Chapter 731 When Did She Become a Jealous Woman?

"What he owes me or what your family owes me has been paid off, so I have no right or reason to blame him now."

Emotional matters can never be solved by forgiveness or unforgiveness.

Mathew took a deep breath. "Are you determined to get a divorce?"

"My mind has never changed."

"Okay," he said solemnly, "Since you don't plan to reconcile with Joseph anymore, if Maryam comes back to Joseph's residence, you probably won't disagree, do you?"

Maryam?

Kathy's indifferent expression became gloomy, and she couldn't help but recall the words she said in her ear that day at the stairway. She said coldly, "I don't have the right to control the affairs of your Joseph family, but I can't promise I can live with her in peace when Maryam is back."

It should be said that she couldn't do it at all.

She said that she didn't hate Joseph and the Joseph family because the shot he got, plus the car accident, had already paid off everything.

All the love and hate were completely offset. She only hoped that the two will stop entanglement from now on.

Mathew softened his tone, "Maryam will not embarrass you, as long as you don't say anything in front of Joseph."

Kathy's face became a little cold, and when she heard this name, his brows wrinkled.

Back in the bedroom next to the master bedroom, Kathy closed the door abruptly.

What was going on now? That man remembered nothing but her, so he was even more domineering and unscrupulous?

She can't leave now, and she also didn't know when they will divorce.

What was even more ridiculous now was that she still had to watch Maryam walk around in front of her again and please her husband nominally every day?

Joseph seemed to be hit by a stick, and then he became difficult to breathe. His handsome face was very dark, and he asked angrily, "You had married me, but you still..."

She looked at his angry face innocently, and said unhurriedly, "We are in love with each other sincerely. Is it unexpected to do something between lovers?"

The man really became furious. Just when Kathy thought he would push her away angrily, her chin was suddenly clasped tightly, and her lips were severely blocked.

With the domineering deep kiss as always, Kathy's eyes suddenly widened, and reflexively wanted to push his chest away. Before she stretched out her hand, she remembered that he was hurt. After all, she couldn't be cruel.

Joseph's kiss was fierce and deep. The man who said just now that the wound was too painful to wear clothes was now firmly holding her arm around her, and kissing her like a wolf.

After a kiss was over, Kathy hadn't caught her breath, and the man's cold voice fell in her ear, "Kathy, since I don't remember the past, I won't pursue it anymore, but I'll tell you, if you do something intimate with other men, I will not tolerate!"

"Pop!" She raised her hand and slapped him without even thinking about it. Her chest was constantly rising and falling, and her white and bloodless face was exceptionally angry at this moment.

She didn't know if she was angry that he kissed her, or he threatened her, or... her uncontrollable throb and panic made her just want to run away.

Joseph was stunned. Apparently he didn't expect that she would slap him.

He curled his thin lips mockingly, and said indifferently, "Can a slap exchange a kiss?"

If she agrees, he would be happy.

It was okay to be beaten and scolded by his woman, as long as she was willing to get close to him.

Kathy still wanted to throw tantrums. She knew if a man and a woman usually do that, as long as she was not nauseated, or extremely disgusted, she will easily like it.

Just before the curse was spoken, she saw the white bandage under his half-buttoned pajamas.

Maryam didn't expect that Joseph hated her more than before. He obviously didn't remember anything, but the disgust was undisguised.

She even had a feeling that he hated her, just because Kathy hated her, even if he had no memory of her anymore.

She raised her eyes and whispered, "I..."

The man suddenly glanced over, and she dared not say anything.

Mathew moved his lips, but said nothing in the end.

It finally became quiet at the dinner table. Then Joseph looked down at the bowl of porridge in front of him, his deep eyebrows frowned unhappily, "Why I eat porridge again?"

Maryam just picked up the spoon and whispered, "Bro...what do you want to eat? I will cook for you."

The man ignored her and just looked at Kathy. Such eyes were too hot. She sighed in a low voice, "Your wound has not fully recovered. You can't eat too greasy things. It's best to have porridge in the morning. We all have the same dish with you, what else are you dissatisfied with?"

Joseph was obviously wild with joy when he heard such words, and immediately he bowed his head to drink porridge obediently without a single extra nonsense.

Kathy found out that after he had amnesia, Joseph had a temper, which made him look lively.

Whether it was three years ago or three years later, the Joseph she knew would not have such a side, or maybe this was the real him, but he used to wear a cold and indifferent mask before.

Mathew gave Kathy a complicated look. Before he look away, Joseph's hand had been stretched out again. He handed her the milk in his hand. His delicate brow furrowed, and he said in a low voice. "Your complexion is so bad, you need to be nourished, so drink it obediently."

After her miscarriage, she didn't have a good recuperation. During this time, he was hospitalized and she had been taking care of him. How could she look well?

After Joseph returned to Joseph's residence to recuperate, the servants in Joseph's residence help Kathy to take care of Joseph, so Kathy naturally didn't have to work so hard, and she was free all of a sudden.

Chapter 734 Someone Will Feel Distressed If You are Injured

As soon as Kathy returned to Joseph's residence, she met the man's sullen expression. He sat on the sofa, wearing a black shirt, and he was cold and focused.

She only glanced at him and walked upstairs.

She hated him so much, she didn't even want to look at him.

Joseph stood up with anger and strode towards her, followed by Maryam's screaming voice, "Master, your injury is not healed... Be careful..."

Kathy was shocked when she heard it, and then she stopped. Before turning around, she was taken into his arms by the man. He completely didn't care whether such a big move might affect his wounds.

She subconsciously wanted to push him away, but after all she was worried about his wound, so held it back. She didn't say anything, just let him hold and stand indifferently.

She waited for him to lose his temper.

Joseph was holding the woman in his arms with great strength, but he also was restrained. His face was close to her, the distance between the two was very close, "Where did you go? Huh?"

His voice was muffled.

"Just walk around."

He held her vigorously. His tone was still so domineering, but a little pleading, "Be with me at home tomorrow, don't go out."

He was recuperating recently, and he didn't have any diagnosis or surgery in the hospital.

Kathy closed her eyes and said lightly, "I met a friend today. I want him to teach me how to make coffee."

"Male or female?"

"Man, he is the owner of a coffee shop."

Chapter 735 Their Past

The man's eyes lit up, but his face didn't show it. He sat down on the sofa obediently, and didn't forget to close the door.

She opened the medicine cabinet neatly, her movements were very skilled.

"Kathy." He kept staring at her face until she closed the medicine box, and he said suddenly and lowly, "What don't you like me?"

She paused, and quickly became expressionless, but the speed slowed down.

Joseph continued, "I can change anything you don't like, as long as you say it."

Kathy put things away and walked out quickly, "I don't like our past, can you change it?"

She didn't like that her child was gone, she didn't like that her brother was gone, and she didn't like him to use his body for her forgiveness.

Their past?

Joseph frowned. What past between them?

He thought irritably, and finally came to a conclusion. She still missed the man named Jaydon.

Kathy went downstairs first. Before she reached the downstairs, she saw the woman standing in the living room at a glance.

Wearing in a light-colored coat, she had long hair and looked elegant and beautiful.

Zofia.

The man who followed stood beside Kathy, and naturally saw the woman standing in the living room following her sight. He frowned, his thin lips lightly opened, "Zofia?"

Zofia's eyes widened, apparently surprised, "Joseph?"

She glanced at Kathy, "I heard that you don't remember everyone and everything except Kathy. Do you remember me?"
