Chapter 341

Chapter 341 Are You Afraid?

Caroline's heart tightened. She called out in panic, "Evan?"

Evan's furrowed brows twitched.

Caroline called out to him again, seeing that he was still conscious, "Evan? Can you hear me? Answer me!"

Evan moved his fingers a few times and struggled to open his eyes.

The worry in his eyes gradually disappeared after seeing that Caroline was safe and sound. "Stop screaming. I'm not dead."

Caroline's tears fell uncontrollably. She asked in a choked voice. "Didn't I tell you to stay away? Why didn't you listen?"

Evan smiled bitterly. His voice was low and hoarse as he replied, "I can't bear to see you disappear in front of me for the second time

Caroline froze, and her heart skipped a beat at his words.

When she returned to her senses, she wiped away her tears and reached out to help Evan. 'Sit up first. Let me see if there are any other wounds."

Evan pursed his lips and sat up. Caroline supported him against the tree and then got up to examine his body.

After a quick check, Caroline found that the most serious wound on Evan's body was his arm, which was seriously injured again.

Although there were some scratches on his leg, there were no fractures. He could still move.

Relieved, Caroline retracted her gaze. Just as she was about to call for help, she realized that her phone was not with her.

Caroline asked softly, "Evan, do you have your phone with you?"

Evan looked up and asked, "Do you think I thought to take it with me in my hurry to save you?"

Caroline fell silent for a moment. novelbin

"Can you still walk?"

They couldn't stay there. The longer they did, the more susceptible Evan's arm would be to infection.

Evan nodded slightly and stood up. Due to the severe pain in his leg, he almost stumbled and fell

+15 BONUS

Caroline hurriedly grabbed Evan's arm and draped it over her shoulder. "Bear with it. Let's try taking a few steps first."

Evan did not say anything. He sized up Caroline from the corner of his eye. With her support, he took a few steps before stopping.

Caroline stopped in her tracks and turned to look at the man who was just within arm's reach."

What's wrong? Is your leg hurting?"

“It’s raining.” Evan said calmly. “We shouldn’t look for a way back now. Let’s see if there’s anywhere nearby that can shelter us from the rain,

Caroline looked up at the gloomy sky and frowned. “Let it rain. It’s more important that we get you back as soon as possible so we can get your wound treated.”

“If you don’t mind falling a couple more times on the muddy road, I don’t mind if you struggle to bring me back,” Evan said.

Caroline was at a loss for words

Well, he had a point

Caroline helped Evan sit down again: “Stay here. I’ll go take a look around.”

Just as she was about to turn around and leave, Evan reached out and grabbed Caroline. “There’s a high chance that wild beasts will appear in this forest. Be careful.”

Caroline nodded. “Got it.”

As Evan watched Caroline leave, his face contorted in pain while he raised his hand to cover his chest

If he guessed correctly, one of his ribs should be broken

When he chased Caroline into the dense forest, he had paid attention to the route taken. It would take a long time for them to get out of the forest.

Her body was too small, and he was almost incapable of exerting any strength due to the pain in his leg. How could he bear to let her support his weight all the way?

About ten minutes later, Caroline returned

Evan immediately hid the pain on his face.

Caroline regretfully walked over to Evan's side and sat down. "There's nothing nearby. Let's just stay under this tree to hide from the rain."

+15 BONUS

Evan leaned against the tree, closed his eyes, and asked softly, "Are you afraid? It'll get very dark here at night."

Caroline shook her head. "I'm not afraid of the dark. I'm just worried we'll encounter the wild beasts you mentioned."

"Hm..." Evan responded to Caroline with a barely audible grunt.

Sensing that something was amiss, Caroline turned to look at Evan. His face was growing increasingly pale.

Chapter 342

Chapter 342 I Thought I'd Never See You Again

Caroline touched Evan's forehead. Feeling the heat, she quickly placed her hands on his face.

Evan slowly opened his eyes. "What are you doing?"

Caroline locked eyes with him and said seriously, "Your body temperature is a little high. Since my hands are cold, I'm trying to help you cool down a bit."

A faint scoff escaped Evan's lips as he lifted his hand to clasp Caroline's icy fingers. "Don't waste your energy."

"It's not a waste of energy!"

Caroline retracted her hand and took off her coat to cover Evan's head.

Evan frowned as he looked at Caroline's thin clothing. He said sternly, "You want to freeze yourself to death?”

“No,” Caroline replied. “I just don’t want to see you die here.”

Evan’s dark eyes widened slightly. After staring at Caroline for a moment, he suddenly grabbed her hand again.

Caroline was stunned. Before she could react, she was pulled into Evan’s arms.

In the next instant, his slightly cool lips covered hers

Caroline’s eyes widened in shock. “Evan-”

Before she could finish her sentence, Evan hugged her waist tighter and deepened the kiss.

When she returned to her senses, Caroline quickly pushed against Evan’s chest and tried her best to break free. “Evan! Can you stop fooling around?!”

Evan suddenly let out a muffled groan. He frowned, and his face turned even paler. “Don’t move.

My ribs are broken.”

“Ribs?!” Caroline’s hand froze. “Why didn’t you tell me?!”

Evan smiled faintly. He raised his hand and placed it on Caroline’s rosy lips, caressing them gently. “If you want to cripple my body, then go ahead and keep moving.”

Caroline was at a loss for words.

Meanwhile, Alex and Paige led several staff members to look for Evan and Caroline in the dense forest.

+15 BONUS

Alex could not help but feel sorry for Patge when he saw her stumbling step by step in the rain." Wasn't it better for you to stay at the campsite and watch the children? Why did you have to follow us?"

Paige glared at Alex. "Can you stop talking?! Carol's life is in danger. How can I not come out and look for her? There are bodyguards with the kids. Does my presence make any difference? If we don't find Carol, don't even think about going back tonight!"

"Well, then walk slower and be careful not to trip!"

"You want me to walk slower when it's already dark?! Paige retorted, exasperated. "Carol is alone, you know!"

With that, Paige continued to shout at her surroundings, "Carol! Carol, where are you?! Respond if you hear me!"

Alex also shouted, "Evan! Evan!!"

Some distance away, Caroline nudged Evan lightly.

"Evan! Did you hear Alex's voice?"

"No!"

Irritation flashed across Evan's eyes. Even if he heard it, he did not want to admit it!

Ever since he met Caroline again, they had always been at each other's throats when they talked.

It was rare that Caroline did not quarrel with him or push him away on account of his injury. He did not want to go back so quickly, even if his wound was festering

The surroundings were so dark that Caroline could not see Evan's expression clearly.

However, she could feel his impatience.

Caroline licked her lips, which still felt warm from Evan's kiss. For a moment, she could not describe how she felt. novelbin

She wasn't disgusted but didn't want it to happen again either.

"Caroll Call you hear me?! Answer me!!"

Suddenly, Paige's voice interrupted Caroline's thoughts.

Startled, Caroline hurriedly looked up and replied, "Paigel I can hear you! I'm here!"

Hearing the response, Paige hurriedly led the staff over.

+15 BONUS

Seeing Caroline and Evan in such sorry states, Paige immediately hugged Caroline and burst into tears. "You scared me to death!! I thought I'd never see you again..

Caroline did not know how to react. She just patted Paige's back and said, "I'm fine, Don't worry about me. Evan is the one who's injured."

Chapter 343

Chapter 343 Are You Sure There's No Mistake?

"Huh?" Paige exclaimed She quickly looked at Evan, whose face was pale. The word 'unhappy' was clearly displayed on his face.

Paige let go of Caroline and asked in a low voice, "Did you two quarrel again?"

Caroline blushed at the thought of the kiss and said, "No. Did you guys come in a car? We need to get him to the hospital quickly."

"What happened to Evan?" Alex asked as he was about to assist Evan to his feet.

Caroline said. "He has a broken rib, and the wound on his arm has opened up. He also has a fever.

We need to get him to the hospital immediately.”

Alex widened his eyes and looked at Evan. “Damn! You haven’t passed out from all this?!”

Evan glared at Alex and gritted his teeth. “Shut up!”

‘What did I say to upset this guy now?! he wondered.

Paige’s birthday ended with Evan being taken to the hospital..

As it was inconvenient for the children to stay in the hospital, Paige and Alex brought them back. to Bayview Villa while Caroline stayed in the ward to accompany Evan

The doctor told Caroline that Evan had more than just broken ribs.

Even his leg had been twisted and injured. There were too many wounds all over his body. He had to recuperate in peace and quiet.

Caroline had mixed feelings when she saw Evan lying quietly on the hospital bed, getting an IV

drip

If not for Evan’s help, she would be the one lying on the hospital bed with an uncertain fate.

How was she going to repay this kindness of risking his life to save her?

With that thought in mind, Caroline leaned against the sofa and fell into a deep sleep.

At 9:00 p.m., Draco had just come out of Casey’s ward when the attending doctor approached him. novelbin

He handed over an examination report to Draco with a troubled expression. “Mr. Jordan, please take a look at this report regarding Casey.”

+15 BONUS

Draco saw that something was amiss and dismissed the bodyguards around him before taking the report.

With just a glance, Draco's eyes widened. "Are you sure there's no mistake?!"

The attending doctor did not dare meet his gaze. "Y-Yes. I even thought there might be a mistake when the report came out. But after multiple examinations, it was confirmed. That's why I came to inform you.

Draco gripped the report tightly. Is there any way to treat this?"

"Not currently. However, Casey is in the middle to later stages. As long as he cooperates, we should be able to keep it under control."

Draco angrily threw the documents on the ground. Treat him! No matter how much it costs, you must make sure to keep it under control! Also, other than me and your team, no one else must know about this! Otherwise, it's off with your head

The attending doctor's expression changed when he heard Draco's threat. "O-Of course, we will definitely keep it confidential!"

Meanwhile, at Xander Residence.

Daniella was sitting on her bed and texting Casey

It had been several days since they last exchanged messages, but Casey had not taken the initiative to contact her!

The idiots in the company still hadn't figured out the security key, and now Casey was playing hide and seek with her!

Couldn't she have just one thing go her way?!

While thinking this, Daniella suddenly received a message.

She opened it and saw that it was from a media reporter.

Reporter: Ms. Love, you mentioned you wanted to talk to me about a certain prominent figure's private matter. Are you free now?]

Daniella raised her eyebrows. This reporter was quite opportunistic! If not for this reminder, she would have forgotten about Evan's mother's situation.

Daniella: [Tomorrow. Let's find a place to meet. I'll tell you everything in detail.]

Reporter: Alright! Miss Love, you decide on the location!]

+15 BONUS

Daniella sneered. These days, everyone was hungry for information! If she were to spread this information, would Evan suspect Caroline?

By midnight, Daniella still hadn't received a reply from Casey.

Just as she was about to sleep, her phone suddenly rang.

Daniella was excited and quickly grabbed her phone to check. However, she soon discovered that the call came from Hector Hendrix, not Casey.

Daniella didn't want to assume too much about Hector. He was a mysterious individual she had never met, yet he had quietly assisted her on multiple occasions

She answered the call cautiously. Mr. Hendrix, aren't you sleeping yet?

Hector said coldly. "Sleeping? Are you slacking off? You don't plan to go after Caroline anymore?"

Daniella was stunned. In the past, she was the one who took the initiative to ask Hector for help to deal with Caroline. Why was Hector now reaching out to her for that purpose?

Daniella said, "Mr. Hendrix, you're mistaken I hate her so much I can't wait to see her vanish from the face of this world! It's just that I haven't had the time yet."

Hector sneered. "You don't have time? Or are you just afraid Evan will get hurt in the process?"

That was strange. Why did Hector suddenly mention Evan's name?

Daniella quickly defended herself. "Of course not. He drove me away so heartlessly. How can I not hate him?"

Hector said, "In that case, make good use of the opportunity you have to kill two birds with one.

stone."

Daniella was puzzled "Mr. Hendrix, I don't quite understand what you mean..."

Mr. Hendrix scoffed. "Didn't Casey already tell you about his family's scandal?"

Daniella's eyes widened in shock.

Was he talking about Evan's mother's secret? But how did Hector know about it? Was he monitoring her?!

Clutching her chest as her heart raced, Daniella stammered, "Y-Yes. I-I get it."

Don't disappoint me!"

"Okay."

After hanging up, Daniella stared at her phone in a daze.

Hector had sent her that phone, and he must have been monitoring her to know about Evan's mother. She couldn't make any reckless moves now. Otherwise, with Hector's capabilities, she might end up in trouble.

+15 BONUS

But then again, Hector's words were a little puzzling.

It sounded like he wanted her to deal with Caroline as soon as possible, but she had a feeling that novelbin once this matter was exposed, Evan would be the one who would be affected.

What was Hector's motive for helping her out of the blue? Also, who exactly was he?

After pondering for a long time. Daniella made a decision. She would uncover the truth about Hector and reveal his true identity. She couldn't let him continue manipulating her like this!

The next day.

When Evan woke up, he saw Caroline curled up on the sofa.

Just as he was about to get up, the ward door was pushed open.

Reuben walked in with breakfast in hand and placed it on the bedside. "Mr. Jordan, here's some breakfast for you and Ms. Shenton

Evan nodded and said calmly, "Cover her with a blanket "

Reuben nodded. He picked up the blanket beside him and was about to cover Caroline with it when she opened her eyes

"There's no need to trouble yourself," she said sleepily. Then, she sat up and looked at Evan. "Don't pull out the needle. Make sure the IV drip finishes)

Evan's expression softened "Alright Come over and have breakfast."

"No, thank you." Caroline looked at her watch. "It's getting late. I have to go to the office. Have a good rest."

Evan's expression instantly turned cold. "How long can breakfast take? Or is it that as the vice. president, Kenny, can't even handle the most basic internal affairs of the company?"

Caroline stopped in her tracks. She suppressed the urge to retort.

She reminded herself that Evan had saved her life, so she shouldn't argue with him if she could avoid it.

Caroline controlled her temper and replied, "Kenny can carry his own weight, I'm sure. But that doesn't mean I should be idle. Since I was absent the entire day yesterday, he's been busy enough. I'll take the breakfast with me. Is that acceptable?"

As she spoke, Caroline walked to Evan's bedside, picked up a bag of breakfast, and was about to leave.

+15 BONUS

Evan's face darkened, and he could not help but ask, "Are you concerned about him?"

"Evan, can you please be reasonable? Caroline's frustration was instantly ignited.

Reuben was at a loss for words while holding the blanket

Why were they arguing over breakfast?

Evan sneered. "Am I being unreasonable, or are you just in a hurry to see him? You can i even go a day without meeting him?"

Ivan, are you crazy? Caroline was enraged "Is there a problem with me going to the company? Kenny has to keep an eye on the factory, so I need to manage the company. I had decided yesterday that I would try not to argue with you whenever possible because you saved my life. But I never expected you to say such unbearable words!"

Caroline stormed out of the hospital room, leaving behind such a frigid atmosphere in the room that Heuben wanted to make a run for 1.

Evan looked at Reuben coldly. "Was I being too harsh?"

Reuben was speechless, but his boss had asked him a question. There was no way he could avoid answering.

Reuben braced himself and said, "Managing the company sounds pretty..."

"I didn't ask you any other questions!" Evan shouted in a low voice.

Reuben stammered, "Y-You were rather harsh. Ms. Shenton just wanted to go to the company. She didn't say she wanted to see Kenny. You were the one who mentioned it first..."

Evan frowned. "Didn't she imply it?"

"No..." Reuben sighed. "Mr. Jordan, don't you go to the company every day to work?"

"Is her small company as busy as mine?" Evan asked.

At the mention of this, Reuben became serious. "Mr. Jordan, I have to say that in the fashion industry, Ms. Shenton's company's quarterly sales have far exceeded MK's current quarterly sales.

"Furthermore, MK's sales for the newly designed products have hit an all-time low."

Evan narrowed his eyes. "Caroline's company has the highest quarterly sales in the global fashion market?"

"Yes! MK is currently in second place," Reuben replied. "The recent incident involving Ms.

Shenton has garnered a lot of attention and indirectly boosted the company's image. Of course, Kenny's design skills are one of the contributing factors."

Upon hearing that, Evan fell into deep thought.

A moment later, he said, "I want you to continue finding a way to poach Kenny! I want him to join our company!"

Reuben was shocked. "Are you planning to continue competing with Ms. Shenton for talent?"

Competing for talent was putting it nicely. Evan was clearly trying to ruin things for Caroline.

Evan scoffed and looked at Reuben unhappily. "Are you suggesting I admit that I'm inferior to a woman? When it comes to relationships, I'm willing to compromise with Caroline in every way. But when it comes to business, I'll never let anyone else stand in my way, not even friends or family!

"Besides, Kenny's personal life is too messy. He shouldn't hang around Caroline all the time!"

It sounded reasonable enough.

Reuben understood that this was purely a business decision. If the boss compromised in every aspect because of relationships, he would not be as successful as he was today.

Reuben nodded. "I understand. I'll contact Kenny!"

Just as Caroline arrived at TYC, Naomi knocked on her office door and walked in “Ms. Shenton, there’s someone waiting for you in the reception area.”

Caroline was puzzled. It was only 830 am. Who would come looking for her so early?

Caroline walked toward the reception area and pushed open the door. She saw Jamie in a white dress sitting on a chair. On the table next to her, there was a thermos flask.

When she saw Caroline, Jamie quickly picked up the thermos flask and stood up. “Carol, I brought you some soup.”

Caroline was surprised to see her. “Jamie, why did you come without calling me first?”

Jamie looked at Caroline warily and said, “I called you, but your phone was turned off. Last night, when I saw that you didn’t come back for the entire night, I asked Ty and Lia, and they told me that you were drenched in the rain last night.

asked Dr. Bailey what medicine would be good for you. She said some hot soup would do the job, so I had her help me make some and brought it to you.”

Warmth filled Caroline’s heart. She took the soup and said. “Thank you, Jamie.”

Jamie scratched her head, blushing shyly as she sat down. ‘Getting caught in the rain is bad enough. Catching a cold is even worse. I don’t want you to get sick. Getting injections can be painful, you know.”

Caroline picked up her spoon. "I know, but Jamie, Evan was also drenched in the rain. He's in the hospital now. Would you like to go see him?"

The mention of Evan caught Jamie off guard for a moment. After a brief pause, she replied. "He'll be fine. Boys have strong bodies. Girls are the ones who need more care."

Hearing Jamie's words, Caroline could not help but feel a pang of sadness

Jamie's mindset seemed to still be stuck in Evan's childhood.

Caroline took a sip of the soup, and its warmth spread from her throat to her stomach, soothing her tensed body.

As Caroline continued drinking, Jamie continued to gaze at her

"How great it would be if my son married you." Jamie suddenly said

Caroline paused, and a bitter smile appeared on her face.

It was no longer possible between her and Evan, but she did not want to be too harsh in her words with Jamie.

Caroline tactfully refused. "Jamie, Evan will find you a gentle and considerate daughter-in-law."

Jamie's gaze gradually dimmed. "Caroline, I know I'm sick."

Caroline's heart skipped a beat. She saw the change in Jamie's expression and said, "Jamie, you.."

"My mind is a mess." Jamie smiled. "Sometimes it's clear. Sometimes it's chaotic. But I'm sure my mind is clear now. Every time it's clear, I can't help thinking about the past."

Her words piqued Caroline's curiosity. However, she did not dare to ask any further for fear of hurting Jamie.

Jamie continued. "Evan has suffered so much. He was forced to separate from me when he was in his teens. Even now that he has grown up and appeared in front of me, it's like—we're strangers. Honestly, I have no feelings for him."

Caroline frowned slightly. What kind of mindset did a mother have to say she had no feelings for her own son?

+15 BONUS

Caroline did not understand "Jamie, you took care of Evan until he left in his teens. Why wouldn't you have feelings for him?"

"If someone forced you to give birth to a child, would you have feelings for the child?" Jamie asked.

Caroline could not answer this question because she couldn't imagine such a situation.

However, judging from Jamie's words, it was possible Draco might have done something like that.

"I'm sorry, Jamie. I don't have an answer to that question either," Caroline said bluntly.

Jamie took a sip of water. "Although I don't have any feelings for Evan, I still feel guilty. You're a good girl. If you can take care of him for me, I can die in peace."

Caroline was shocked by Jamie's words. "Jamie, don't say that. You'll live a long life."

Jamie smiled bleakly. "You should know how torturous it is for a person to carry painful memories."

Not wanting to argue further, Caroline immediately changed the subject. "Jamie. I'll get Dr. Bailey to accompany you to the park, okay?"

Jamie didn't refuse and nodded. "Okay. You should go to work."

After escorting Jamie downstairs, Caroline worriedly sent a message to Freya.

Caroline: [Dr. Bailey, Jamie was a little mentally unstable when she was with me just now. Is she like that at home?]

After a while, Caroline received a reply from Freya.

Freya (Well, patients like her who have suffered significant trauma often voluntarily forget memories they want to forget. These memories are deeply ingrained in their minds, and they resurface when they see something or someone specific, causing them to regain their clarity.)

Freya: [Ms. Shenton, I'll be blunt. In my observation, her moments of clarity are not a good sign. During those times, she also exhibits severe symptoms of depression, anxiety, and even manic episodes.

Additionally, during her episodes, she often mumbles things that are hard for ordinary people to imagine. As for what she said, I'll compile a report and send it to your phone later.]

Chapter 346

Chapter 346 Best Wishes for Your Marriage

After reading Freya's response, Caroline fell into a daze for a long time.

Perhaps Jamie didn't want to go back with Evan because she was afraid that seeing Evan would trigger memories from the past.

After finishing a meeting at the office in the afternoon, Caroline got off work early and went to the supermarket. She bought a lot of groceries and then picked up the children from school.

Since Evan was hospitalized, Axel would be staying at her place for a while. This was exactly what she wanted.

Caroline brought the children home, and when she saw Jamie, the latter seemed to have returned to her original innocent and cheerful demeanor

Caroline personally cooked dinner and prepared a table full of delicious dishes for the children and Jamie.

Liora leaned against the table and asked excitedly. "Mommy, is it someone's birthday today?"

There's so much delicious food."

Caroline smiled and shooed Liora away from the table, saying, "You can't eat until you wash your hands clean, sweetie."

Liora chuckled mischievously and turned around to tug Jamie's skirt.

"Grandma, let's go wash our hands together."

Jamie took Liora's hand and pulled Axel and Tyler over together. "Come on, let's go wash our hands and eat."

Seeing Jamie leading the children into the bathroom, Freya approached Caroline and said, "If she could stay like this all the time, it would actually be very nice. What do you think, Ms. Shenton?"

Staring at the backs of the four of them, Caroline smiled. Jamie genuinely cares for the children. If possible, I hope she can stay here forever."

Freya said, 'Ms. Shenton, I'd like to request a few days off."

Stunned, Caroline asked, "How many days?"

Freya was a little bashful when she replied, "I'm getting married, so I'm not sure how long I'll be gone."

"Married?"

Caroline felt a little guilty. T'm sorry, Freya. I didn't know you were getting married. If I did, I wouldn't have asked you to stay here"

Freya replied, "It's okay. My fiance is also a doctor. In our eyes, patients are more important than our own happiness. If it weren't for the upcoming wedding. I wouldn't be applying for leave from you. I know you're also very busy."

Caroline hurriedly waved her hands. 'You don't have to worry about my problems. I can take Jamie with me to the office. Freya, wait here a moment, please!"

With that, Caroline headed upstairs to the study.

She took out an envelope from the drawer and stuffed in 1.500 dollars in cash that she retrieved novelbin from the safe

Then, she returned downstairs and handed the envelope to Freya. "A small token of appreciation. Best wishes for your marriage.

Freya did not refuse, and she accepted it with a thank you.

When dinner time arrived, Freya packed her luggage and left.

Caroline and Jamie sat down to have dinner with the children.

They were having shrimp for dinner that night. Jamie got onto peeling the prawns for the children seriously

Liora swung her legs excitedly while she ate. “Grandma, you eat too. I can peel it myself.”

“No, no,” Jamie refused. “The shrimp shells are hard and might hurt your tiny hands.”

Tyler sighed “Grandma, you’re spoiling Lia–Mmph!”

Before Tyler could finish speaking. Jamie stuffed a piece of peeled shrimp into Tyler’s mouth.

Tyler’s face turned red.

Then, Jamie fed Axel some shrimp as well.

The two little ones sat in their seats and munched on the food excitedly.

Caroline ate her soup and looked at the harmonious scene before her. She could not help but feel a little emotional.

Did Jamie feed Evan like this when he was young?

After Jamie left, how did he face Draco’s pressure and gradually become the successful businessman he was today?

After pondering for a moment, Caroline pulled herself back to reality.

Chapter 347

Chapter 347 In Danger

Just then, Kenny walked in from outside.

When he saw so much delicious food on the table, he walked up to Caroline angrily and complained. “G, why didn’t you tell me you were cooking so much delicious food”

Caroline pulled out the chair beside her and said with a smile, “I thought you weren’t coming back today

Kenny sat down with a huff. "You heartless woman. You abandoned me to go out and play on your own and didn't even say hello when you came back! I've been running between the company and the factory, it's exhausting-"

Before Kenny could finish complaining, Jamie stuffed a mouthful of food into his mouth

Kenny was stunned and quickly chewed and swallowed it.

Kenny was actually a little afraid of Jamie. He hadn't forgotten the last time she strangled him.

Embarrassed, Kenny scratched his head awkwardly. "Thank you, Jamie!"

Caroline knocked her knuckles on Kenny's head and said. "She's Evan's mother."

"What?!" Kenny stood up from his chair and asked in disbelief, "The scumbag's mother?"

Caroline covered her ears and said, "Don't scream. Sit down, and we can talk about it nicely."

Kenny sat down again. "G, how long have you known about this? Why didn't you tell me? I was wondering why the children are addressing her differently."

"Didn't you notice anything wrong when they changed the way they addressed her?" Caroline. looked at him speechlessly.

Kenny mumbled, "I thought it was on a mere moment of impulse and didn't think much of it. Does Evan know about this?"

"Yes" Caroline took a sip of her orange juice. "Jamie doesn't want to go with him."

"Oh, even his own mother doesn't want to go back with him. I guess he really isn't a good person." Kenny pouted.

"Don't take it out of context. There are some things you don't know novelbin “That’s right!” Before Caroline could finish, Liorn suddenly said, “Don’t keep calling Daddy a scumbag.”

Everyone, except Jamie, looked at Liora in shock.

After saying that, Liora took a bite of the chicken wing and looked at everyone innocently. “Why are you guys staring at me?”

Tyler reached out to hold Liora’s face and asked, “Lia? Are you switching sides?”

Liora snorted and slapped Tyler’s hand away. She blinked quizzically. “No, no 1—I just think he’s not that bad Ty, he saved Mommy. And he’s still lying in the hospital now”

Kenny widened his eyes and looked at Caroline. “He saved you? What happened? Why don’t I know anything about this?”

Caroline explained everything that had happened to Kenny.

Kenny’s expression changed from fear to astonishment. “Wow! He saved you again!”

As he spoke, Kenny counted on his fingers. “In that case, he seems to have saved you five times!”

“Four times, to be precise. Caroline corrected. “One of those times, he abandoned me on a mountain.

Kenny stroked his chin thoughtfully. Well, all those previous times don’t really count because he was the one who put you in danger first, right? But this time, it’s different. I didn’t expect him to care about you so much.”

After Kenny finished speaking, he felt he had misspoken “G, Im not speaking up for him I’m just offering an objective analysis.”

Caroline nodded. “I understand.”

She remembered every single incident so vividly, but what was the point of saying all this now? She would rather not have a relationship where she wasn’t respected and trusted!

Her three children, who were sitting side by side opposite of her, were stunned. Their scumbag father had actually saved their mother so many times?

After dinner, Jamie played with the children.

When it was time for bed, Caroline urged the children to go upstairs to sleep. After helping them with their bedtime routines and tucking them in, Caroline realized that Jamie was still sitting in front of the Lego set.

She walked to Jamie’s side and sat down. “Jamie, aren’t you going to sleep?”

Jamie shook her head and stared at the Lego pieces, lost in thought. “I want to finish building the final roof for the children.”

Caroline couldn’t help but laugh. “Jamie, you won’t finish that roof in one night. It will probably take at least three or four days.

Chapter 348 Have a Good Sleep

Jamie was surprised, and a hint of sadness appeared in her eyes. “Will it really take that long? I wanted to give the children a surprise.”

Caroline took Jamie's hand and said, "Yes, it will take a while. So, can we go upstairs and rest for now? We have to go to the company together tomorrow, and I don't want to sleep too late."

Jamie looked at Caroline pleadingly. "Carol, Dr. Bailey has left, and I don't want to sleep alone."

Caroline smiled "Alright, you can sleep with me."

Jamie smiled immediately and held Caroline's hand tightly. "Okay, let's go upstairs!"

At 10:00 p.m. in a coffee shop.

Daniella sat in a private room with a reporter. She had her sunglasses on.

She sipped her coffee casually and said. "So that's what happened."

The reporter tapped away on his laptop and said, "Ms. Love, let me summarize it again. You said, the mother of MK's CEO, Evan Jordan, was a diplomat. After marrying Draco Jordan, she even seduced Casey Jordan. This caused Casey Jordan to fly overseas to hide his embarrassment, and he lived there for more than ten years.

Daniella put down the cup unhappily. "What about the most important part?"

The reporter smiled and said, "Ms. Love, don't be anxious. I know you want me to bring TYC's CEO into this, but we have to be careful not to slander anyone and risk being sued. After all, these two are two separate matters."

Daniella sneered. "It all boils down to money, right?"

The reporter replied, "While it might sound harsh, that's the reality."

Daniella said, "Enough with the ugly truth. Tell me, how much money do you want, and when can this be published?"

The reporter replied, "At the latest, it can be published within a week."

"It better be sooner. I don't like waiting. Is 100,000 dollars enough?"

The reporter hurriedly agreed, "It's more than enough."

After receiving the money, the reporter extended his hand to Daniella and said, "Ms. Love, it was a pleasure working with you."

Daniella glanced at him disdainfully, then picked up her bag and left.

At the hospital ward novelbin

Evan lay on the bed, unable to fall asleep.

He held on tightly to his phone. To his dismay, he had not received any messages. He couldn't fathom just how heartless and ruthless Caroline had become. She had left without even acknowledging him..

He was still nursing the injuries she had caused. Was asking for a simple message to check on him too much?

Enduring the pain in his chest, Evan propped himself up. Annoyed, he picked up his phone and searched for Caroline's chat contact.

He angrily typed a message: [Are you asleep?]

After waiting for a long time, Evan still did not receive any reply from Caroline.

Evan was infuriated and immediately sent another message: [Caroline, do you still have a conscience?]

After sending the message, he angrily threw his phone onto the bed.

Just then, Reuben had just entered the room. When he saw this scene, he was so frightened he trembled.

His employer was in an extremely bad mood today. He kept checking on his phone as he vetted some work documents. Whenever he saw no incoming messages, he would throw the documents on the floor.

It was so obvious that Evan was waiting for Caroline's message.

Reuben approached Evan silently.

Evan looked at him coldly and asked, "What has Caroline been up to all day?!"

Reuben gulped. "Mr. Jordan, Ms. Shenton spent the entire day at her company today. Then, she brought the children home. The doctor who has been taking care of Madam took leave and left, so Ms. Shenton has been busy taking care of Madam and the three children all on her own."

Evan's anger gradually dissipated. Perhaps she was too busy, and it was getting—late now. Maybe she had fallen asleep.

At the thought of this, Evan picked up his phone and wanted to delete the messages he had sent. However, it was too late to delete them.

Regret welled up within him as he sent another message: (Have a good sleep!]

The next morning, Caroline woke up to find three messages from Evan.

All three messages seemed to be sent in anger, and it left her feeling exasperated. Why did he say she didn't have a conscience? Was it because she didn't visit him yesterday?

Caroline's good mood was completely ruined, and she started typing her response to Evan's messages with annoyance.

At least ten people, including nurses. She hadn't expected Evan to go to such lengths for Lily.

Caroline: [I don't have a conscience? Why don't you take care of this family then?]

After replying. Caroline got up and washed up.

As she finished brushing her teeth, she received a message from Evan.

Evan: [Last night, I went overboard with my words]

Caroline conceded upon seeing his message. She hadn't originally intended to reply, but then she noticed the typing indicator on the screen. She decided to wait and see what he would send next.

About a few minutes later, she received another message.

Evan. [What are you busy with today?]

Caroline sighed.

Caroline: What exactly are you trying to say?]

Evan's face darkened when he saw the message. Wasn't he being clear enough?

He suppressed his frustration and replied: [Won't you come to the hospital today?]

Caroline leaned against the sink, feeling exasperated as she typed her response

Caroline: [You want me to come to the hospital just so we can argue again? And listen to you say nonsensical things?]

Evan countered back: [Have you forgotten who's responsible for my injuries?]

Caroline: [I know you got injured because of me, but I don't want to go because of what you'll end up saying to me. I don't have the energy to argue with you] novelbin

Evan: [I can refrain from saying those things.]

Caroline paused. She did not expect him to say this so bluntly.

She had initially planned to visit him today, but when she woke up and saw his messages from the previous night, she decided not to make things easy for him. But now that he had relented.

she couldn't continue with harsh words.

Caroline replied: [I'll come by later.]

Upon seeing those five words, Evan's tense expression eased.

He took the hot soup from Reuben and slowly ate it.

At 8:00a.m., Caroline took Jamie and the children to the kindergarten.

This was Jamie's first time sending the children to school. When she saw the children get out of the car, she followed them.

As they arrived at the kindergarten's entrance, a security guard stopped her.

Seeing this, Liora quickly said, "Grandma, you don't need to come in. We'll go in by ourselves."

Jamie nodded and waved goodbye to the children. "Okay, okay. I'll watch you guys go in "

The three little kids cooperatively waved goodbye to Jamie.

Once the children were out of sight, she sighed and got back into the car.

Puzzled, Caroline asked, "Jamie, what's wrong?"

Jamie replied with worry in her eyes, "Carol, will they cry in the kindergarten? Will they have.

friends to play with? Will the teachers peel their shrimp for them? Will they feed them properly?"

Caroline could not help but laugh as she was bombarded with a series of questions.

Jamie was indeed the children's grandmother. They were connected by blood, and she worried about every little detail.

Caroline explained, "Jamie, the children will eat by themselves. There are other kids to play with at the kindergarten. Don't worry, alright?"

Jamie looked at the kindergarten reluctantly, her voice tinged with sadness. "Alright"

Afterward, Caroline went to the company for a meeting and then took Jamie to the hospital.

Before she left, Reuben sent a message saying that Evan had been transferred to Grand East Hospital.

Hence, before Caroline went to visit Evan, she went to visit Lily.

Recent events had kept her from visiting Lily.

When they reached the top floor, Caroline held Jamie's hand, and they walked into Lily's ward together.

Lily's face was pale, and she had lost a lot of weight.

The doctor who had accompanied Caroline in said, "Ms. Shenton, if this drags on, even if she wakes up, her recovery will take a very long time."

After a moment of silence, Caroline asked, "If I agree to the surgery, when can you do it?"

The doctor said, "Mr. Jordan has arranged our entire team to take care of Ms. Smith here. As long Caroline was shocked. The medical team on the top floor consisted of at least

Seeing that Caroline had relented, the doctor was overjoyed. "That's great"

Jamie stood by the bed and looked at Lily. She pointed and said, "Carol, is this your mother?"

"No, this is Lily. She took good care of me for five years," Caroline said as she sat down by the bed.

She looked at Lily with a bitter gaze. "Lily is like family to me. Both my biological mother and my adoptive mother have passed away."

Five years had passed, and she hadn't visited her adoptive mother's grave. She was afraid that Katie would blame her for being useless, as she still couldn't bring her murderer to justice.

Jamie's heart ached upon seeing the tears rolling down Caroline's cheeks. She picked up a tissue to gently wipe them away.

Caroline locked up in shock.

Jamie placed her hands on Caroline's cold face, smiled faintly, and said, "Carol, don't cry. Although they're no longer around, you still have me. I can be like a mother to you and treat you like my daughter'

Jamie's smile was gentle and sincere.

Caroline's eyes reddened, and she threw herself into Jamie's arms

Jamie gently stroked Caroline's long hair and comforted her 'Carol, don't cry...'

Caroline knew that Jamie only had good intentions at this moment.

At 11:00 am., Caroline and Jamie bought some lunch before heading to the VIP ward.

Evan was sitting on the hospital bed, reading some work documents. When he saw Caroline and Jamie walk in together, he was stunned.

"Mom..." Evan said in shock, "Why are you here?"

Jamie smiled faintly at Evan and sat down on the sofa without a word.

A hint of loneliness flashed across Evan's eyes. His mother was behaving normally.

Only during her normal moments would she show him this unfamiliar smile.

Seeing this, Caroline went forward with the bowl of grilled chicken salad in her hands. "You haven't had lunch yet, have you?"

Evan's voice was hoarse. "No."

Caroline's heart ached. Jamie did not love Evan, but Evan treated Jamie as his only family.

"I bought you lunch, Caroline said again, breaking the oppressive atmosphere in the ward.

Evan glanced at her. "Have you eaten?"

Caroline shook her head, pulled a chair over, and sat down beside the bed. She picked up a fruit knife and started peeling an apple. "I'll eat after you've eaten.

Evan raised his arm and asked coldly, "Do you think I can carry anything with this hand?"

Caroline felt irritated. If he wanted her to feed him, why didn't he just say so directly?

She

put down the apple rather heavily. Then, she picked up the bowl, scooped up a piece of the grilled chicken, and brought it to Evan's mouth.

She would put up with it! After all, he had saved her.

Evan took a bite, but it was too hot. He frowned unhappily at Caroline. "Are you trying to scald me?"

Caroline tightened her grip on the fork, retracted her hand, and blew on the steam before handing

it back to Evan. 1

Evan seemed satisfied this time and ate it.

Jamie sat on the sofa, her gaze fixed on the interactions between the two. The more she looked at Evan's facial features, the more she was reminded of Draco's face. That face had caused her countless nightmares.

Jamie's hands gradually clenched into fists, and her chest rose and fell rapidly. The anger in her eyes surged.

The next second, Jamie suddenly stood up and pounced on Evan.
