Chapter 671 She Shouldn't Worry about This

Zofia looked at Joseph whose face was always indifferent, and immediately laughed at herself, "The closer was the wedding, I am getting more and more worried. I am a very selfish woman. I found that not only I want to marry you, but I also hope you can love me, love me like I love you. If you can't do it, I don't want the marriage like this."

"Our wedding will not be cancelled." Joseph said solemnly.

Zofia looked at the man's cold face, pursed her lips and kept silent for a long time.

After so many years, she still couldn't see through this man.

But at this moment, she knew very well that he still loved Kathy.

The next day, in a quiet cafe.

Kathy arrived early. The scenery here was very wonderful. People can overlook most of the city on the thirty-eighth floor, and the view was broad.

Zofia sat down opposite Kathy and ordered a cup of coffee.

Recently, she was in low spirits. She was going to marry Joseph, but at this moment she actually wanted to escape.

She had been spoiled since she was a child, and could get what she wanted, but Joseph was an exception.

"Kathy, I want to know, do you still like Joseph?" Zofia kept looking at Kathy.

For three years, she had hardly changed, but she seemed to have changed a lot.

Her temperament had become colder and the facial features were also very delicate. She exuded charm.

Hearing that, Kathy frowned. She didn't seem to have an answer to this question.

Seeing Kathy keep silent, Zofia thought she had acquiesced.

Three years ago, Ella was critically ill. She framed Kathy that Kathy gave her the wrong medication. At that time, Joseph agreed to marry Ella just only for the evidence in Ella's hand, but finally they did not get marry. Ella fell ill and died.

Previously, when Kathy was taken away by Reece, Veronica had a car accident because she had been following Reece. Joseph was guilty, and Veronica's last wish was that Joseph could marry Zofia, so in the past three years, Zofia could stay by Joseph's side.

Kathy quietly listened to Zofia's words, and her face paled.

"Yes... I received an anonymous email and there are some evidences of Reece's illegal activities in recent years..."

Kathy immediately opened the notebook and asked Alexia to show her the mailbox, but she had never seen it.

"I have asked my dad to check this IP address, and there should be news soon, but how does the emailer know that I am investigating this matter? So strange."

Kathy frowned. Somehow, she suddenly thought of what Zofia had said to her.

Will it be Joseph?

This thought ran through her mind, but Kathy quickly denied it.

He should hate her more than love.

She will never forget the harm he caused to her before. She can't forget and can't let go.

Not long after, Alexia to receive a call from her father. After hanging up, she looked at Kathy.

"What's wrong? Did you find out who it was?"

"It's Joseph Group's overseas address." Alexia said in a deep voice.

Kathy's eyelids twitched involuntarily, and she was stunned.

It was impossible for Quinn to help her, so it can only be Joseph.

She was in a disturbed state of mind in an instant.

"Kathy, when you're in City N, have you met Joseph?" Alexia leaned over and asked.

Kathy came to her senses and shook her head quickly.

"How could he do this... But Joseph Group and Bridges Group were rivals over the years. This seems to make sense, but this evidence was sent to me, so it can only be someone we all know."

When Kathy woke up, it was already dark.

Alexia had returned long ago. Seeing Kathy finally awake, she was relieved.

"Kathy, you really scare me to death!"

Kathy smiled thinly, "I'm fine."

"The doctor said that you have hypoglycemia, and you also didn't eat regularly." Alexia said snappishly.

Kathy pursed her lips and lowered her head in annoyance.

The habit of not eating on time had been gradually developed over the past few years, and it seems that it cannot be changed.

"Hmm." Alexia tapped Kathy's forehead irritably.

"Where is Reece?" Alexia asked suddenly.

She didn't seem to have seen Reece since she came back, and even the attitude of the servant was strange.

"He was taken away by the police."

"So soon? I haven't handed in the evidence yet." Alexia was dumbfounded.

Now even Kathy was surprised, "I thought it was you..."

"I was arranging some information and it wasted some time." Alexia frowned.

"Maybe Reece antagonizes too many people, so those people begin to deal with him." Alexia gloated over his misfortune.

"It's fine if he is arrested, but now he is abroad after all, he still needs to return to our country to accept punishment."

"Well, leave it to me, I'll let you know if there is news. You should take a good rest first, don't worry about it." Alexia said distressedly.

They didn't talk anymore during the meal.

Kathy ate these familiar dishes, but there was nothing but peace in her heart.

She sat on the sofa after finished eating, but couldn't help but occasionally turn her head to look at the man's back.

He was doing the dishes. His back was slender and charming.

As if perceiving Kathy's gaze, he quickly placed the bowl and walked towards her.

Kathy immediately retracted her gaze with some guilty conscience and sat up straight.

Joseph sat down beside her. He didn't do something intimate, but his powerful aura can't be negligible.

"Zofia met me before." Kathy suddenly said, "I know everything about three years ago."

Joseph didn't speak, but his scorching eyes kept looking at Kathy.

"The way you protect me is to marry another woman, Joseph... In fact, have you ever thought I don't want you to do this. "

In the past two days in the police station, apart from being questioned, she always remembered many things when she was alone.

She would rather have an accident on her own, and never want to be separated from Joseph.

How could he do that... He even didn't give her an opportunity to choose.

He was not protecting her, he was just torturing her...

"Kathy, as long as you are safe." Joseph's voice was low and gentle, "As long as you are safe."

He repeated it again and again.

Kathy just sneered and looked down. Somehow, her eyes were wet.

In the darkness, the handsome man looked into her eyes precisely, as if he had made up his mind. He slowly said, "Can't you forget them? That's ok—"

"Kathy, stay by my side. From this moment on, do everything possible to get back from me."

Reece's case was already being interrogated. Kathy didn't know what method Joseph used. She hadn't been in the police station after that day, and can stay in Joseph Bay safely.

She always read a book or watched a movie.

This afternoon, in the early winter, it was cold outside, and only the sun filtered into the house. There was a pale warmth when the sun shone on the skin.

She casually selected a European art film to watch, but its plot progressed very slowly. When Kathy almost fell asleep, she heard the sound of soft footsteps behind her.

She was almost accustomed to Joseph appearing anytime and anywhere, so she was not disturbed in the slightest.

He lifted her upper body and placed it on his legs. His slender fingers inserted into her hair and stroked softly. Then he said thoughtfully, "Kathy, go back with me to Joseph's residence during this time, ok?"

"What?" Kathy just drifted into a light sleep. She suddenly awakened by him and asked in a low voice.

"The theater over there is more spacious and comfortable than here." He was still leaning on the sofa leisurely. His fingertips rubbed her hair softly, she felt a little itchy.

"You have made a decision. Does my opinion matter?" Kathy sneered, turned over and sat up and walked to the bedroom.

After she took a step, Joseph pulled her.

She paused slightly and stood still obediently.

Joseph's voice was a little gloomy, "Did I force you to do things you didn't want to do during this time?"

His voice may be a little unpleasant, but Kathy didn't care. She just smiled thinly, with an ironic look in her eyes, "Yes, you also didn't have done much in the past."

He looked down at her. His eyes were very complicated, but he slowly let go of his hand.

Joseph's breath surrounded her. His hand was gradually going down. Kathy naturally knew what he was going to do and did not resist, but when his body gradually relaxed, she coldly said, "The doctor told me not to have sex during this time."

Perhaps because he had drunk, his eyes were a little blurred, but at this moment he seemed to wake up suddenly, his eyes were clear and alert.

He didn't say a word and still circled her in his arms. His thin lips slowly slid across her face, and finally landed on her eyebrows.

His warm breath blew the hair up and down. Kathy held her breath. Finally, he let her go, got up and went to the bathroom.

She subconsciously stroked every inch of her skin he kissed. Why did she seem to feel that he had a trace of attachment?

The next day, when she woke up, the place next to her was empty. Then Kathy sat up. She was unused to other people's bed, but it seemed that as long as Joseph was by her side, she can sleep well.

After washing herself and going downstairs, the chef had already prepared breakfast. She felt much happier when Joseph was not here.

Suddenly her phone rang, and it was from Jennifer.

Kathy's face gradually paled as she listened to her mother's voice on the phone. After a while, she put down the just-baked sandwich in her hand and immediately took the bag and went out.

Joseph did not restrict her freedom, but when the bodyguard guarding the old house saw Kathy go out, they immediately notified Joseph.

Half an hour later, at the airport, Kathy bought the latest flight to London and could take off in half an hour.

Joseph was in the operating room and knew Kathy left City N three hours after.

The weather was fine in London the next day.

Karl arranged for the driver to pick up Kathy. Her mobile phone was out of charge, and she hadn't slept on the plane. She felt tired, but she still looked out the window.

Kathy didn't move until the car finally drove into a villa area.

When getting out of the car, Kathy was a little nervous. She had not recovered yet.

Jennifer's words lingered over and over again in the ear, "Kathy, there is one thing Mom never told you, you have a brother. do you want to see him now?"

She thought that her family was only Jennifer, but she didn't expect to have another brother, her twin brother.

Looking at the woman in his arms with a complicated expression, Joseph hugged her tightly unconsciously and his eyes darkened, "Have dinner with me first."

Kathy pursed her lips and didn't want to talk to him, but he had agreed to help her find her brother, so she wouldn't pull a long face again.

She just left his arms lazily and bent over to put on her shoes, "Okay."

After a while, she heard Joseph's voice falling in her ears, "We will go back to City N tomorrow, eh?"

Kathy looked down. She didn't want to agree.

But Reece's case will come to trial, and she was going to appear in court as a witness.

So three days later, even if Kathy was unwilling to leave, she only followed Joseph back to City N.

Before leaving, Jennifer came to see her off.

When she saw Joseph, her face was not good, but Joseph greeted her politely.

"Mom, I will keep investigating Marlon's whereabouts, don't worry."

Jennifer sighed and kept holding her daughter's hand.

It was time to board the plane. Joseph walked over and hugged Kathy, "Mrs Booth, I will take care of Kathy."

"Joseph, if you dare to hurt Kathy again, I won't let you go!" Jennifer's tone was cold.

Joseph's face was still gentle, and he smiled faintly, "I will only spoil her."

Hearing that, Kathy frowned, and for a while, she gave a mocking smile.

In the evening, they just returned to the old house of Joseph's family, and the servant had already prepared dinner.

Kathy kept her head down during the meal, even though the dishes on this table were delicious and all she loved.

Joseph sat beside her with one arm around her thin waist. Seeing that she had no appetite, he put down his chopsticks and served her with a bowl of soup.

"Kathy is gone?" Joseph stood up from the chair and his face turned pale, "There are so many people guarding outside. How could she be missing?"

She wouldn't have escaped from the villa by herself. In addition, she didn't get the news about Marlon, so she wouldn't leave.

The butler was a little frightened. He trembled and said, "I just asked the people who were guarding... They said Mr Mathew had been here... Is it because..."

Grandfather?

Joseph's face became gloomy completely immediately. He hung up the phone, and immediately dialed another number. Then he picked up the car key and strode outside, "Grandpa took Kathy away. Send someone to find them."

How did Kathy leave with Mathew? She clearly knew Mathew didn't want to see her.

Moreover, Mathew's means were devious. He knew how to completely ruin a person.

Thinking of this, Joseph couldn't calm down even more.

When the trunk was opened, Kathy knew she had done wrong.

This place was quiet and sparsely populated. It was a good place to kill people and bury their bodies.

In the past, Mathew only let her leave Joseph completely, but now, he wanted her to die. Probably only if she was dead, Joseph will truly give up.

She slowly went out of the car. Looking at the man in black standing in front of her, she still smiled.

She asked in a low voice, "Mr Mathew wanted you to kill me?"

The man remained expressionless, "Mr Mathew asked me to tell you. He believes you will leave, but he doesn't believe that Joseph will let you leave."

As soon as he finished speaking, the black muzzle was already pointing at her eyebrows.

Kathy's eyes were cold. When she was just about to raise her hand to avoid before he shot her, a colder male voice sounded behind her, "Don't waste time. We can consider not letting you die in this place."

The black car was still parked in the wilderness. Joseph suddenly slammed on the brakes, he had keenly smelled the bloody smell spreading in the air.

Lincoln took the lead to get out of the car and ran fast all the way. Looking at the two corpses on the ground, he sighed with relief, "Don't worry, your woman is not here."

Not seeing her corpse was a good thing.

Joseph strode over with a sullen face, squinted his eyes and glanced at the two people on the ground, and said coldly, "It was Silver Wind kill them."

They killed people so efficiently with long-range sniping. Only Silver Wind, the mysterious and low-key organization, can do that.

But even Joseph couldn't find out any information about this organization.

"Silver Wind? It seems to be a military force?" Lincoln squatted down to study the corpse on the ground, "Dude, have you offended someone, so they attacked Kathy?"

Joseph quickly turned around and walked back. His voice very cold and dangerous, "Immediately order your people to block the airport and major traffic routes, and notify the upper level to take precautionary measures."

Lincoln's mouth twitched. This man really was good at using his power.

Kathy was forced to sit in the back seat of the locked car door. Lamborghini was already driving back to the city. She listened to the man named Waldron reporting to the man on the phone.

"You said that Mathew is going to kill Kathy?" Out of anger, the man's voice became cold, "How is she?"

"She is fine and is in the car now. If we hadn't been staring at her, she would have been died in wilderness now."

Waldron said coldly, "That girl is also poor. You still have a chance, come back and show your love! Why you still idle about outside?"

Waldron walked ahead. Kathy could only be forced to follow him, there were two men in black behind her.

"Ms Kathy, you will live here during this period. You can tell me all you need." After entering password, Waldron led her into the house.

It was not a big apartment, but people would feel very comfortable as soon as they walked in. The decoration, color, and furnishings made people feel warm.

"Can I go out? I don't want to stay here all the time." She asked.

Waldron was stunned, and soon smiled, "Of course, if Ms Kathy wants to go out, we will protect you."

Kathy was speechless.

Protect her?... It seemed that they wanted to keep watch on her movements.

She walked to the sofa and took the pillow. She frowned and thought if that boss really liked her?

She looked up at Waldron who was handsome and trying to show her kindness. Her eyebrows twitched involuntarily.

Vivian stayed in a villa on the outskirts of City N after resigning from the hospital.

She tied her long black hair with a hair rope. Her delicate and beautiful face was very clean and white, without putting on makeup.

There was no one in the living room. She gently opened the bedroom door and walked in. She heard the man's low voice coming from the balcony.

He said in a pleasant and a sort of affectionate tone. It was a completely different attitude when he talked to her.

The smile on her face slowly disappeared.

"To find an hourly employee. She likes to eat fried chicken and hot pot..."

"I won't go over for the time being, there are still some things that have not been dealt with. You need to protect her wherever she wants to go..."

Putting down the phone, he turned around and walked towards her with one hand in his trouser pocket, and said lazily, "Ms. Vivian likes eavesdropping on other people's calls?"
