Chapter 171 Bold

Axel cautiously informed Caroline about his actions against Daniella.

Caroline was taken aback and took a while to recover from the surprise. She could accept it that one of her sons was skilled in hacking, but both of them now?

In fact, Axel's skills had surpassed even Tyler's.

"Mommy?" Axel called out anxiously when he received no response.

Caroline regained her composure. 'I'm here, Axel... I'm really glad that both you and Tyler did this. for me. However, I don't want either of you to get involved or hurt because of adult problems My. only wish is for both of you to be happy and safe That's all I want."

Axel nodded I get it. Mommy. There's something else..."

"What is it?" Caroline inquired

Axel hesitated. "Would you want me to prevent Daddy from discovering our relationship?"

Caroline was confused. "Is your father planning something?"

Axel explained, "Daddy is planning to investigate my connection with Daniella."

Caroline was caught off guard

Evan would surely test Axel's identity after finding out about Daniella's betrayal, given his nature.

The test would be between him and Axel rather than Daniella and Axel.

Could it be that Evan had noticed something?

Taking a deep breath, Caroline responded. "Axel, you're my son. You don't need to get involved in this matter. Even if he does find out and suspects something, he can't force me to get a verification with you."

She wasn't worried about that..

On the contrary, if Evan learned about their relationship, Axel might end up spending more time with her.

"Why not do it with pleasure?" she thought.

Caroline embraced Liora. "Good girl."

She then looked at Tyler, who was gracefully sipping from his water bottle. Ty, remember your promise to me."

Tyler almost choked on his water. He glanced at his mother with a helpless expression. "Sure."

As Caroline walked away. Tyler sighed. watching her silhouette Mommy, if I didn't intervene, how would you ever meet Axel again?"

At Villa Rosa.

Evan's face turned fierce when Reuben called to inform him that the DNA test between Daniella.

and Axel showed a 0% match

Besides Caroline and Daniella, there was no other woman he had been with, though he wasn't sure about Daniella.

If Axel wasn't Daniella's child, then whose child was he?

Daniella had played a bold game, it seemed.

In Evan's opinion, showing any leniency in such a situation was unnecessary.

He commanded, "Instruct the major newspapers and online platforms to keep the Daniella incident trending."

"This might harm your image, Mr. Jordan," Reuben cautioned,

"Being cheated on?" Evan scoffed "Do you think the focus will be on Daniella or me?"

Reuben replied, "Understood, Mr. Jordan."

Evan rose and headed to Axel's room after ending the call. He found Axel engrossed in a book on

Axel closed the book and greeted, "Daddy"

you pick Caroline as your mother?"

Chapter 172 I Like Ty's Mommy

Axel asked casually, "What are you trying to say. Daddy?"

Evan found himself at a loss for words. How might Axel react if Evan hastily revealed that he wasn't Daniella's biological child?

Before Evan could respond, Axel added, "Daddy, I don't like Mommy, but I like Ty's Mommy. She's really nice and cares about me a lot. Unlike Mommy, who hits and scolds me all the time. Honestly, I've always wished Daniella wasn't really my mom. I can't feel any motherly love from her."

Evan was taken aback. 'Can a five-year-old actually express that?'

Yet, he realized it made sense. Axel's exceptional hacking skills hinted at maturity in other aspects, too. It was a reassuring thought

Standing up. Evan said, "Axel, you can go to her place to play if you want. I'll pick you up when you're done. Or, you can stay there if you'd like."

Axel remembered, "Didn't you used to say she's not good, Daddy?"

Evan's expression turned serious. "Did I? You shouldn't lie, my child."

Axel fell silent

Evan was about to leave Axel's room when he heard an urgent beeping sound.

Turning back, he saw Axel quickly leaving the bed and sitting in his chair. With a solemn and anxious look, Axel powered up his laptop. His fingers danced over the keys, bringing up code-filled boxes on the screen.

The last box that appeared had "SOS' written in it.

Approaching, Evan asked, "What's happening? Is someone asking for your help?"

Axel's face went pale. Trembling, he told Evan, "Daddy, can you please save Ty?"

"Tyler? What's wrong with him?" Evan inquired, his brow furrowing.

Axel said, "Ty and I put a safety app on our phones. If one of us is in danger, we'll tap the screen with two long and two short taps to send a distress signal. I'm not sure what's up with Ty. Daddy,

This was the first time Evan heard his son talk so much, and he grasped how serious things were.

Tyler was Caroline's son, so Evan couldn't ignore him.

Evan inquired, "Where is he?"

Axel shared the location with Evan's phone using a GPS tracking app.

Evan dialed Reuben immediately. "Get to the location I just sent. Bring more people and secure Caroline's child. Also, dig into the person's details-

"Daddy." It was the first time Axel interrupted Evan. "I'll handle finding out about the person."

Evan smiled at his son's calm demeanor despite the situation. "Alright"

Caroline got a call from her bodyguard on the way to the factory.

"Ms. Shenton! Mr. Tyler and Ms. Liora have been abducted!" the bodyguard urgently said.

Caroline turned pale and hit the brakes. "What did you just say?"

The bodyguard explained, "About 20 minutes after you left, over 30 people appeared! They attacked us and took Mr. Tyler and Ms. Liora forcefully. Ms. Smith got hurt badly and is in the hospital."

"Where are the kids?" Caroline's whole body trembled. "Didn't you follow them?"

"We tried, Ms. Shenton, but they shock us off."

"Call the police, now!" Caroline's voice shook.

"Yes, ma'am"

Thirty minutes later, Caroline and Neil arrived at the hospital.

Chapter 173 Be Prepared for the Worst

Caroline and Neil anxiously waited for three hours in the corridor until Scott emerged from the operation theater. He looked at Caroline, who was visibly frightened and sitting on a bench

Caroline raised her head, a bit dazed, and glanced toward the operation theater before asking, ‘ Where’s Ms. Smith?’

Scott’s gaze dropped. “Ms. Smith was in shock when she arrived at the hospital. The surgery was successful, but she’s still in critical condition Prepare for the worst.”

Caroline’s lips quivered, and she felt a cold shiver. “What do you mean?”

“She might end up in a coma, Scott said hoarsely.

Caroline suddenly felt lightheaded, and she started leaning to the side involuntarily.

Neil caught her. “Carol?”

Carol snapped out of it, tears streaming down her face. Her eyes were full of guilt. “It’s all my

Neil felt a pang in his heart. “It’s not your fault, Carol.”

Carol shook her head, sobbing with her hands covering her face. “I was so focused on revenge that

I didn’t prioritize the children and Ms. Smithr

“Carol, blaming yourself won’t help now. The children haven’t been found yet, so don’t give up.”

Neil said, looking concerned

“It’s been three hours!” Caroline cried, her tears flowing. “The kidnapers haven’t made any demands, and the police have no leads. Ms. Smith is still in danger. What should I do?”

Suddenly, Caroline received a message. She pulled her phone out of her pocket shakily.

Neil seemed weary, admitting. “I feel helpless, Carol.”

He contemplated shifting his assets, influence, and connections but now wasn’t the right moment.

“It’s not your fault. It’s my own limitations.” Caroline wiped her tears, turning away.

Her gaze fell on Scott, his face grave. “Scott, please watch over Ms. Smith. I’m going Scott nodded. “Of course.

Caroline headed for the exit, but Neil stopped her urgently. “Wait, Carol. There might be someone who can assist.”

Pausing, Caroline inquired, “Who?”

“Evan. However, you might need to reveal the children’s identity first.”

“I’m willing.” Caroline affirmed promptly.

Shielding her children was her top priority.

Caroline dialed a number after getting into the car with Neil. She could still remember Evan’s number by heart after five years.

Evan answered, and Caroline’s voice reached him. It’s me. Evan.”

Chapter 174 Give Me a Reason

Evan sat in the apartment, where Tyler and Liora remained bound, their mouths covered with tape.

Evan was surprised to receive a call. He controlled his urge to smile and asked in a deep voice, “What’s the matter?”

Caroline pleaded, “Evan, I need your help to save my kids.”

Curious, Evan asked, “What happened to them?”

Caroline recounted the day's events to Evan "I'll agree to your terms if you bring my children back safely," she implored.

Evan's expression and voice turned serious. "Give me a reason to help them"

Caroline took a deep breath. "Let me tell you what happened when I had the children five years.

ago."

"Are you negotiating with me, Caroline?" Evan's tone grew cold

He knew Tyler resembled him greatly, yet Caroline chose to hide the truth at this point.

Caroline responded. "No, Evan. This isn't the time for that. Please, just consider my plea."

"Call me when you've decided," Evan promptly ended the call.

Setting down the phone, he looked directly at the children who were glaring at him

Evan signaled to Reuben, indicating for him to remove the tape from the children's mouths.

Approaching carefully, Reuben gently removed the tape.

Liora burst into tears as soon as the tape was off her face. "I want Mommy! You're mean! You know we're here, but you won't tell Mommy!"

Liora was furious and aggrieved. She wanted to run over and beat up Evan but was tied up.

Evan furrowed his eyebrow.

Reuben immediately sealed Liora's mouth with tape again after noticing the situation

Liora howled under the tape with her eyes widened.

Evan gazed at Tyler. "If you don't talk properly either, you can stay like this."

He couldn't believe he couldn't manage the two kids. He thought about how Caroline spoiled them until they turned unforgiving. He wanted to help them out of kindness, yet they accused him of being bad.

Not getting a response from Tyler, Evan got a bit annoyed.

"Can't you nod or shake your head?" Evan asked

Reuben seemed frustrated, looking at Evan and his son

Caroline was about to call again, but Neil stopped her. "Carol, think before you call."

"I've thought about it! I'll tell him, but I wasn't composed earlier," Caroline said.

Neil shook his head. "I don't think it matters if you tell him the truth."

Caroline was surprised. "What do you mean?"

Neil smirked and said, "If I were Evan, I'd think Tyler is my son. They look so similar that any excuse you come up with might not sound believable. You said the kidnapper gave you only half an hour. Evan won't have enough time to rescue the children quickly after listening to your Caroline was surprised and frowned, asking. “Are you suggesting Evan might have found out about the children's abduction before I did?”

Neil nodded. “It's likely the case. Would Evan have spent five years searching for you if he didn't have feelings for you? Since he's unable to move on, he won't stay idle now that someone has abducted your children. Do you understand what I'm saying?”

Caroline thought for a moment After composing herself, she picked up her phone and called Axel.

The call was quickly answered, and Axel's voice came through. “Mommy.”

Caroline asked gently, “Axel, I want to know if your father is away.”

Axel replied. “Hasn't Daddy called you?”

Hearing Axel's words, Caroline became sure.

“Axel, do you know something bad happened to Ty and Lia?” Caroline asked.

“Yes. Daddy is out to help them.” Axel honestly responded

Caroline then asked, “How long has he been gone?”

Axel checked the time and stated confidently, “Three hours. Don’t worry, Mommy Daddy went where I told him, with many people. They’ve surely found Ty”

Caroline felt relieved. “Thank you, Axel. I’d be lost without your help”

A warm feeling filled Caroline’s heart. She owed so much to Axel, yet her son’s top priority was his siblings.

“Mommy, Daddy...

*Til call him,” Caroline said

“Okay.”

After ending the call, Caroline looked at Neil. “Evan rescued the kids.”

Neil nodded, advising. “I think you should let the children be with him. Nobody would dare harm

At night, Evan brought the two children back to Villa Rosa after not getting a call from Caroline.

Liora initially began crying for her mother but stopped when she saw Axel.

Tyler remained silent during this time, and Evan didn’t talk to him either.

Once dinner was over, Tyler asked, “When will you take us home?”

Evan grunted. “Why send you home when she isn’t looking for you urgently?”

He could feel Caroline's anxiety but was confused as to why she had vanished without calling afterward.

Did she not care about her kids? If so, did she deserve to keep their identity hidden?

The more Evan thought, the more serious his expression became.

Liora panicked upon hearing her father speak badly of her mother.

"That's not how Mommy is!" Liora snapped. 'You're the one who wouldn't tell her. I know Mommy is searching for Tyler and me on her own!"

Upon seeing the girl looking exactly like a furious Caroline, Evan's expression turned cold.

"This is the truth," he said coldly.

Liora pursed her lips, tears filling her eyes. She burst into loud sobs, "I want Mommy! I want Mommy..."

Evan felt troubled by her crying and wondered who she had taken after. In contrast, Axel and Tyler remained composed, much like him.

Tyler glanced at Axel, who led Liora upstairs.

With the dining room quiet, Tyler looked at Evan. "Are you waiting for Mommy to come to see you?"

Chapter 176

Chapter 176 What's Going On With Bad Daddy?

"What are you trying to say?" Evan asked in a deep voice.

Tyler took a bite of an apple leisurely and said, I can get Mommy to come Evan smirked “You’re her son. She will come if you say the word.”

“I’m not referring to her coming to get me. I’m talking about you.” Tyler questioned his father’s intelligence level

“I don’t require your help to make her visit me. Sooner or later, she’ll come to see you.”

With those words, Evan went upstairs, leaving Tyler bewildered by his failed plan. He had aimed to assist his mother in resolving the situation, but his attempt had been futile.

Neil had just returned to Xander Residence when he heard Grayson’s furious voice. “A group of useless individuals who can’t even watch over two kids!”

Trying to provide comfort, Daniella said, “Please, Grandpa, try to stay calm. It’s not good for your health to get so upset. I’ll be okay.”

Neil’s expression grew cold. He entered the living room and found his grandfather struggling to catch his breath.

“Why the anger today, Grandpa?” he inquired.

Grayson glanced at him. “So, you still remember where your home is? Are you planning to be as uninvolved in this critical situation as you were live years ago?”

Neil smirked. “Have you bestowed upon me the authority to take action, Grandpa? I’m just a mere CEO. How can I possibly make decisions about important matters?”

Grayson was seething. “Are you trying to provoke me just like your mother did?”

Neil’s demeanor turned serious. “Grandpa, didn’t your dislike for my father lead you to threaten my mother, causing her death?”

He then fixed a cold gaze on Daniella. "If my mother were alive, she wouldn't accept a woman so unlike her into the family.

"That's absurd! Ensure our family isn't in the headlines tomorrow!" Grayson growled.

"And what if I don't?" Neil retorted.

"Then you won't be welcome near the Xander Group!"

"Alright. I hope this is a decision you won't regret, Neil calmly agreed.

With that, he turned and left Xander Residence immediately.

Caroline shook her head. "Scott, when will Ms. Smith be out of danger?"

Scott took a seat beside Caroline on the sofa. "Based on her current condition, it might take Caroline looked visibly tired. "What's the chance of her ending up in a coma? Can anything be

Evan walked over to the dining table, possibly due to the father son bond. He stood in front of

Tyler gazed at him. "I don't feel like telling you right now."

"Aren't you eager to go home? Aren't you concerned about your sister crying?" Evan questioned.

Tyler grumbled internally. 'So you know about my sister crying, huh? Why didn't you send us

Tyler turned his attention to Liora. "Do you miss Mommy, Lia?"

Liora thought for a moment and replied, "Mommy is busy. I don't want to bother her!"

Tyler smirked and glanced at Evan challengingly. "See? We're not in a hurry."

Evan's lips twitched, and he wondered where the children got their attitude. Do I need to show them a paternity test so they can learn to respect their father?

Evan furrowed his brow. "Aren't you concerned about your mother bring worried?"

"How do you know if Mommy is worried? Maybe it's you who's worried. Tyler retorted.

Evan was at a loss for words.

Noticing Evan's silence, Tyler asked, "Mister, why do you want my mother to come to you?"

Evan's expression turned serious "Don't involve yourself in grown-up matters!"

He put on his coat and left the house shortly after.

Tyler couldn't help but grumble to himself, Scumbag Daddy! Since you don't want to acknowledge Lia and me as your kids, I won't acknowledge you as my father either!

Caroline's sleep in the hospital was interrupted by her ringing phone. She answered, and Kenny's voice came through. "G, we have a meeting today. Why aren't you here yet?"

Caroline snapped to attention. She had almost forgotten that today was when they were deciding on the first clothing design.

She checked the time and hurriedly sat up, realizing it was already 8:30 am. She swiftly kicked off her blanket and slipped on her shoes. "I'm on my way, sorry!"

Kenny continued. "I understand you're in a tough spot, but you can't neglect the company. The first garment we produce is crucial!"

After a short exchange, Caroline ended the call.

Caroline sighed as she looked at Lily, whose head was heavily bandaged and who had an oxygen mask on. She tucked in Lily's blanket and said, "Lily, I need to go to work. I'll be back to check on you later."

As Caroline prepared to leave, Scott entered the room, appearing tired. Seeing Caroline dressed neatly, he asked softly, "Off to work?"

Caroline nodded. "I have some company matters to handle. Lily.

Scott smiled reassuringly. "I'll take care of things here. You go ahead."

Caroline felt a hint of guilt for all that Scott had done for her. She took a deep breath and uttered, Scott, when Lily's safe, let's talk."

She couldn't watch Scott spending his youth on unreciprocated love. She knew he had waited all

Liora's string of insecure questions reached Caroline's ears, and she replied, "Why would I ever last night "

Liora's voice was tinged with anxiety. "What happened to Ms. Smith?"

Caroline held back her tears, explaining, “Lily isn’t feeling well, so she needs to stay in the hospital for a while. Be good, Lia. I’ll come to get you and Ty once I finish. Oh, and is Ty with you?”

The call’s background was filled with noise, and Tyler’s voice soon followed

A smile broke through Caroline’s worry “Ty, take care of your sister. I’ll be there as soon as work

“No need to hurry, Mommy. Liora and I understand you’re busy. Axel’s house is pretty comfortable

His words were sincere. He genuinely found Evan’s house comfortable—the only missing piece was his mother.

Feeling reassured, Caroline said, “Alright, I’m glad you’re comfortable. Remember to eat...”

After conversing with her children, Caroline ended the call and resumed her focus on work.

In the building across, Alex sat in Evan’s office, sipping coffee, and observed Evan with a smile.

“Hey, how did you end up getting cheated on?” Alex inquired, his tone teasing.

Alex almost choked on his coffee, coughing as he explained, “Just kidding. By the way, what’s your plan with Caroline? You’re not going to do anything after finding out that Axel is her son?”

“I’m waiting for her to tell me face-to-face.”

Alex was surprised. “You’re relying on a woman who hid from you for five years to tell you the truth?”

“What’s the problem with that?” Evan asked.

Alex said, “Shouldn’t you take the first step? You’re the one who should be seeking her forgiveness.”

Alex made a good point,

Evan had spent the past five years contemplating how to make things right with her. Yet, he was angry to discover she was alive and avoiding him now,

He had saved her three times. Wasn’t that enough to make amends for his mistakes?

The thought of Caroline’s cold expression caused Evan to furrow his brow.

However, he couldn’t resist asking. “Is my approach wrong?”

“Yes! Women need to be coaxed Aren’t you worried she might turn to Kenny or Scott if you keep this up?” Alex advised

Evan’s face turned serious upon thinking about his children calling someone else ‘Daddy’.

“What should I do then?” Evan inquired, puzzled.

Alex grinned. “You have to chase a woman without shame. Let me teach you some tricks, come on!

Caroline stepped out of the car, her brows furrowing as she approached the roses. Evan's

Was he trying to win her back after Daniella's betrayal? Or did he see her as a mere replacement?

With a scoff, Caroline retrieved her phone and dialed Evan's number.

Evan answered, his voice surprisingly pleasant. "Speak."

Caroline's displeasure grew. "Mr. Jordan, are you so rich that you've run out of places to spend your money?"

The faint smile on Evan's face vanished. "What are you implying?"

Caroline's tone turned icy. It takes quite a childish mind to send flowers as if you're trying to win

Evan's expression turned serious at her words.

Alex had advised him that no woman would dislike receiving fresh flowers. But instead of being appreciative, Caroline had responded rudely.

He had never done this for any other woman, yet she found fault with it.

Evan retorted stubbornly. “Do you really think I have nothing better to do than send you flowers?”

Caroline was momentarily stunned “If they aren’t yours, I’ll have someone sell them.”

She ended the call abruptly.

Evan’s lips twitched. ‘What did she say again? Did she claim that she is going to sell the roses?’

Growing increasingly angry, he tossed his phone onto the table, stood up, and walked somberly to the children’s room.

The children were engrossed in their play on the rug. They turned their attention to him as he

Upon entering the room, Caroline spotted Scott resting on the caregiver's bed. Despite her entrance, he remained undisturbed.
