kathy, please take a seat first. Mr Joseph will be here soon."
This should be Joseph's villa. It was simple but exquisite and luxurious.
Kathy did not have the mood to look around. She sat down on the sofa and stared at her feet.
Kathy had no idea how long she had been waiting for till she heard footsteps came from far to near. Her fingers clenched her wet clothes and raised her head with courage.

Joseph just stood an arm's length away from her with his arms crossed in front of his chest. He looked down at her condescendingly and asked coldly, "What brings Ms Kathy here?"

Taking a deep breath, Kathy tried to act as a motionless puppet, which couldn't think and could only talk.

Kathy did not say anything else and followed him back into the room quietly.

The butler had gotten things neatly and he handed a trench coat to Joseph, "The car is ready."

Joseph nodded. When walking to the door, he suddenly realized something. He turned around and noticed Kathy still stood there. Joseph said, "Why don't you come?"

"Where are we heading for?"

"You don't bother to know that." The man's eyes darkened.

Kathy bit her lips and the butler said, "Ms Kathy, your luggage is packed as well."

Kathy nodded, followed Joseph out and sat on the back seat of the car.

Kathy huddled in a corner and looked out of the window. The passing volcanic ash clouds were such a rare scene and some people were holding their cameras, ready to capture this moment.

She suddenly admired these people for their simple happiness.

"Are you cold?"

Kathy was stunned when she suddenly heard Joseph's words. She shook her head and said, "No, I'm not."

Noticing Kathy's frightened look, Joseph said gently, "I won't bite you."

Kathy forced a smile and turned to him.

Joseph had concentrated on checking the tablet in his hand.

At this time, Kathy felt relaxed slightly. The countryside scenery outside the window flew by. Kathy blew on the window glass, and then drew something with her fingernail.
