

Sir, You Don't Know Your Wife Chapter 900

Meanwhile, Sheldon received news that Sweet Tune Guru had agreed to his request.

Hazel was thrilled, as she could finally expose Janet's true colors.

With Sweet Tune's appearance, Emily will finally be the rightful champion!

And Janet would have caused her own destruction!

At this moment, a message was slowly beginning to trend on Twitter.

The piece that Janet played during the preliminary round had attracted everyone's attention.

"D*mn. My last impression of Janet is that she's a top scholar. How did she turn into a pianist all of a sudden?"

"Holy crap. I didn't expect Janet to be able to play such a difficult piece."

"Oh my God. Is it too late to rush to the competition venue now to cheer her on?"

"Does this mean she can be considered the champion already?"

"But, don't you think the tune Janet played resembles a certain master's?"

"You're talking about Sweet Tune Guru, right?"

"Yes, yes!"

“Oh! No wonder I found them so similar!”

“Then, could this song have been plagiarized?”

“Goodness me. Janet has quite the courage, doesn’t she? How dare she plagiarize during a competition? That’s not possible!”

“But, the tone and style of this piece really resemble Sweet Tune’s song. I’m beginning to wonder if Sweet Tune wrote it herself.”

“Could Janet be another one of Sweet Tune’s apprentices?”

“That’s nonsense. Sweet Tune admitted herself that Roxy is her only apprentice!”

“Damn, what’s going on here?”

“We’ll just have to wait and see how the organizer solves this!”

In that instance, another message was posted on Twitter: ‘It is understood that Sweet Tune will appear at the World Piano Competition today, but what she will do remains to be observed.’

As soon as this news came out, Twitter erupted into an uproar.

“D*mn. It’s definitely because Sweet Tune was alarmed by Janet’s plagiarizing.”

“Oh, my God. How cool would it be if they got into a fight on the spot!”

“One writes books, and the other writes songs. It would definitely be interesting to watch them battle it out!”

“This is too exciting! I can’t wait to see what happens next!”

“Yes! We must support Sweet Tune as she fights against that plagiarizing freak!”

At the same time, Janet, Mason, and Henry were rushing to the competition site.

Henry drove while Janet and Mason sat in the back.

“Mrs. Lowry, why did you want to participate in the competition?” Henry asked curiously as he rubbed his nose.

Janet contemplated the situation. She would have to appear at the competition as Sweet Tune, so she might as well let Henry be mentally prepared.

Therefore, she said, “Because I want to get back something that belongs to me. I—”

As soon as she started speaking, a rumbling sound came from behind.

Janet and Mason instinctively turned toward the sound.

All of a sudden, their pupils constricted and they spoke in unison. “Henry, be careful!”

Hearing the noise, Henry glanced in the rearview mirror and saw a black truck speeding along from behind. It was going to crash into them as if the driver had lost control.

Henry reacted swiftly. He swerved and watched as the truck slammed into the object in front of it.

Henry immediately relaxed, and his thin lips twitched. "Young Master Mason, Mrs. Lowry, my driving skills are commendable, right?"

The moment he said that, another rumbling sound rang out from the left side, and the three of them looked over at the same time.

However, because they had just turned a corner, they had no other road to turn into, so they could only watch as the truck on their left side crashed into them.

Mason's pupils constricted once again as he panicked and covered Janet with his body. "Jan, watch out!"