3 - 47 Talismans

Thea found Allegra at the apothecary.

"I have some questions for you," Thea said after they greeted each other. "Do you have some time?"

"Of course."

They went to the coffee house to talk.

"I'll have a Danish and cappuccino, please," Allegra said when the server came to take their orders.

The server turned to Thea.

"I'll have orange juice, a waffle with lots of butter and whipped cream, and an omelet. Fill it with whatever proteins you have." Thea looked at Allegra. "Do you want to add anything to your order? Please, order whatever you want. My treat," Thea said.

"Oh, I don't have the metabolism of a wolf. One Danish and the coffee is plenty for me," Allegra laughed.

"I find that I'm getting hungrier," Thea said after sending the server over to her Delta guards.

"To be expected," Allegra said. "What did you want to talk about?"

"I want to make a protection talisman for my warriors, the Delta team, my mates, father, and the Alpha.”

“Protect them from what?”

“Me.”

Thea told her about the summit meeting, then taking over the packs and giving them to the good Alphas.

“Someone warned one of the packs we were coming to kill them, so the whole pack was waiting to ambush us. I had to take everyone out at once. I put everyone to sleep, but I couldn’t avoid my men.”

“You were able to put hundreds of people to sleep?” Allegra said.

Thea nodded.

“What was the physical range?”

“Maybe a two hundred yard radius. Thereabouts,” Thea said.

“That is impressive. That would wipe out a witch in one shot. If she could even manage it.”

“It wasn’t all me,” Thea said. “I pulled energy from the Earth, and I connected to a living system underground to carry the magic out.”

“Fascinating.”

“We have the canines from the Alphas and their men. Could we make a talisman out of those? Maybe put it on a necklace?"

"Absolutely. The teeth are a double whammy. Werewolf canines have their own power and magic. Add that to the power and connection they have to you since you defeated them, and these will be powerful."

"I'm not the one who took the canines," Thea said. "Or the one who killed them." 2

"You made it happen. Your men were following your command, and you made it possible by paralyzing the bad guys. The canines are yours. For what you want the talismans to do, that's what matters. The men have a connection to the teeth as well. It will be even more powerful if they wear a talisman made with one of the teeth they took. It will make their bond to the talisman stronger." 1

Thea immediately mind linked Delta team, her father, Alpha Ulric, and the triplets and told them to write their names on their teeth before giving them to her. There would be a few that were from Alpha Ford's men. They all voiced their acknowledgment. She turned to Xavier and told him to do it as well. She turned back to Allegra.

"Ideally, I'd like the necklace to be hidden from people who want to take it and for it to expand or contract to fit the wearer in wolf form or human form."

"I may know something about doing that," Allegra said, smiling.

"You made this necklace, didn't you?" Thea pulled her vampire necklace out from under her shirt. It was always glowing these days since Xavier never left her side. 2

Allegra nodded.

"Thank you for that," Thea said, smiling. "You do excellent work."

"My pleasure. We need to make sure no one knows about this. We can't have people knowing how to make your gift null. I'll add something to it."

"Great."

"I'm leaving tomorrow to visit local covens to try to make alliances," Allegra said.

"Do you need anything? Transportation?" Thea said.

"A car would be great," Allegra said.

"You can use one of the pack vehicles," Thea said.

"Thank you," Allegra said. "I wasn't fishing. I told you so you know I won't be here tomorrow and for several days. I'm not sure how long these visits will take. I'm free today if you want to make the talismans." 1

"That would be great."

Thea mind linked the men and told them to bring the teeth to her as soon as they could.

"There are a few things I need to get at the apothecary," Allegra said. "I think I can get them right now while we're waiting for our food. Do you mind?"

"No. Tell Mr. Garrity to charge it to me."

Allegra smiled. "I will. Don't wait on me if the food comes before I'm back."

Thea nodded, and Allegra left.

Anders walked into the coffee shop before Allegra returned.

"Luna," Anders said with his head bowed.

"Head up, Anders," Thea said. "I'm not royalty."

"Yes, Luna." He straightened. "I have the canines." He handed her a satchel.

"Thank you, Anders. Did you get theirs as well?" Thea motioned toward her guard detail.

"Yes. They mind linked and told me where to find them. I wrote their names on them."

"Perfect. Thank you."

Xavier handed his to her as well.

Allegra came back with a few bags. They ate, then went to the same place they made their first talisman. They got set up. Thea opened the satchel of canines while Allegra prepared the other items for a ritual similar to the one for Thea's belly chain.

"You can tell which ones are from Alphas. They're bigger and have more magic," Allegra said, sorting through the teeth.

"Is that important?" Thea said.

"Yes. One canine per necklace is sufficient to make the talisman. Give your closest men an Alpha canine. The others you can hand out whenever others need them. They'll still work, but I assume you want your men to have the best."

"Yes."

"We will need to inform the talisman what to shield, which is your magic," Allegra said.

"How do we do that?"

"Your magic is a part of you. It's in you. In your blood. A drop should do the trick."

"A drop for every talisman?"

"Yes. I'll tell you when to add your blood."

After they performed the ritual, Thea had a lot of necklaces with canines. They sorted them, and Thea set aside the ones she would give to her men.

"Thank you so much, Allegra," Thea said after they cleaned up. "Good luck with the coven tomorrow."

"I'll let you know how it goes. I'll see you soon," Allegra said.

Thea mind linked her men. "I need everyone to meet again right now."

A few minutes later, everyone was in their meeting room. Thea handed out the necklaces and put the extras on a chair.

"Please put them on," Thea said. They obeyed. "I'm going to put you to sleep now."

She tried, but nothing happened.

Thea sighed in relief. "It worked," she said, a smile growing on her face.

"You made them into shields?" Landon said.

"Allegra helped me make talismans to protect you from my magic," Thea said. She explained how and why they worked. "There are more if we need to loan them out to others." She indicated the satchel. 2

"Dog with a bone," Alpha Ulric said, fingering the canine on his necklace as he looked at Beta Walter. 5
