

Taming Faye by Laurieen Chapter 1

The Heart Thumping Interview

Taming Faye:::

He became a successful billionaire at 30, tall handsome and with a great body.

Daylan Sage is a genius in the business world, a goal oriented man who single handedly picked his father's business from the slump of bankruptcy to become the top leading company in the country with branches almost all countries.

His late father lost everything when he married his step mother after the death of his biological mother to cancer.

His father wealth started to swindle down the day Ameerah the most selfish and wasteful woman on Earth came into his life.

After his dad died, he venture into the business world, with his consistency and focus he became a billionaire in no time, making his father shabby business an empire.

He was and is still the CEO of Sage Family Group Of Company.

Everything about Daylan was hectic, his schedule doesn't allow him to mingle with people not even with his best friend Anthony or for him to find love again.

Not after he caught his Ex girlfriend Jamie cheating on him with his business rival Tristan.

It hurt so much that for months he suffered emotionally and swore never to entertain any woman in his life, neither did he think about finding love again.

He refused to think about relationships or give any female a chance to know him.

He channel all his energy to work, not giving space for dates because he believed Love will lead to pain, and pain brings sufferings that will just ruin you.

Maybe someday he would open his heart to love, not to anyone but to the right person.

Everyday is always a typical day for Daylan, Friday included. Paper works occupied his table, he's the CEO of the company doesn't mean he is free from work or should become lazy.

He believed it was his hard work and focus that made him who he is today, so he is not going to relax because there is still a lot he has to achieve. Shifting his eyeglasses he continue typing in his computer with all seriousness.

He barely have a life outside his work and company, Anthony his best friend and also his assistant do tell him he's not getting any younger, he needs to find love again, marry and have kids.

Typical Daylan shrugged and continue living his successful but lonely life.

Faye Smith was running late for the interview she has this morning after applying to numerous companies for a job.

No doubt she is beautiful, smart and hardworking. Her mum own a small coffee shop few miles away from their home with just one person assisting her.

With no dad, she knew her mum is doing everything possible to make her and her siblings well catered for.

Faye started working at an early age to be able to complete her education and also help out at home, she does menial jobs like delivery person, washing dishes in restaurants, scrubbing floors just to get money to assist her mum.

Sage group of companies called her for an interview, but she was already late.

On getting to the gigantic building she took a deep breath and walked in towards the receptionist.

"Good morning my name is Faye Smith. Iam here for the interview regarding the position of a secretary".

"Welcome!" the beautiful receptionist said with a smile.

"please go in there are others there, someone will call you, and interview you." She said showing the way.

"Thank you!" Faye replied returning the smile.

"Good luck!"

Faye heart was beating fast, as she sees those who went in coming out with long faces, she hoped they will like her and give her the job, because she badly needed it.

She was getting nervous when the person before her was called in, she knew she was prepared for the interview but what if she flop?

What if she is not who they wanted?

What if she could not answer the questions thrown at her?

Beads of sweat formed on her forehead, she silently begged her star to favour her because this is her only hope.

“Faye Smith?” A beautiful middle-aged woman called looking around, but gave a beautiful smile when she saw Faye walking towards her.

“Yes”

“Please come in for your interview”

She walked in slowly into the room, Faye swallowed hard when six pairs of eyes landed on her as she opened the door.