Caroline held a meeting with the production team in the afternoon. They estimated they could finish the first batch of clothes after ten days.

This duration had exceeded Caroline's expectations

She reminded the head of the production team, "The production speed is important, but there aren't many workers in the factory now. Please, don't make them work overtime."

She would not blindly pursue speed. She wanted nothing but the quality of the clothes and her employees' physical and mental health,

The head of the production team replied, "Understood, Ms. Shenton. I'll obey your rule and let them get off work on time. The factory won't operate at night."

Caroline nodded. She then said to Naomi Lynch, the recently promoted secretary, "Naomi, order the security department to keep an eye on the factory. Ask them to be on guard "

Naomi was a woman in her early 30s. Her short hair made her look very capable.

Caroline had chosen her because her serious facial features made Caroline recall her past self.

When Naomi received Caroline's order, she nodded seriously. "Okay, Ms. Shenton"

It was time to get off work after the meeting ended.

Caroline was unsure if Evan would come to pick up his children, so she wanted to get to the kindergarten first.

When she stepped out of the company, a black elongated Maybach suddenly stopped before her.

Reuben got out of the driver's seat and went to Caroline to open the door for her. "Ms. Shenton, Mr.

Jordan would like to invite you to go to a place with him."

Caroline looked at the handsome but aloof man in the back seat before she refused.

"No, the kids will be out of the kindergarten soon. I need to pick them up."

Evan looked up. "I asked someone else to do that. Just get into the car and go with me."

Caroline frowned and asked, "Where are you taking me to?"

"I'm taking you to see Lily," Evan answered directly.

Caroline laughed. "Lily's in Angelbay Hospital. I can see her anytime I want. I don't have to go with you.

Evan said, "Go on if you think you can still see Lily at Angelbay Hospital."

Caroline's smile stiffened. "What do you mean?"

Evan replied slowly, "Just the literal meaning. Of course, you can turn me down."

"Did you transfer her to another hospital without my permission? Caroline hurriedly asked.

"Lily isn't out of danger for such a long time. Why did you do that? If anything happens to Lily.

you bear the consequences?"

Evan's face sank. Did she see him and Daniella as villains?

He felt a pang, so his voice turned colder. "I did this because I could guarantee her safety. It's up to you whether you want to go or not!"

Caroline clenched her fists tightly. Given his character, he would never tell her where Lily was if she refused to go today.

Thus, she suppressed her anger and got into the car for Lily's sake. novelbin

Twenty minutes later, the car stopped at Grand East Hospital's entrance.

Caroline stepped out of the car and observed the vast hospital building. She couldn't remember seeing a hospital like this in Angelbay.

Turning her attention to Evan, she asked with concern, "When was this hospital constructed? Can you tell me about the doctors working here?"

Evan gave her a quick glance but didn't explain. He simply headed toward the hospital entrance.

Reuben offered an explanation, "Ms. Shenton, Mr. Jordan established this hospital, but he didn't make it public.

"He carefully selected all the doctors, recruiting the best ones from around the world. You can trust their medical expertise."

Caroline was taken aback. “He wasn’t involved in this industry before, right?”

Reuben replied gloomily, “After hearing about your passing, he decided to build a hospital because he felt that all doctors in Angelbay City were useless.”

Caroline was left without words

Regrettably, his belated care was worthless.

Chapter 192

Chapter 192 Are the Children Missing?

Caroline and Evan entered the hospital, both feeling calmer. They rode the elevator to the top floor.

As the elevator doors opened, Caroline’s surprise grew. It was like a spacious apartment up there, divided into five rooms by transparent glass. Sunlight streamed in, illuminating the space filled with flowers and trees. It felt cozy, more like a vacation spot than a hospital.

However, it was nothing like a typical hospital scene. It felt more like a holiday retreat.

Caroline’s attention shifted to the doctors, her gaze fixed on them as she observed the rooms. Her eyes landed on Lily, lying in a bed with a respirator.

Filled with relief upon hearing the steady sounds of the medical equipment, Caroline found some comfort.

The doctor, who had been noting down information about Lily, turned to face Evan. With respect, he bowed and began explaining the situation to Evan in fluent Spanish.

Meanwhile, the doctor's expression displayed a mix of confusion and dissatisfaction.

Caroline observed their conversation, her concern deepening. "What did he say?"

Evan turned his intense gaze toward her. "He said Lily is no longer in danger."

"Just that?" Caroline felt puzzled, as she had heard the doctor speak quite a bit just moments ago.

Evan pressed his lips together, his response somewhat vague.

The doctor from Aglait clarified that Lily was supposed to have awakened after her previous brain surgery. The fact that she remained in a coma was perplexing.

However, the doctor currently couldn't pinpoint the exact reason, so he asked Evan if they should consider another brain surgery for Lily.

Caroline wasn't pleased about Lily being moved to this hospital. Plus, the idea of another surgery brought about concerns of its own, considering the risks involved.

Evan needed time to think it over before explaining it to Caroline.

Caroline did not understand Spanish, so she let it go. Even if she was curious, Evan would not tell her more if he was reluctant.

Caroline sat beside the bed and gently held Lily's hand.

After a while, she whispered. "Thank you."

Evan's gaze turned gentler upon hearing that. She finally spoke nicely to him

“You don’t have to thank me,” Evan replied. “She was my employee, too.”

Caroline then fell silent.

In less than half an hour, Evan’s phone suddenly rang.

After picking it up and listening briefly, his face turned icy. “Ask all bodyguards to search around!”

Caroline subconsciously looked at Evan, thinking. What happened? Why does he look so bad? He even asked all the bodyguards to search for a person?

Caroline suddenly thought of her children. Her face soon turned pale, so she hurriedly asked, “Are the children missing?”

Evan stood up aloofly. “No! I need to go now. You can go home on your own later.”

He then strode out of the room.

Caroline felt uneasy, so she decided to call Axel. 1

Axel answered the call quickly, his young voice brimming with joy. “Mommy!”

Upon hearing his voice, Caroline felt a wave of relief.

She wondered, ‘What could have been the reason for Evan’s behavior earlier? Since the kids are fine, is there someone else influencing him so strongly?’

However, Caroline swiftly set those thoughts aside. She realized she didn’t need to concern herself with Evan’s matters as they didn’t affect her directly. novelbin

Caroline refocused and spoke on the phone. “Axel, have you and your siblings had your meals?”

“Yes, Mommy. How about you?” Axel asked.

Caroline smiled as she replied, “I’ll eat something once we’re done talking. Remember, you all should sleep early, even if your father isn’t home, alright?”

“Sure thing,” Axel replied. “Mommy, do you want to talk to Ty and Lia?”

Chapter 193

Chapter 193 I Seem to Have a Son

“Sure,” Caroline agreed with a happy smile.

After chatting with the three children, Caroline stood up and left the hospital.

Someone suddenly collided with her as she approached the exit and was about to hail a cab.

This unexpected impact caused her to stagger a few steps before regaining her balance. However, the person who bumped into her fell to the ground heavily.

Turning around, Caroline saw a woman wearing a long sleeping robe who appeared to be in a sorry state.

Caroline could still make out the woman’s delicate facial features despite her messy hair. The.

woman’s eyes, though, were filled with fear and panic.

“I... I’m so sorry...” Jamie Weiss’ voice trembled, and her eyes turned red.

Caroline shook her head reassuringly. “I’m fine. Are you okay?”

As she spoke, she extended her hand toward Jamie. “The ground is cold. Let me help you up.”

Unexpectedly, Jamie shuddered vigorously at Caroline's offer, leaving her a bit puzzled

"Do you need assistance?" Caroline inquired once more.

Realizing that Caroline meant no harm, Jamie got back on her feet with some difficulty and created a bit of distance between them. "I was being chased, and that's why I accidentally bumped into you," she explained fearfully.

She then glanced around nervously.

Noticing Jamie's bare, dirty, and bleeding legs, Caroline furrowed her brows.

Before she could ask, Jamie's stomach audibly growled.

Flustered, Jamie quickly covered her belly and blushed. "I'm sorry. I haven't eaten yet, so.....

Caroline chuckled warmly. "If you're comfortable with it, you can come home with me. We need to tend to your leg injuries to prevent infection."

Jamie was stunned before she nodded repeatedly. "Okay, take me with you. Let's go!"

Caroline nodded and brought Jamie home to Bayview.

Kenny wore an apron and cooked in the kitchen. He was going to call Caroline to ask if she would be home for dinner when he heard the door open

Kenny walked out of the kitchen and saw Caroline. "G, you're home. I just finished cooking—Eh?

Who's this?"

Caroline looked at Kenny. "Get me the medical kit from the cabinet."

"Oh, okay."

Kenny acted fast and returned to the living room with the medical kit. Caroline had led the strange woman over and let her sit on the sofa.

Kenny then placed the medical kit on the tea table before he glanced at Jamie's injured and novelbin

curled legs

After that, he drew in a cold breath.

His action scared Jamie until she trembled and nervously grabbed Caroline's arm.

Caroline glared at Kenny. "Don't be flustered. You scared her."

Kenny immediately nodded. "But who is she?"

"I bumped into her on the street," Caroline answered while opening the medical kit.

Kenny widened his eyes. "I didn't know you like picking people up by the road. And it's a woman!"

"Cut the crap! Go and cook!" Caroline became impatient because of Kenny.

Caroline helped tend to Jamie's wound. "Where is your home? Do you need me to give you a ride.

home later?"

"Home" Jamie appeared to be in a daze. "I seem to have one."

"How about your family? Do you know their contacts?" Caroline added.

Jamie kept her head hung as if pondering over it.

Caroline carefully cleaned the wound and applied medicine, all while waiting for Jamie's

Yet, she was a bit surprised. The medicine could cause discomfort, but Jamie didn't appear to be in any pain.

Couldn't she feel pain?

"Oh, it came to me," Jamie answered. "I seem to have a son, but I forgot his name."

Caroline was at a loss for words.

Jamie knew neither the location of her house nor her family's contact number.

Caroline wondered how she could give Jamie a ride home.

After thinking about it for a moment, she remembered Axel and Tyler were skilled at hacking

She wondered whether they could discover any hints about Jamie's family.

After Caroline tended to Jamie's wound, she brought a set of clean clothes for the latter.

When Kenny led Jamie to eat, Caroline called Axel

"Mommy!" It was Liora who picked up the call. "Mommy, do you miss my brothers and me again?" novelbin

Caroline smiled. "Yeah, but there's something else. Lia, can you let Ty talk on the phone?"

Liora shouted, "Tyler, Mommy's calling you!"

Soon, Tyler was on the phone. Mommy, what can I help you with?"

Caroline glanced at Jamic, who was eating in the dining room. Ty, can you help me look into a person's profile?"

Tyler agreed to it immediately. "Sure. Who is it?"

"I don't know who that is," Caroline explained. "I'll send you her photo later. Take a look and see.

when you can get her information."

"Don't worry. But Mommy, the commission isn't cheap. Tyler chuckled naughtily.

Helplessness engulfed her. "Well, you're getting naughtier now, aren't you?"

Tyler begged for mercy. "Mommy, I'm just kidding. Don't take it seriously "

If others asked him to do that, he could earn a lot of money. Unfortunately, it was his mother, so he had to do it for free.

After chatting a bit, Caroline hung up and sent Jamie's photo to Axel

As such, Tyler started searching for her when he got the photo.

Based on his past speed, he would be able to find one's information in a few minutes as long as there was a photo.

However, he gained nothing after spending half an hour this time around.

Jamie's information seemed to be deleted purposely.

For the first time, Tyler felt defeated. He kept typing on the keyboard as if he was venting his.

frustration.

Axel reminded him at the side, "Ty, just stop."

Tyler frowned and stopped. "Don't you find it strange?"

"Yes, it is" Axel stared at the computer. "But it's useless no matter how hard you try since the data is deleted."

It reminded Tyler of one thing. "By the way, you can restore data, right?"

Axel sighed. "I need to have the basic information about her to restore the data."

Tyler hunched forward as he said dejectedly. "It's the first time Mommy asked for my help, but it turns out like this."

Liora suddenly put something near his lips.

Tyler was stunned. He then looked down and found that it was a piece of chocolate.

Liora smoothed his frown. "You're very ugly like this! Mommy once said no one is perfect. It's normal to fail at things, and stubborn people are idiots!"

Tyler's face turned gloomy as he bit the chocolate indignantly. "Don't criticize me if you want to comfort me."

Liora chuckled as she fed Axel a piece of chocolate.

"Axel is better. He's a quiet eater." Liora grinned at him, her mouth practically watering.

Axel patted her head and smiled warmly.

This house used to be empty and cold. But with Tyler and Liora here, he realized how much happiness he could experience. Having a brother and a sister made him truly content.

At 10:00 p.m., Caroline received an apologetic text from Tyler, leaving her with a bitter feeling. Tyler was always driven to succeed, so he must be feeling quite upset right now.

Caroline texted him back to comfort him.

[It's fine. We can't always make things work.]

[Don't give up. You and Axel are only five years old. And you have what other kids don't have. I'm already quite proud because of this.]

Tyler's eyes turned red as he read Caroline's reply.

Caroline had no choice but to allow Jamie to stay at her house because she had no information about Jamie's background

Tomorrow, she intended to contact the police department to inquire about Jamie's situation

She had initially planned to assign a room to Jamie, but Jamie appeared fearful of sleeping alone. Thus, Jamie strongly preferred to sleep alongside Caroline.

Respecting Jamie's wishes, Caroline agreed. Before going to bed, she let Jamie take a bath and then settle down beside her.

As Caroline climbed into bed, Jamie asked, "What's your name?"

Caroline assisted in making Jamie comfortable under the covers and replied, "I'm Caroline

Shenton

Jamie murmured, "Caroline Shenton..."

Caroline smiled faintly and asked, "What about you? Do you still remember your name?"

"Jamie Weiss." Jamie's eyes turned dull. "I only remember this."

Caroline comforted her, "Well, I'll call you Juliet then. It's fine if you can't recall things. They'll slowly come to you. Don't worry. You can stay here."

Jamie's eyes lit up. "Really?"

Caroline nodded "Of course."

She believed asking about other matters wouldn't provide any hints. Jamie might have.

unpleasant memories. If Caroline pushed too much, Jamie could become overwhelmed.

Thus, Caroline opted not to bring up Jamie's resentment,

The following day was Saturday.

Evan's call awakened Caroline.

She checked on Jamie, who was still asleep, and answered discreetly, "What's wrong?"

'Til have Julian bring the kids to you. I'm swamped and can't look after them for a few days." Evan's voice sounded tired and raspy.

Caroline answered, "Hmm, got it."

After that, Evan hung up.

When Caroline put the phone down, she found that Jamie was awake and looking at her.

Caroline asked quizzically, "Did I wake you up?"

Jamie nodded. She found the voice on the phone very familiar but did not dwell on it for long. "I'm hungry."

Caroline got up from bed. "Alright, I'll make food for you."

After freshening up, she descended the stairs.

Soon, the three children arrived.

Tyler and Liora rushed into Caroline's embrace as soon as they spotted her. However, Axel held back, keeping a distance.

Caroline felt a pang of sympathy for Axel's loneliness. 1

Although he did not find her unfamiliar, his upbringing had been marked by a severe lack of maternal care and mistreatment from Daniella. This made him always appear reserved, even in his mother's presence. 1

Caroline didn't immediately hug Tyler and Liora but gestured to Axel. "Axel, come here and give me a hug."

With the bodyguards still present, Axel hesitated. He cast a timid yet eager glance at Caroline.

When the sound of the departing bodyguards' vehicle reached his ears, Axel mustered the courage to step closer. He extended his arms, embraced Caroline, and whispered, "Mommy."

Tyler and Liora followed Axel's lead, showing their affection once they saw him hug Caroline

In unity, the three children held onto her tightly. novelbin

Caroline felt a pang of sadness in her heart. She cherished them deeply. Although they had been apart for only a day, she missed them dearly.

Life would be simpler and more pleasant if there weren't so many things to worry about.

Caroline released her hold on them and asked, "Have you guys eaten?"

The trio nodded simultaneously. "Yes!"

"Would you like to eat some more? I made some hard-boiled eggs."

"Definitely!" Liora was quick to respond.

"Of course, I'm up for whatever you cook, Mommy!" Tyler chimed in right after

Caroline glanced at Axel, who nodded in agreement and mumbled bashfully, "Sure"

With that settled, she led the triplets into the house.

Jamie had just come downstairs. When her gaze met the children's eyes, she was taken aback

Jamie was about to dwell on it carefully when Liora interrupted her thoughts.

"Madam, what a beautiful lady you are!"

Chapter 196

Chapter 196 Looking for a Needle in a Haystack

Jamie looked to be in her 40s, and Liora was uncertain of her age. Thus, it seemed right to address

Jamie as Madam

Jamie was stunned. She then pointed at herself and asked, "Were you talking to me?"

Liora tilted her head. "You're alone here with Mommy. Of course, I won't call Mommy a madam."

Jamie's thinking was slow. After she regained her wits, she smiled. "Well, you did well. I like it."

After that, she squatted before the three children and said energetically, "Call me that again. I would like to hear it."

Liora said sweetly, "Madam."

Jamie nodded excitedly. "Hmm."

Tyler also followed suit. "Madam, hello"

Jamie nodded again. "Hmm!"

Axel was shy. As such, he stood at the side and did not dare to speak up Caroline did not force him, either. After all, there was something amiss with his mentality now. She could not force things.

She then returned to the kitchen to cook while the children led Jamie to play with toys with them.

Evan sat on a sofa in a suburban villa, his eyes scarlet. He glared fiercely at the line of bodyguards before him. The floor was littered with the shattered remains of things he had broken.

The bodyguards held their breath and lowered their heads, awaiting his reprimand.

"She was only gone for 15 minutes, yet you still can't locate her. Am I paying you for nothing?" Evan's tone was icy as he questioned them.

The bodyguards remained silent, their heads bowed even lower. They were as bewildered as he was. They couldn't understand how she could vanish in such a brief span.

Initially, they could trace her through the surveillance footage. But after she left, she seemed to disappear into thin air.

Angelbay was so large. It would be looking for a needle in a haystack now.

“I’ll give you another 24 hours. Get lost if you still can’t find her!” With that order, all the bodyguards turned and rushed out.

Julian sighed and stepped forward. ‘Mr. Jordan, I’ll go look for her, too.’

Evan glared at him coldly. “Don’t let them expose anything.”

“Okay!”

After Julian departed, Evan’s phone began to ring. The caller was Draco. Evan answered the call with a noticeably sour tone. “What’s the matter?”

Draco was taken aback, and then his voice grew stronger. “What’s with the attitude?”

Evan’s expression tightened as he struggled to control his deep frustration. “Just tell me “Gale Dickey from Flortine is currently in Angelbay. Meet him and secure his cooperation, Draco instructed.

“You seem to value this cooperation, so why don’t you meet him yourself?” Evan pushed back against Draco.

This response ignited Draco’s anger. ‘So, now that woman is back, you’re no longer dedicated to your work? Can’t you see what’s important? Do you realize how many companies in Angelbay are interested in Gale’s mining industry prospects?”

A beep interrupted the conversation.

Draco was stunned, glancing at his phone to find that Evan had hung up on him.

“Bastard! How ungrateful!” Draco’s face was flushed as he cursed.

The housekeeper hurriedly comforted him. “Master Draco, you don’t have to argue with Young Master Jordan because of that woman.

“You are a family, but that woman is an outsider. If you quarrel with Young Master Jordan because of her, your family’s peace will be ruined. It’s unworthy!”

“You’re right.” Draco narrowed his eyes. “Go and find out where she’s living now.”

The housekeeper nodded. “Okay, I’ll ask someone to do that now.”

After lunch at noon in Bayview, Jamie became sleepy.

Caroline brought Jamie back to the bedroom to rest. After Jamie dozed off, Caroline went downstairs to chat and draw with the children.

Chapter 197

Chapter 197 Why Do You Come Back

As they sat down, the sound of a car engine reached them from the door.

Soon, a knock came at the door.

“Mommy, let me get it,” Tyler said as he was closest to the door. Holding a glass of water, he walked over to open it.

Upon opening the door, he found an energetic old man with white hair standing there.

Tyler smiled and inquired, “May I know who you’re looking for?” novelbin Draco glanced down at Tyler and was momentarily stunned. Then he agitatedly asked, “Young man, who are you?”

Tyler smiled and replied, “Sir, isn’t it impolite to ask for the host’s name the moment you arrive?”

“Yes!” Draco’s face lit up. “You sound just like Evan!”

Upon hearing that, Tyler became cautious. He was about to respond when Caroline called out to him, “Ty, who is it?”

Tyler shifted his gaze toward Caroline. It’s an old man who’s saying strange things.”

Caroline grew concerned and swiftly walked over to the entrance.

When she saw Draco, her heart raced. She already had to be wary of Evan, and now Draco had shown up. She could lose Tyler if they realized that he was connected to the Jordan family.

Suppressing her anxiety, she approached with determination. “Mr. Jordan Draco’s expression turned cold the moment he saw Caroline. He pointed at Tyler. “Is this Evan’s – child?”

Caroline didn’t reply but instead approached Tyler and gently patted his back. “Ty, you guys go upstairs and play. I need to have a conversation with this gentleman.”

Tyler nodded, then turned and headed back to the living room. He led Axel and Liora upstairs.

At a corner, Tyler grabbed their hands and squatted down.

Liora was thrilled. “Ty, do you want to listen in? I find it exciting.”

Tyler hushed her, prompting her to immediately fall silent.

Axel’s eyes turned dull when Caroline led Draco to the living room. He whispered, “It’s Grandpa.”

Liora was bewildered. “Your Grandpa? Is he here to bully Mommy?”

Axel shook his head. “I don’t know.”

Tyler thought fast before he extended his hand toward Axel. “Give me the phone.”

Axel took his phone out and handed it to Tyler.

Tyler made a call, and soon, the other party picked it up.

*SOS! Mommy needs help at home!”

After that, he hung up.

Draco sat on the sofa in the living room. Caroline then handed a glass of water to him.

He sized her up. ‘Why did you come back since you faked your death?’

Caroline answered lightly, “I naturally have a reason for doing so.

“Spill it What does it take for you to leave Evan?” Draco asked directly.

His question amused Caroline. “Why do you think I’m the one pestering him instead of the other way around?”

Draco snorted “Did you know he ignored a one–billion–dollar contract because of you?”

Caroline was stunned. Did he give up a contract because of her?

It was a piece of cake for Evan to earn a billion dollars unless the important thing about this project was not money.

Caroline said, “You look down on Evan, don’t you? His insight is more than a billion dollars.”

“What do you know?” Draco’s face turned gloomy. “Not everyone can cooperate with Gale from Flortine.”

Caroline was aware of Gale. He owned a lot of mining businesses that people were jealous of. His connections were all over the world.

It was indeed a pity for Evan to lose that contract for nothing.

Caroline sneered. “Mr. Jordan, you’re making it seem as if I pushed him to give up that contract.”

If you’re here to discuss this matter, excuse my directness.

“If you can’t control your son, please don’t involve me in your affairs.

“Some might find him attracting, but not me!”

Draco narrowed his eyes. “You’re an exception!”

“Thank you for your compliment.” Caroline did not stand on ceremony.

Draco then looked upstairs. “Let’s talk about the kid.”

Caroline looked at him vigilantly. “What right do you have to ask about my kid?”

Draco’s face turned hideous. “That child looks very much like Evan’s

“It doesn’t mean that he’s Evan’s child!” Caroline retorted coldly..

Drano scoffed. “Fine! You can be stubborn. But you can’t take their DNA!

“Listen. If that child is Evan’s, I won’t let the child live with a woman like you! We’ll get the child’s Caroline felt anxious upon hearing that, her palms becoming sweaty.

If Evan discovered the truth, she could handle it. Yet, if Draco found out, she might have no options left. novelbin

She would never allow Draco to separate her from her child.

All of a sudden, they heard the door opening

Caroline and Draco swiftly looked over and saw Scott enter in a rush, holding the newly purchased.

Suddenly, Tyler appeared at the head of the stairs

After that, Liora’s soft voice sounded “Daddy, what nice food did you buy?”

Caroline was soon enlightened when she saw Tyler blinking at her. They had come up with a way to get her out of her predicament.

Caroline stood up and walked to Scott, holding his arm naturally. “You came home very early today to play with the kids?”

Scott understood everything with just a glance. He then said dotingly, “I came home early since.

Caroline smiled and explained, "He's Evan's father

Scott smiled. "Mr. Jordan, hello."

Draco was baffled. "What's happening? This child resembles this man as well. Did I make a mistake because of my age?"

Draco dismissed that thought immediately. Tyler's resemblance to Evan when Evan was young and to Axel was too strong.

Certainly, Tyler couldn't be someone else's son

Nevertheless, Draco stood up as he still needed confirmation. He stared at Caroline and cautioned,

"Don't try any tricks. I won't allow my descendants to wander around!"

With that said, he exited the villa.

As the car drove away, Caroline's legs gave out. She might have fallen to the ground if Scott hadn't supported her.

"Does he want to snatch the kids from you?" Scott asked.

Caroline nodded in worry. "I can fool him this time, but I may not succeed the next time. If he looks into it, he may find the truth sooner or later....

Scott sighed. "Leave this to me."

Caroline looked at him. "Can you resolve it?"

"Yes." Scott gave her a reassuring smile. "You don't have to worry. I'll arrange everything nicely."

She then nodded in a trance before she shook her head quickly. “No! Evan owns a hospital, too!”

“Do you trust me?” Scott asked helplessly.

“Yes, I do...”

“Yeah, that’s good.” Scott patted her shoulders and signaled for her to look at the children.

“You’re aware of Ty and Axel’s skills,” he reminded.

Caroline was stunned.

The police apprehended her a few days ago, but her blood test results were somehow altered. She remained clueless about who had orchestrated this

She didn’t want to connect that incident with the children, but she had a gut feeling that it wouldn’t be difficult for them, especially considering they had humiliated Daniella

Caroline felt relieved thinking about it. Her sons were remarkable. She was thankful and proud.

Suddenly, a faint knock came from upstairs. Everyone looked up immediately

Before they could react, they heard Kenny’s cries. “Let... Let go of me...”

Caroline’s heart raced. She hurried upstairs.

The three children wanted to follow, but Scott stopped them

On the second floor, Caroline found Jamie sitting on Kenny, gripping him tightly.

She kept muttering, “Go to hell! Now!”

Kenny's face turned red as he struggled to free himself from Jamie's grip. He wanted to fight back but held himself back, knowing Caroline had brought Jamie home.

Caroline rushed to them and seized Jamie's arms. "Jamie Release Kenny now!"

Jamie looked up, glaring at Caroline with bloodshot eyes. "Don't stop me! All these damned men deserve to die!"

"Jamie!" Caroline tried urgently "He's not the villain you think. He's my friend. Can you let him go?"

"No!" Jamie yelled. She maintained her hold on Kenny's neck as if she genuinely wanted to harm him.

Caroline stood up. As she attempted to separate them once more, Scott intervened.

"Allow me."

He then bent down, gripping a spot on Jamie's wrist, and effortlessly removed Jamie's hand from Kenny's throat.

With the pressure relieved, Kenny coughed vigorously.

Jamie tried her best to break free of Scott's control as she shouted, "Bastard, let go of me! All men are bastards! You guys want to drive me mad! You guys want me dead!"

While she was being controlled, Kenny got up quickly and held his throat before he ran to Caroline's rear. "G! Ahem..... Trust me. I didn't do anything to her. She seems to have gone mad. Ahem... She rushed to me and strangled me when I opened the door."

Caroline trusted Kenny, so she comforted him. "Yeah, I know. Let's see how Jamie is first."

Kenny nodded. Caroline then walked to Jamie. "Jamie, look at me. It's me. I'm Caroline!"

Jamie looked at Caroline vigilantly and snarled, I don't know you! I want these men dead!"

bully you! I just want

Thus, Caroline asked for Scott's help, who was frowning at the moment. "Is there any way to pacify her first?"

Scott looked at Kenny. "Get a rope from downstairs to tie her up first. I'll go to the car to get a sedative."

Kenny hurried downstairs, located the rope, and swiftly returned to the room. He securely tied up Jamie, who was struggling. Next, with Jamie in Caroline's room, Scott fetched a sedative from his car and administered it to Jamie.

Everyone heaved a sigh of relief when they saw her slowly close her eyes.

Kenny rubbed his aching throat and asked, "What's going on?"

Similarly, Caroline was baffled. She looked at Scott and waited for an answer.

Scott appeared serious "I think she's suffering from a mental illness."

After that, he looked at Caroline. "Did you bring her home?"

Caroline nodded "Yeah, I met her at the entrance of Evan's private hospital. Her legs were injured, and she was hungry. So, I took her home."

Scott advised, "You should have sent her to a police station and let the police deal with it instead of bringing her home."

Caroline looked embarrassed. "I intended to do that today, but the kids came over."

"I could visit the police station and check for any missing patients from the hospital or any reported missing persons," Scott proposed.

"What?" Kenny's eyes widened. "You want to leave G and me here? We're not strong. How can we manage a mental patient?”

Scott looked apologetically at Kenny. “Because I administered a higher dose, she won’t wake up quickly.”

Relieved, Kenny nodded. “Understood. I’ll stay with G. Scott, go ahead.”

Scott took four hours to complete his task. Wearily, he returned during dinnertime

Caroline fetched a glass of juice and inquired, “How did it go? Did you find any information?”

Scott, shaking his head, settled onto the sofa. After taking a sip of juice, he responded, “No, I shared the photo, but there were no outcomes.”

Worry creased Caroline’s face. “What should we do now?”

Holding an uninvited mentally ill guest at home was problematic, especially with the children.

present.

But where could they take her? The hospital? It might be impolite.

Could they ask her to leave? Caroline couldn’t bear to imagine the hardship Jamie might endure

due to her mental condition

Kenny lay lazily on the sofa, crunching an apple. “Well, in my view, you should return her to where you found her.”

“No! We can’t do that!”

Caroline and Scott immediately rejected Kenny’s suggestion.

Kenny nearly choked “So, what’s the plan now?”

Scott glanced at Caroline. “If it’s alright with you, I can invite a doctor friend to assess her.”

I suppose that’s the only option, Caroline conceded.

After the conversation, Caroline brought the three children upstairs to wash up. She then got them to their room and tucked them in.

Liora expressed her concern “Mommy, what’s wrong with Madam?”

Caroline gently pinched Liora’s cheek. “It’s okay. She’s unwell. Everything will be fine once she gets better.”

Tyler added, “Don’t worry, Mommy Papa Wilson can manage it.”

Caroline smiled appreciatively. “Yes, I believe so. Now, sleep well. And let’s not mention this to her, alright?”

The children nodded in agreement.

Axel whispered, “Goodnight, Mommy.”

Caroline then planted a kiss on each of their foreheads. “Goodnight…”

In the middle of the night, a figure suddenly sat up quickly in the dark children’s room.

He held his nose and reached for his phone on the bed’s headboard

He switched on the phone, moved the blanket aside, and got out of bed, walking swiftly to the bathroom

Closing the door behind him, he tiptoed to switch on the wall lamp. He looked down.

A bright red patch caught his eye.

His face turned pale. It was his third nosebleed.

Taking a tissue, he plugged his nostril, then cleaned his bloodstained hand. novelbin

Before he could finish cleaning, the other nostril began to bleed.

Axel stared at the water-tinged blood and pursed his pale lips tightly

What's wrong with me?' he thought.

Axel sat in the bathroom for ten minutes until his nose stopped bleeding. With a pale face, he left the bathroom, using his phone's light to step cautiously and check the floor for any blood.

Every few steps, he would look at his sleeping siblings in bed. Once he was sure they were still sound asleep, he would check for any signs of blood.

When he confirmed the floor was clean, he returned to bed. No blood on the floor was a relief.

Caroline would worry if she found out.

Axel didn't want to add more trouble or concern for his mother.

The following morning, Scott arrived with a female doctor to examine Jamie.

Jamie woke up emotionally steady but had no recollection of the recent events. She couldn't even remember who Caroline was.

Despite this, she cooperated when the female doctor asked her questions. Then she rushed over to play with the three children.

Caroline took the chance to talk to Dr. Freya Bailey.

“Dr. Bailey, what’s going on with Jamie?” Caroline inquired.
