Chapter 1151

It was an indisputable fact that whoever had more shares had the upper hand in the company.

Samuel and the rest had accepted their fate.

“You win! You planned all this, didn’t you?”

Samuel clenched the document and looked at Sean as he gritted his teeth.

“Yes.”

“But what can you do?”

Sean glanced at Samuel with a sneer.

Willow then walked into Quinn Corporation with Sean.

Qamar and the rest followed them.

As Willow walked into the office, she felt another wave of emotion.

As a branch manager, she would occasionally come to the headquarters for meetings in the past.

Needless to say, Simon and the rest mocked and shunned her.

Willow was basically pushed aside every time she came over.

Any remark related to her was sarcastic and humiliating, making her feel embarrassed.

Therefore, Willow had always had trauma toward the headquarters.

Willow glanced at Faye and spoke.

"Why?"

"Even if you're the chairman, you can't just do whatever you want!"

Faye froze before getting up and shouting.

"You can't even keep track of the company's accounts.

"You said I used company funds to buy cars and a house for myself some time ago.

"I'm sure you know the truth perfectly well.

"I'd like to ask where the money went?" Willow said, rendering Faye speechless.

"Let me ask you again. How did you spend the company's recent big expense, which was 3.2 million dollars?"

"And how much did the company receive lately?"

Willow asked calmly, looking at Faye.

However, Faye could not even answer a single question.

“I feel like I’m in a dream.”

Willow looked around the office and sighed silently.

This office was the chairman’s office of Quinn Corporation’s headquarters.

Willow came here with Sean after the meeting.

However, Willow still found everything she saw a little surreal.

“Consider it a dream then.

“It’ll still be the same when you wake up anyway.”

Sean smiled and said to Willow.

“Alright...”

Willow sized up the majestic office.

Samuel was such a big spender. The solid wood desk alone had probably cost a lot of money.

The office’s furnishing and expensive ornaments were probably enough for the down payment of a house.

“Samuel knows how to enjoy himself.”

Sean slowly reached over the automatic eco-fish tank and said indifferently.

“Yeah, Uncle Sam and Simon were never careful with Quinn Corporation’s money.

“And Faye was the chief finance director, so they were more unrestrained.”

Willow sighed gently. She wanted Quinn Corporation to do better, but Samuel and the rest did not care if the company lived or died.

Samuel and the rest had already flocked to Old Madam Quinn’s place.

Willow knew what they were doing there but did not stop them.

Quinn Residence.

Old Madam Quinn looked at Old Master Levi Quinn’s photo and walked slowly out the door.

Old Madam Quinn was not in a good mood today.

Getting the cooperation with Reach For Will Group was equivalent to having a powerful backer.

At least Quinn Corporation would not collapse in River City's business circle.

However, Quinn Corporation gave away 80% of its shares for the privilege.

It was equivalent to selling Quinn Corporation!

How could Old Madam Quinn be in a good mood?

She even felt like she had failed Old Master Levi Quinn.

Quinn Corporation was still riding high in River City and had a bright future when Old Master Levi Quinn passed away.

However, the Quinn family owned only 20% of the shares years later.

Old Madam Quinn felt so ashamed!

"It's better to give the company to Willow than an outsider!"

Old Madam Quinn walked into the yard, looked up at the sky, and muttered to herself.

Samuel and the rest kept their heads down, not daring to breathe.

It was true that they made a mistake in this case, and it was useless to explain themselves.

"Grandma, what should we do now that it has happened?"

"Willow has demoted us from all our jobs."

Faye asked, looking at Old Madam Quinn and blushing.

"Do whatever you want."

Old Madam Quinn heaved a deep sigh, suddenly feeling tired and not wanting to do anything.

She eventually lost to Sean. She underestimated the young man.

It was no use regretting things now. Sean did not need the Quinn family anymore.

Instead, the Quinn family could not survive without Sean.

Such achievements and feats impressed Homer. You could only say he had chosen the right side and won the gamble.

Sean had now monopolized River City and had the development permit for the most promising land in River City.

It could be said that Reach For Will Group had a bright future.

Everyone got up and toasted Sean.

Sean accepted their toasts but only took a sip of his wine.

Even so, Jenson and the rest dared not complain.

With Sean's current status, drinking with him was an absolute privilege.

Beggars could not be choosers.

Sean reached out to tap on the table and said what everyone was most concerned about.

"We have to start working on the land downtown in two days.

"We've signed all the necessary contracts. Besides the vacant lands, we'll start demolishing the residential areas."

Sean looked at the crowd and told them why he had gathered them there.

"I can invest more if it's not enough."

Sean added again before Jensen and the rest could say something.

"Mr. Lennon, it's enough. It's enough!"

The crowd waved their hands repeatedly when hearing that.

With five billion dollars as an upfront investment, they could build all sorts of buildings!

They did not even have to pull any strings to get a pre-sale license.

Once the building was built to a certain scale, they could retrieve the money immediately, even if five billion dollars were not enough.

The downtown land's location and future development had great potential.

Therefore, they did not have to worry about the capital chain once they started the pre-sale.

"Good to know that it's enough."

Sean nodded gently, looking unconcerned. It was as if five billion dollars were only five thousand dollars to him.

"Mr. Lennon, how much money do you have..."

Jensen was silent for two seconds before asking.

"More than you can imagine."

Zander took up the conversation and replied indifferently.

"Well..."

Jensen froze. Then he smiled lamely and said no more.

Zander looked Sean in the eye with a hint of amusement.

Homer and the rest could not help thinking...

'If Sean wants to pressure Jason too, what bargaining chip would he use?'

However, they were only curious and dared not ask any more questions.

Homer and the rest soon left.

About 20 minutes later, Jason arrived at the hotel alone to meet Sean.

It was now late at night, and it was dark outside.

It was a good thing. After all, Jason had a sensitive identity. It was best if he could keep a low profile.

"Mr. Lennon."

Jason came in and greeted Sean.

Homer and the rest had no idea how Sean would overpower Jason.

Jason knew Sean's real identity, so he did not have to say much to Jason.

Homer and the rest might not know how terrifying the former nine -star commander was, but Jason did.

Therefore, Jason would never have second thoughts about Sean, even if Sean said nothing.

"What's the situation?"

"Are they going to track me down soon?"

Sean cut to the chase and asked.

"I suppose it won't be long before they find out."

Jason nodded and said with a sigh.

Although Sean was a former nine-star commander, Blaze was now more powerful.

He had already told Old Madam Quinn not to fight Sean.

However, they would not listen!

Even though the truth was right before them, they still refused to believe it or acknowledged Sean's strength.

It was how they got into this mess.

Kent had never picked on Sean nor given the Quinn family any stupid ideas.

Therefore, he had nothing to be guilty of.

However, Old Madam Quinn and Fion had mixed feelings.

The loser they had looked down on had now peaked in River City.

It almost felt like a dream.

Who would have thought that the wheelchair-bound vegetable would one day stand up and overpower everyone?

However, it was the case.

Sean had now reached the point where they could only look up to him.

He even became out of their reach.

Sean now controlled 80% of Quinn Corporation, which had tried to kick him out.

It was no exaggeration to say that Sean could oust Samuel and the rest from

Quinn Corporation with one word.

He had now reversed their positions!

"Sean, I'm sorry for this."

Old Madam Quinn looked at Sean and started by apologizing.

"Old Madam, you don't have to say that.

"Let's just talk business."

Sean raised his hand slowly to stop Old Madam Quinn.

The attitude shocked Old Madam Quinn.

Were they even unqualified to apologize to Sean now?

Old Madam Quinn slowly reached out to take the invitation card.

The red invitation had gold lettering and a nice weight to it.

The text in the invitation card was also concise.

The dates were written clearly.

Reach For Will Group's company stamp was on the lower right.

"Where did you get this?"

Old Madam Quinn took a deep breath and looked up at Sean.

Sean shook his head, smiled, and walked into his room.

He did not have to explain much to Old Madam Quinn.

They would find out the answer when the time came.

Old Madam Quinn and the rest looked at each other.

"Willow, I didn't think you'd join him in taking over the Quinn family's business."

Old Madam Quinn turned to Willow and said through gritted teeth.

“Grandma, Sean didn’t take any advantage of the Quinn family. How could you say that?”

“Or do you not trust me handling the company?” Willow asked in reply, frowning slightly and looking at Old Madam Quinn.
