My Sweetheart

Chapter 621 Admit Her Mistake

After leaving the operating room, she broke out in cold sweat.

When the accident happened just now, she was nervous and even a little panicked.

Until the familiar figure entered, she could clearly feel the change in her emotions.

She knew that Joseph would definitely take care of it.

"Kathy, you did a good job there." Jaydon approached her and comforted her as if he had seen through Kathy's mind.

Kathy could not laugh. In the operating room, she was indeed distracted at that moment.

"I'm really surprised. I didn't expect Professor Joseph to come. If it wasn't for him, I'm afraid I wouldn't be able to make it through. I've never dealt with that situation before." Jaydon frowned.

After all, he was still young, and his surgical experience was far from being comparable to Joseph's.

"But overall, it is a successful operation." Jaydon comforted.

Kathy nodded. Not long after, Joseph also came out. Kathy quickened her pace and approached the elevator.

Jaydon was surrounded by a few doctors, so he couldn't keep up.

It was Boston Hospital here. However, many doctors from People's Hospital had also come to watch this operation, including Mr Richard.

Seeing Kathy enter the projection room, Mr Richard's expression was gloomy.

Vivian stood aside and shook her head at Kathy, signaling for her to hurry up and leave.

But she still walked over stubbornly. She knew that Mr Richard was angry.

This time, she was the one who made the mistake as a doctor from People's Hospital. In the eyes of the outsiders, People's Hospital was embarrassed.

She was willing to admit her mistake.

"Doctor Kathy, what were you thinking during the operation? It was such a low-level mistake!" Mr Richard's tone was extremely cold.

Kathy pursed her lips and lowered her head, "Mr Richard, I'm sorry for letting you down."

After received Jennifer's call, Jaydon immediately rushed over to the Bridges House.

"Kathy has locked herself in her room for a day and a night."

Jaydon couldn't conceal the worries on his face, so he immediately went to Kathy's room and knocked on the door.

Kathy was still making up for her sleep. The last time that she slept for such a long time was long ago.

When she heard the knock on the door, she thought it was a servant, so she put on a coat and opened the door.

However, when she saw the man standing outside, her entire body stiffened.

The next second, she immediately locked the door again.

Looking at herself in the mirror with messy hair, Kathy almost screamed.

At this moment, Jaydon was also stunned.

Just now, Kathy ... was too real.

Her hair was messy, her skin was soft and fair, and she even wore a SpongeBob coat. Suddenly, a word popped into his mind, adorable.

He chuckled softly, and his eyes unconsciously filled with love.

Twenty minutes later, Kathy opened the door again. She had changed into neat clothes and combed her hair neatly.

"What are you doing here?" She looked at him angrily.

"Mrs. Booth said you locked yourself in your room for a day and a night."

"I was sleeping." Kathy said in a deep voice.

"Did you have enough sleep now?"

"You woke me up."

"Sorry, I'm just worried about you."

"I'm fine. You didn't think I would commit suicide, did you?" Kathy muttered.

Chapter 623 She's Very Much Like You

"She is beautiful." Kathy nodded.

"Yes, but Doctor Joseph has never been interested in any girl." Jaydon said truthfully, then he looked at Kathy, "But I think ... she's very much like you."

Kathy couldn't help but laugh and said seriously, "How can I compare to her? Even if she doesn't wear makeup, she's still pretty enough. If I don't wear makeup, there will be wrinkles here."

Jaydon leaned over and carefully looked at the corner of her eyes. He shook his head and said, "You're exaggerating. The first time I saw you in the hospital, I thought you are just an intern."

Kathy only smiled and didn't say anything else. She turned around and planned to leave.

Not far away was a mirror. She could not help but focus eyes there. She saw in the mirror that the girl threw herself into Joseph's arms He seemed to ... not push her away.

When she turned her eyes from them, Jaydon's anxious voice suddenly came from behind her. Immediately, she was knocked down by someone. She involuntarily covered her nose. She was so painful that she could not speak for a moment. She felt her nose both sour and swollen. Then, a warm and greasy liquid flowed down her fingertips.

Before, when she had an operation, she had always been unconscious. She had never experienced the fresh blood quickly flowing out of her body so soberly.

She was completely dumbfounded. As long as she raised her head slightly, fresh blood would flow back into her throat. Even her skirt was stained with spots of blood.

The waiter who knocked her down kept apologizing. He poured out all the wine he was carrying and the ground was in a mess.

But Kathy had no time to care about him.

Jaydon rushed forward and handed her a napkin. Kathy couldn't even free her hand to take the napkin. She covered her mouth with hands in vain. She could clearly feel the sticky liquid flowing down her fingers to her elbow.

"Let's go to the hospital--" Before Jaydon could finish his words, there was a loud crash behind him, as if something had been knocked over.

He turned around and found that Joseph poured all the ice in an ice bucket onto a wet towel and then placed it on Kathy's nose. Joseph said in a low voice, "Take it."

Kathy was stimulated by the ice. A shudder passed through her.

Chapter 624 I've Been Waiting for You for a Long Time

It was late at night. Few people came to the hospital at this time.

In the fine rain, Joseph looked down and found that the car seat and carpet were stained with blood.
"Get this car washed tomorrow," Joseph said.

"Yes, Sir," the driver responded and asked, "Mr Joseph, are you going back to your apartment now?"

Recently, Joseph was temporarily staying in Country F, living in a luxurious downtown apartment.

"Let's take a look around first." Joseph thought for a while and replied.

His thumb unconsciously stroked the smooth edge of the phone, flipping the phone open and closed absentmindedly.

The car was running smoothly on a quiet road in Country F. Suddenly, Joseph's phone rang and broke the silence. It was Zofia.

"Joseph, you left me alone at the banquet," Zofia said quietly.

She did not dare to question Joseph. She just felt very aggrieved and upset.

"Sorry." Joseph frowned.

"I'm going back to City N. How long are you going to stay here?"

"I might stay for a while." Joseph did not think about this either.

However, since he had come to Country F, he would not return to City N in a short time.

"You won't stay here forever, will you?" Zofia muttered.

"No," Joseph replied firmly.

"Okay, I get it."

After hanging up the phone, Joseph frowned and suddenly a blurry figure came to mind.

He dialed John's number and said, "Find out the name of the girl who approached me tonight."

John quickly replied, "I'll do it now."

Joseph hung up the phone. In the dark night, he suddenly felt a little annoyed by his impulse just now.

Chapter 625 It Can Only Be You in My Life

Kathy involuntarily turned to look over. It was Jaydon.

The shop was somewhat small. It was hard for the shopkeeper who stood behind the counter to hand the bouquets to Jaydon. So Kathy took the flowers and wanted to help give it to him.

Today, Jaydon was wearing a white shirt. His straightened clothes were a little loose and his chin was faintly green with stubble. He looked tired and had probably worked overtime.

He didn't take it. Instead, he scratched his hair and said awkwardly, "It is for you. Kathy, happy birthday."

Happy birthday?

Kathy was confused for a long time before she remembered that today was her birthday.

This morning, her mother also asked her to return home early to celebrate on WeChat, but she refused because she had to work overtime.

Kathy withdrew her hand and held the bouquet. She heard the shopkeeper's excited voice, "So it's for you!"

To Kathy, his simple sentence seemed to imply something else.

After thanking him, she looked down and quickly walked out of the flower shop. She heard that the rolling door behind her was falling. In an instant, the surroundings became quiet.

Jaydon followed her out without saying anything.

In the hazy night, there were two figures with a bouquet of flowers.

It was a pure feeling, as if they could hear each other's heartbeats.

Kathy stopped and turned around. "Do you work overtime, too?"

"Yes." Jaydon nodded with deep-set eyes in the night.

For a moment, Kathy almost drowned in his eyes.

Even the eyes were so similar.

"Are you hungry?" Kathy blurted out, "Do you want a night feast?"

They were both busy with their work, and they didn't have that much overlapping in their schedules.

Jaydon did not use the most powerful method to influence a person's life, but he often invited Kathy to dinners and movies.

When Kathy received Jaydon's phone call on the weekend, she had just come out of the operating room.

Actually, at this moment, Jaydon was far away on the other side of the earth, and his voice was very leisurely, "Do you work overtime today?"

"Yes," Kathy replied briefly, "and I have to perform another operation later."

As she spoke, she took over the patient information that Vivian passed. It was about a patient that was handed over by another doctor who had left the hospital.

However, the photo on it looks a little familiar to her.

"I have to work. I'll call you back later." Kathy hung up the phone.

After looking at the photo seriously for a while, she finally remembered where she had seen this woman.

It was at the celebration. Jaydon thought this woman looked like me.

"Is she here yet?" Kathy asked.

"She's already in the ward, but ... Doctor Joseph seems to be here as well." Vivian frowned.

"Joseph?" Kathy stopped. Although she wasn't surprised, she still hesitated for a moment.

"Yeah, what's going on with them? Even Doctor Joseph came to be with her. But isn't Doctor Joseph dating Miss Marshall?" Vivian muttered.

Kathy compressed her lips. Even though she didn't say anything, she put on a slightly grave expression.

The woman's name was Annika White. Kathy walked into the ward with hair tied into a ponytail. She wore no makeup and you could even see a cute tiny sunspot on her nose bridge.

"Doctor Kathy, why do I feel like she looks like you," Vivian came in following Kathy and whispered to Kathy, "especially her eyes and lips. If I didn't know you, I would think you two are twins."

Jaydon's merits were listed one by one in Kathy's mind, but she was also very disconsolate.
She once loved someone so much that she knew that to truly love someone was to ingrain him into the bone marrow without any reason.

However, she had been trying so hard only to find that she still could not wholeheartedly like him.

"You're peeking at me." Jaydon suddenly leaned against Kathy's shoulder and said affirmatively. "You find me handsome, don't you?"

"Yes, you're very handsome." Kathy nodded, but her expression was a little awkward. "I can't have dinner with you today. There's a meeting in the hospital tomorrow. I have to prepare for it."

"Do you need my help?" Jaydon smiled considerately.

"No."

He looked at her serene eyebrows and took the initiative to approach her for the first time, kissing the tip of her eyebrow, "Go."

Kathy involuntarily turned her face away and inadvertently avoided his gaze, "What about you?"

"I also need to go back to the hospital." He didn't seem to notice her movements and casually said, "Mr Richard is still waiting for me."

After returning to Boston Hospital, Jaydon dragged his luggage to the 28th floor and threw it in his own consulting room before going to Joseph's office.

Joseph sat on a sofa, chatting on his phone leisurely. With his hand, Joseph motioned Jaydon to wait for a while.

Jaydon plonked himself down on the sofa and looked around idly.

Joseph's phone call was a little long-drawn, or perhaps Jaydon was really tired. When Jaydon woke up from his nap on the sofa, he saw Joseph standing in front of him with a faint sneer.

He involuntarily looked at himself. As expected, he heard that man say, "I didn't realize you have such a quirk."

"What?"

It mentioned that Jennifer used inside information to manipulate the stock market and made illegal loans.

"Will mom go to jail?" Kathy's voice trembled.

"What can we do now?" She sheered away the topic and held out fingers to knead her eyebrows.

"I really underestimated my son because he had such detailed information. His ambition is far more than Bridges Group." Karl said in a serious tone.

"Grandfather has made painstaking efforts on Booth Group. Does Reece really ... do it?" At this moment, Kathy felt cold all over.

How could he do this to his mother...

"There must be room to maneuver, isn't there, Dad?" She looked at Karl expectantly.

However, Karl's face was already filled with despair.

After all, he was old, and he was wrong to think that Reece would always been under his control and that he could even stay in Europe to open up markets.

He didn't expect that Reece had planned it all a year ago.

"In business, there are many things that are not completely black or white... Kathy, don't tell Jennifer this. I'll handle it."

Kathy didn't know what to do now, so she just nodded.

Karl went up to Booth Group to pick up Kathy's mother, while Kathy drove home alone.

After returning to the Bridges House, Kathy lay in her bed, but stayed awake for a long time. She didn't dare to go out either, for fear that she couldn't help crying at the sight of her mother.

All this happened too suddenly, but it was obviously a long-planned conspiracy.

Mother did do something illegal, just looking at the data of Karl's investigation, but it was a trap secretly set by Reece.

How ... how could he be so cruel?

Kathy couldn't sleep at all that night. She hurried to the hospital to work in the morning and came to Booth Group after receiving a notice in the afternoon.

Recently, there had been many rumors that other shareholders were planning to dethrone Jennifer and reconvene the shareholders' meeting to discuss the future of Booth Group.

He rolled down the window with an expression of unprecedented hesitation. He said word by word, "My father has already led his mistress into the family. My mom and I have already broken off with the family."

Kathy looked at the man beside her in surprise.

"Kathy, LA Group is now the main property of the Young family, but it's in the charge of my uncle. You know that, right?" He smiled bitterly. "I also wish I could help you, but I have been away from the family for a long time, and I don't intend to go back."

Kathy looked at the gloomy Jaydon as if he was a stranger.

"When I left, I told them that I didn't need to rely on the Young family to be the person I wanted to be." He smiled, "It was only after graduation that I realized that no hospital was willing to hire me."

"Does the Young family want you to go back?"

"No ... they just want to prove my words wrong."

"It wasn't until a demonstration of my operation at school was released that Joseph found me and get me into Boston Hospital." Jaydon smiled.

Kathy looked at his lonely expression and thought of his usual optimism. It was really hard to imagine combining two aspects of him together.

"Kathy, I'm really sorry. I wish I could help you, but my mother and I have nothing to do with the Young family." He sighed heavily.

Kathy nodded, trying her best to make herself sound more relaxed. "I know. Don't take it too seriously. I'm just asking."

Jaydon looked at Kathy with a deep gaze. After a long while, he nodded.

At this time, a phone call rang. It was a call from the Bridges House.

Kathy picked it up and her expression immediately changed.

"Reece."

"Hmm? You finally called me, don't you?" Reece chuckled.

"Why did you do this?" Kathy asked directly.

"What did I do?" Reece asked innocently.

"Do you know what's going on with the Booth Group? You will ruin it if the Bridges Group pulls their money from the Booth Group under your thumb!" Kathy shouted hysterically.

"Karl forced me to do this. He is just an old man, yet he has not transferred his inheritance rights to me. I can only make some troubles."

Kathy was sad. Indeed, the relationship between Reece and Karl had come to such a sorry state.

"Then why did you set my mother up?"

"Jennifer is the Achilles' heel of your father. What do you say?"

"She's my mother!" Kathy roared.

"Actually, what I asked is very simple: Karl takes a back seat completely and resigns from the chairman position and you marry me."

Kathy remained silent for quite a while.

Even Karl hadn't given up his power yet, Reece had already made his own arrangements and he could take that position easily.

"I won't marry you!" Kathy said again.

Reece was the last man in the world she could ever marry.

"Kathy, please think about your mother and take a second thought of my proposal." After saying that, Reece quickly hung up the phone.

Kathy staggered and her face was extremely pale.

She sat on the sofa. As time passed by, Kathy suddenly realized that her mother would be taken away from her ward. Jennifer was too weak to take any more stimulus.

Suddenly, her mobile rang.

Kathy checked the caller ID. It was the call from Jaydon.
