

THREE KINGDOMS: I HAVE A JOB TRANSFER PALACE

Chapter 6

Since all chefs have this ability, it is also necessary to change one or two other professions in life.

First up is the blacksmith.

Only with a handy weapon can you better utilize your divine power.

Otherwise, if you fight on the battlefield with bare hands, no matter how powerful you are, you will never be able to avoid injury.

To develop and grow in the future, weapons and armor will naturally be indispensable.

A blacksmith is a must.

In addition, Dashan Village is surrounded by mountains on three sides, and only the front is accessible for people to enter and exit.

If a city wall is erected in the open space in front of the village, it can serve as a good defense against enemies.

Architects must also figure it out.

For the rest, don't worry for now.

After lunch, Zhao Feng took the villagers who were best at blacksmithing and building houses in the village into the job transfer hall.

In about a quarter of an hour, the two of them completed the job change.

Then the two of them devoted themselves to their work.

The builders took the adult men from the village into the mountains to carry stones to build the city wall.

The blacksmith recast the weapons of the Wuhuan cavalry, and first made a long spear for Liu Feng.

"What are your job transfer skills?"

Before forging, Liu Feng asked the forger

"Back to my lord," the blacksmith said respectfully, "My job change skill is to change the weight of equipment, which can be changed up to ten times."

Change the weight?

Liu Feng didn't expect this skill to be useful at first, but soon his eyes lit up. Why is it difficult to build heavy cavalry? Because the cost of building heavy armor is too high and the cost of maintenance is too high.

If ordinary armor can be Wouldn't it be possible to save costs by making it heavier?

The light cavalry needs light armor, but as the armor becomes lighter, the defense will be greatly reduced.

Wouldn't it be beautiful if ordinary armor could be made lighter?

He patted the blacksmith's shoulder, Said: "Not bad skills, first build me a spear, one foot long, and increase the weight as much as possible."

He has super god-like strength. If the weapon is too light, he cannot display his strength.

"Yes, my lord."

The blacksmith took the order and began to forge weapons.

After changing his profession to become a blacksmith, the speed of forging weapons increased significantly.

Moreover, the forged weapons were sharper and more tough than other weapons.

An hour later, the spear was completed.

Liu Feng watched Looking at the dark spear carried out by several forging apprentices, his eyes flashed.

The blacksmith also walked out of the forging workshop and said:"My lord, this gun originally only weighed a hundred kilograms.

After I increased the weight, it reached 1,000 pounds.

If it doesn't fit my hand, I can make it lighter."

Thousand catties?

Liu Feng smiled slightly, held the spear with one hand, and easily lifted it up. He danced twice casually, nodded with satisfaction, and said:"Although it is still a little light, it can be used."

Really, is it light?

The forger was stunned. This is the limit of the heavy weapons he can forge so far.

Several forging apprentices were even more horrified.

It weighed a thousand kilograms, is it still too light?

Liu Feng raised his head. He looked at the blacksmith and said with a smile:"Your ability is very good, keep working hard"

"Thank you for your lord's appreciation. I will definitely live up to your lord's expectations."

The blacksmith grinned.

Liu Feng smiled and looked down at the spear in his hand.

The size and thickness are no different from ordinary spears. It's just because the blacksmith's job change skill changed the weight.

If you don't feel it for yourself, no one can. Would you believe that this gun weighs a thousand pounds?

"From now on, you will be called Mo Yuqiang."

The black jade gun weighs a thousand pounds.

However, such a heavy weapon cannot be carried by ordinary war horses.

Thinking of this, Liu Feng frowned again.

Is it possible that he wants to run with his legs like Li Yuanba?

By the way, There is a beast tamer in the job transfer hall.

Perhaps the beast trainer has a way to solve this problem. So

Liu Feng once again selected one person to go to the job transfer hall, and spent 100 job transfer points to transfer to a first-level beast tamer.

Liu Feng was about to ask that person. The beast tamer's job transfer skills were reminded by the job transfer elf: "Master, as the master of the job transfer hall, you can directly see the job transfer skills of all job transferees."

Do you still have this ability?

Liu Feng was stunned for a moment, and then he directly checked the attributes of the beast tamer according to the instructions of the job transfer elf.

Name: Zhao Ergou

Occupation: Beast Tamer Level: 0% job transfer skill at first level

: Horse training (passive, the trained war horse will randomly increase the weight, speed, endurance, explosive power and other attributes by 10 times.)

It seems that the first skill of every job changer is passive.

It will randomly increase the weight and speed of the war horse by 10 times. , endurance, explosive power and other attributes. Among these attributes, the one Liu Feng needs most is to increase the load-bearing attribute.

If the load-bearing capacity of a war horse is increased by 10 times, it will be more than enough to carry himself and the Black Jade Spear.

An average war horse can carry eight loads. Ten kilograms can move freely without much impact.

The war horses left by the Wuhuan cavalry can be considered to be of mid-to-high quality, and they can carry a hundred kilograms without any pressure.

The load-bearing capacity has increased tenfold, enough to carry a thousand kilograms. weight, and charge freely.
