My Sweetheart

Chapter 701 You Vent Your Anger On Me when You are in bad mood

The smile on Maryam's face instantly froze. After a while, she managed to force a smile, "Sister-in-law won't get angry so easily, and... Even if she really gets angry because of this trivial matter, you can't spoil her like this."

Joseph said unhappily, "If Kathy is not happy, she will make me unhappy. I don't spoil her and let her face me with a straight face every day?"

There is a saying, "I treat you well, but I am the one who pleases me in the end."

Maryam's eyes widened and her face was full of disbelief. She couldn't help but muttered, "But during this time she is not good to you at all. She always pulls a long face, and is not close to grandpa at all. And she always threatens to leave you."

Joseph narrowed his eyes. "So what? Your only job in Joseph's residence is to accompany my grandpa and make him happy; otherwise I will leave you with nothing at any time."

Maryam was completely shocked by the look in his eyes, and she lowered her head for a long time without speaking.

"You can't tell Kathy anything since you know it."

Maryam's eyes rolled slightly. Before she answered, the man's figure had disappeared.

He really... he didn't even have the patience to say a word to her.

In his eyes, not to mention that compared with Kathy, who was the apple of his eye, she was just a woman adopted by the Joseph family to accompany Mathew, and maybe was more humble than the servants.

In fact, she didn't want much. Even if she couldn't be Joseph's woman, she felt it was enough to be his sister. She thought that she would not be worse than Veronica who had passed away.

But why this man was reluctant to give her a little chance no matter what.

Chapter 702 He Was not Sincere From the Beginning

Maryam was already scared by Joseph's look. Except in front of Kathy, this man had been getting more and more frightening recently.

She was a little nervous and she said in an aggrieved and innocent voice, "I don't dare to stop her... She is Mrs Joseph, I'm just a fake granddaughter you adopt. Not to mention that you spoil her, her temper is so... I can't stop her."

Kathy's heart was already cold and she felt an unprecedented chill all over. She wanted to retreat, wanted to leave, but found that she couldn't move at all.

Leaning on the wall, she breathed quickly. She told herself over and over again that she must be calm.

She couldn't be found by Joseph...she must leave.

When she took a half step, the servant's voice sounded at the stairway, "Madam, isn't the master in the study? Why don't you go in?"

The panic in Kathy's eyes suddenly spread to the deep, and the fear and hesitation were completely dissipated. There was only one thought left-she must leave here.

At this time, the man in the study was already furious. He stood up, pushed Maryam away and then strode away.

Maryam didn't have any precautions, and was directly pushed against the corner of the desk by him. The severe pain spread from her abdomen, and she almost immediately squatted down and curled up.

"Kathy." The man's voice was getting closer and closer. Kathy only felt terrible, and the speed of her heartbeat almost made her suffocate.

There was the bedroom door in front of her. Her mind was blank. She ran in immediately, and then used all her strength to close the door. She locked herself in the room.

Her slender body leaned against the door panel behind her, and her legs trembled violently.

"Kathy, open the door." The man's low voice outside sounded and his voice was full of anxiety.

Kathy covered her mouth. She didn't want to scream or cry bitterly, but did so subconsciously.

Joseph was knocking on the door, neither light nor heavy, but every time he knocked on the door was like hitting her heart fiercely.

Chapter 703 An Unforeseen Accident

Joseph seemed to be shocked by her words. Did she shed tears because she was worried about Marlon, or because he will deal with Marlon?

"In your heart, am I your husband?" His handsome face was calm and his tone was indifferent. "If you didn't go with Marlon and stay by my side at the beginning, so many things wouldn't happen."

At the beginning...

Kathy's eyes widened suddenly, "Because I want to leave you, so you treat me like this?"

She really thought it was funny, so she really laughed, "Joseph, is this the so-called love in your eyes?"

Her emotions were very depressed and excited. The eyes he looked at her occasionally had a trace of love, but sometimes it seemed to be enveloped in a dense fog and people could not see clearly.

"Kathy, my love is to have it. It's enough that the person I love is by my side."

The man's big palm stroked the girl's delicate skin. He smiled faintly, but the understatement made her hate him so much.

But she had a more absurd illusion. Behind his low smile at this time, it seemed that he had the deeper despair than hers. "Your brother killed my sister. I must convict him. Maybe, this is our destiny."

Kathy was stunned. What did Joseph say?

Veronica died... because her brother hit her?

No... It was impossible.

She grabbed the clothes on his chest and shook her head hurriedly, "No, Veronica was not killed by my brother! Joseph, don't talk nonsense..."

He still smiled faintly, his cold lips pressed against her eyebrows, "Kathy, the perpetrator who was to blame for Veronica's car accident has been running away. Do you know why? Because the murderer Marlon was sentenced for rape after the accident, everyone can't find him."

He paused, and the eyes he looked at her became even more unfathomable, "I found him because he was released early. Kathy, I can't let him go."

"So, even I can't stop you, right?" Kathy's face was pale and bloodless. She bit her lip firmly, and the tears flowed more fiercely.

Chapter 704 I Will Definitely Be Better Than You

Kathy lowered her head and turned her face to look at the dinner plate placed on the bedside. Three dishes and one soup were steaming and appetizing, which were all she liked to eat. But she no longer liked to eat two of these dishes, because she changed her taste after pregnancy.

Subconsciously, Kathy touched her abdomen, but finally held it back.

Should she tell him that she was pregnant?

"Joseph, I beg you..." She raised her small face. Her black and white eyes were stained with tears, and the transparent liquid filled her eyes as if it would fall down at any time.

He calmly picked up the small bowl of rice, then ladled out a spoonful of soup with a spoon, and slowly handed it to her lips, "Be good, open your mouth."

She pursed her lips and looked at him lightly.

Joseph said, "Kathy, be obedient, open your mouth."

She finally compromised, lowered her head and drank it. Even though her heart was already uncomfortable, the panic and anxiety almost made her dare not close her eyes at all.

Even if she didn't want to eat, the baby in her stomach needed to have a meal.

He probably fed her seven or eight spoons of soup before he fed her rice and dishes.

After dinner, he didn't show up again. Kathy lay quietly on the soft big bed and looked at the dark night sky outside the window without a trace of light.

She lay for a long time, but she never felt sleepy.

Someone knocked gently on the door. Kathy closed her eyes, she knew it was not Joseph.

But she didn't care about anyone knocking on the door in this family.

After knocking for a while, the door was pushed open.

Kathy's eyes were full of mockery, "Joseph, it's really hard for a man like you to know that if a woman had a period, this woman must not be pregnant."

Why didn't he know that when a woman is pregnant, she would vomit during pregnancy, change her taste, and be lethargic?

He was still a doctor.

She looked into his eyes and tried hard to see something in his eyes, but she didn't even know what she wanted to see.

"So you admit that you used this excuse to lie to Grandpa, so that he can only go to Marlon?" He looked at her eyes, as if he will pinch her to death in the next second.

Kathy closed her eyes in silence and endured the severe pain from the chin he pinched in his hand, "I told grandpa I'm pregnant. He won't tell you first, and went to look for my brother directly?"

"Grandpa likes children very much, especially after my sister died." The man's voice was somber, "Kathy, grandpa has been trying to please you, you still want to use him, won't you feel guilty?"

Kathy just thought it was funny and she really laughed, "So you think I still care about the thing that Mathew wanted to kill me before? It's impossible to erase the hurt I've suffered, but Joseph, I won't be so stingy."

In Joseph's eyes, she was completely bad now.

He never knew her.

She suddenly felt that Maryam's move was really smart, which could make her disappear and completely ruin the relationship between her and Joseph.

Whether his love to her or her love to him.

She just looked at him without saying a word and her eyes were extremely cold.

Kathy twitched her lips, her voice a little hoarse, "Don't be so angry, you send me to my brother, he won't hurt your grandfather."

At this point, it doesn't matter whether to explain or not.

It didn't take long for Kathy's wrist to be bloody.

Maryam remembered Joseph's orders just now, and couldn't help but worry. She could only come up to stop Kathy, "It's not like that...we just want to help you out. I didn't expect Brother Joseph to treat you like this..."

She looked at Kathy's pale face and messy hair. With the wound on her wrist, Kathy was very embarrassed. Maryam couldn't help but whispered, "Grandpa and I really want to use this way to send you back your brother's side, but maybe Brother Joseph thinks..."

She peeked at Kathy's face, "With you in his hand, Marlon might compromise to surrender."

Kathy's face was getting paler and paler, and in the end it was completely bloodless.

With her in his hand...

It was she who had chosen to stay by his side for three months.

It turned out that all this was just a game he had set for her from the beginning.

"Sister in law..."

"Enough!"

Maryam wanted to say something, but Kathy interrupted her coldly, "Don't think that I will believe what you say, Maryam, I believe you and Mathew once, but it doesn't mean I will believe you countless times."

"You made up a lie about my pregnancy to make mischief between Joseph and me." She looked at her mockingly. "Just now he said that if something happened to me, he would kick you out of Joseph's residence. Believe it or not, as long as I live, you will find how good your life was before."

Maryam looked at her for a long time and then said, "sister-in-law, the best life in my life is not before, but now in Joseph's residence."

Chapter 707 You Can Only Be By My Side This Life

At the seaside.

This was only a place near the sea in City N. The sky was gloomy and it was windy.

Marlon looked at the man a few meters away. Waldron stood behind him and felt inexplicably uneasy.

Joseph brought a lot of bodyguards, but Marlon also had a lot.

Marlon's glamorous eyes squinted lazily. "Joseph, where is my sister?"

Joseph was exuding indifference and killing intent at this moment, "Where is my grandpa?"

"Your grandpa..." His tone was inattentive, and the strong wind blew his hair, "You let Kathy come over, and he will naturally go back."

Joseph smiled coldly, "I have said it many times, she is my woman, my wife, and she can only be by my side in this life."

When Marlon heard the words, he smiled. He had charming eyebrows and eyes, "Joseph, your grandfather hurt Kathy several times. It's easy for me to do something to him. Will you... hurt Kathy?"

He shook his head and smiled faintly, "You have been with her for a long time, but you really don't seem to know that you are losing her..."

He spoke slowly, and the sea breeze blew his coat and it squeaked, "Since she is willing to go back with you, she is actually holding hope...Do you really understand?"

Joseph was a little stunned. He suddenly reminded the look Kathy begged him.

"Mr. Joseph."

When he was lost in thought, a large number of men in green mini suits ran out from all directions, and then the gentle but cold voice sounded.

Joseph narrowed his eyes and looked at indifferently the swarm of special soldiers who suddenly came in.

Chapter 708 Let's leave, OK?

When Kathy came down from the black Bentley, there was no one on the cliff by the sea.

Jaydon got out of the car and walked a few steps to her side to support her. The girl's face was pale as paper, and she seemed to faint at any time.

Kathy pushed him away, "Dr Young, I'm fine."

She escaped from Joseph's residence and looked for them for a long time. She couldn't find her brother, and even his subordinate Waldron. She had no choice but to try to contact Jaydon.

In the car, she finally got through one of her brother's bodyguards, and he told her an address.

Jaydon could only let her go, and didn't dare to continue to approach her. But she looked thin when she walked alone in the sea breeze as if she would be blown away in the next moment.

She walked directly to the edge of the sea cliff. The bright pool of blood stabbed her eyes.

Jaydon had been following her all the time. Especially when her toes were already standing on the edge of the cliff, his hand was carefully supporting her waist. He didn't dare to blink, because he felt that she will fall in the sea full of reefs in the next second.

Kathy stared at the pool of blood blankly, and asked in a daze, "Dr Young."

She even had no strength to speak, "Is that brother?"

Her eyes hurt, but she couldn't cry.

It is said that family can feel each other. So she was so painful that she had to work hard even to breathe.

In this moment, Jaydon's phone rang, and he immediately took it, "Has you found Vivian's whereabouts?"

Kathy only knew that his brother's girlfriend was Vivian a few days ago. In fact, she had been aware of it, but she had never dared to confirm it.

She didn't find her brother's whereabouts, so she wanted to find Vivian. Later, she worried that if her brother has an accident, it might affect Vivian. So Jaydon sent someone to spy on first.

Kathy hear the news, Jaydon turned on the speakerphone, and the voice

Kathy lowered her head and saw that the sleeves were dyed red. It seemed that there was a lot of blood, but she didn't feel any pain at all.

Joseph lowered his head and was shocked. How much effort did she use to get blood stain on her sleeves?

Raising his hand to pick her up immediately, he told Maryam, "Go get the medical kit."

Kathy was held in his arms. There was a cold smile on her pale face. She hurt her hand, not her leg. He didn't have to hold her, she can walk.

What's more, it was just a small wound and she just bled a little, so it was insignificant.

On the sofa in the living room, Mathew watched his grandson walk in stride with a woman in his arms. His handsome face was indifferently taut, and his eyes were shocking and deep.

Seeing the faint smile on the woman's bloodless face, Mathew felt a trace of coolness in his heart.

Maryam could only obediently find the medical kit and put it on the coffee table. She glanced at Grandpa uneasily, but Mathew never spoke.

Neither Joseph nor Kathy said a word to each other, or even made eye contact.

The man rolled up Kathy's sleeves carefully. Her white wrists were already bloody, and could even see the bone on the seriously injured part.

He stared at it for several seconds.

"Kathy." He called her name lowly, "Does it hurt?"

He still remembered that when they were in the orphanage before, she would burst into tears when she suffered a small injury, for fear that he didn't know that she hurt.

Kathy smiled softly, "It hurts."

She said she hurt, but her face didn't show any pain at all. Her dark eyes were silent and there were no any emotions in it.

She stabbed in a certain direction indiscriminately with a gleaming sharp dagger. The light reflected by the blade dazzled his eyes. Joseph was shocked for a second, then he reacted to grab her dagger, but it was too late, the blade had pierced his shoulder.

The blood quickly dyed the clothes red.

Kathy was panting and stepped back subconsciously. Her face was pale and bloodless, and the only action she could do was to dodge so that he wouldn't touch her.

Joseph looked at her face. He knew clearly that she hated him, he knew clearly she was bearing, and he knew better that when she stabbed him just now, she was not even avenging Marlon, she just could not bear his closeness and touch.

He began to understand that when he asked her if it hurt, her answer was only one word— Hurt.

Her pain was not in her wrist, just as now his pain was not because of the injury on his shoulder.

The pain was in their heart. Although it didn't bleed, they all felt gut-wrenching.

He knew, he all knew.

Kathy's hand still held the dagger. There was a flash of panic in Joseph's eyes. He asked in a low voice, "Give me the dagger, or you will hurt yourself."

She was emotionally unstable and she will hurt herself.

The tip of the dagger was still dripping blood. Kathy was backing away and maintained the distance from him. Her hands were tremble. Although it was not obvious, she can't help trembling.

She looked at him alertly and her breathing was very disturbed.

Joseph didn't dare to approach her anymore, so he could only say in a low voice, "Put the dagger down, I won't touch you."

He looked at her pale and frightened face, and said in a hoarse voice again, "Kathy, I promise you, I will not touch you, as long as you put the dagger down."

Kathy only thought it was funny. She took the dagger from Jaydon's car. She just used it for self-defense, but he looked like she would use it to mutilate or commit suicide.

She won't, she certainly won't.
