

Sir, You Don't Know Your Wife Chapter 1061

Everyone recognized the girl at once—she was none other than the third year medical student, Tina Favre.

She had also spread many malicious rumors about Janet when the latter was away.

“Let’s go,” Janet said indifferently after shooting a glance at the people around her.

When she said those words, she ignored Tina completely.

Abby nodded and followed suit. Ignoring Tina, she deliberately said, “Come on.”

With that, Sharon and Summer followed behind Janet.

Meanwhile, Tina did not understand why Janet had gotten everyone’s attention.

Is she that amazing?

She certainly has impressive skills, but not to the point where everyone has to please her!

Outsiders might even think that those three behind her are her lap dogs!

“Tsk! These first year medical students don’t have any respect for others at all!”

“Yeah. They didn’t even greet Tina when they saw her!”

“I know, right? Perhaps one of them proudly thinks that she is good enough to miss the surgery training that she promised to attend.”

“Oh—she has already won the International Medicine Competition for Novice! Such a small surgery is nothing to her.

A few juniors behind Tina started mocking them.

Upon hearing this, a sense of satisfaction flooded through Tina. Curling her lips, she pretended to be understanding as she murmured, “At Woodsbury University, even though we have the custom of greeting seniors, she’s different. She’s the winner of the International Medicine Competition for Novice after all. What are we? We’re nothing! So, it’s normal that she doesn’t greet us at all.”

“That’s right! Luckily Tina doesn’t hold a grudge against her. If I were her, I would definitely teach these people a good lesson so that they learn their manners and respect others.”

“Precisely. Tina has such a good temper!”

Abby could not stand it anymore. She ignored Janet’s attempt to stop her and stepped forward to talk to Tina. Letting out a cold snort, she argued, “You already know that Janet is the winner of the International Medicine Competition, so why are you so rude? Is this how you treat the winner? You’re nothing!”

Abby was no longer the weak girl who needed to be protected from others. At this moment, she was good at retaliating against bullies.

Even Janet did not realize this hidden skill of hers.

Since Janet was unaware of it, it was even more unlikely for the others to know about this as well.

As soon as Abby finished speaking, the other party blanched immediately.

Tina merely gritted her teeth, her eyes wide as anger rose within her.

However, because of her special status, she could not afford to flare up in public so she merely pushed her juniors in front of her.

The girl looked pale but she glared at Abby and gritted her teeth as she said viciously, "You little b*tch! Since when do you speak so sharply? I didn't realize this before."

Abby crossed her arms in front of her chest and snorted coldly. "I merely said the same thing as you, but with a different meaning."

"Abby." Sharon walked forward to tug on Abby's hands as she lowered her head. "Stop quarreling. Let's leave."

Angry and annoyed, Tina clenched her fists tightly. After failing to hold herself back, she shoved Sharon away. "This is none of your business, you useless fellow!"

Upon hearing the word 'useless', Sharon froze immediately.

She's talking about this again.

The fact that Sharon took part in the surgery training for third year students was brought up by Tina again.

Truth was, everyone did not think that Sharon had the right to join the surgery training last round.

Sharon lowered her head and fell to the ground after she lost her footing due to Tina's shove.

It was only until she felt the pain from her wrist that she realized that she was already on the ground.

“Ouch! It hurts!” Sharon exclaimed with a frown.

Janet’s aura turned colder as she immediately crouched down and murmured, “Are you okay, Sharon?”

“I’m fine.” Sharon smiled bitterly.

“I did not even shove you hard. What problem could you have?” Tina laughed sarcastically and cruelly.
“Apart from that, you are not depending on your hands to earn a living. Even if you don’t have any hands, you can still use other opportunities to join our surgery training, can’t you?”
